KNIFER SLAIN ON STREET CAR

HIDING TRUTH IN WAR NEWS IRKS CONGRESS

Both Parties Lash Burocrats.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—Mounting resentment over the apparent inability of both civilian and military offices of the government to give the public factual and dependable news reports tonight appeared due to find expression in a bipartisan attack in congress on the Roosevelt administration's handling of recent matters of public interest.

Elmer Davis.

Spurred by yesterday's attack on the war man power commission by Elmer Davis, director of the office of war information; by the disclosure that the war department had given out "misleading figures" on asserted budget savings, and by suppression of the Patton incident, aroused congressmen planned to speak out when congress meets tomorrow.

Have Many Complaints.

Indications were that a long list of instances in which congressmen believe the administration has given the public confusing and conflicting reports, beginning with the attack on Pearl Harbor, will be aired as the congressmen raise the question of the public's right to know what its government is doing.

Official pronouncements regarding the raid on Tokio, the operation and handling of lend-lease, and the draft and food situations are reported to be among subjects contributing to the congressional ire.

Annoyance was expressed over Davis' action in delivering a public slap at the war man power commission, while the policies of Man Power Director Paul McNutt, which Davis excoriated, also came in for condemnation as indicative of the low point to which government agencies have allowed their public relations to deteriorate.

Another Burocratic Mess.

Davis blamed McNutt's bureau for unnecessary confusion in the public mind over the fathers' draft, and for an asserted hostility toward newspapermen and a cumbersome practice of smothering announcements at their source in order to make them later in the field.

Recalling that Davis' OWI has been under almost constant investigation since its creation and has caused considerable embarrassment on such occasions as its attack on the Italian king while the army was negotiating Italy's surrender, congressmen were inclined to view the new brawl as merely one more regretable burocratic squabble.

Army "Savings" an Issue.

Anger has replaced rejoicing which was felt last week over the war department's announced intention of turning back 13 billion dollars into the treasury because it would not be needed. This is due to the announcement by Harold Smith, director of the budget, that the figure was misleading and that not more than 8 billion would be turned back. Smith explained that the so-called savings were bookkeeping savings and had been discounted.

Suppression for several weeks of the news that Lt. Gen. George Patton had slapped a hospitalized soldier during the Sicilian campaign has provoked almost as much discussion among congressmen as the slapping incident itself. There was general criticism of the army's long silence and its formal denial a day before the incident was made public.

Complete Facts Demanded.

"One would think that with all the tons of paper the government is using every day to put out reports, it would be able to give the people complete and factual information," said Rep. Marion T. Bennett [R., Mo.] in an interview. "But apparently this is impossible."

Discussing his discoveries in a one man survey of government propaganda activities, Bennett said he learned only yesterday of a slick paper quarterly magazine issued by the treasury department war bond sales staff under the title, Schools at War. Bennett said this magazine is now in its fifth issue and that each issue costs $18,000.

Riders Cower as Policeman Fires 4 Times

Nick Bruno, 26 years old, was shot to death by a policeman aboard a southbound Clybourn-Wells surface lines car near Oak street last night after he had run amok with a long bladed knife, slashing one bystander in his fury and terrorizing the trolley crew and passengers.

The cause of his frenzy was a quarrel between Bruno, who was unmarried, and his sister, Angeline, 29, in their home at 1415 Clybourn avenue. She said her brother demanded money and when she refused to give it to him he picked up a knife and menaced her, threatening to kill her and other members of the household.

Passerby Cut Above Eye.

His sister ran into the home of Sam Pantano, 55 years old, an employe of the county clerk's office, at 1411 Clybourn avenue, and asked him to call police. Pantano's daughter, Virginia, 25, watching from a window, saw Bruno jump aboard the street car as Policemen Ambrose Mahoney and Walter Wagemann, in a squad car, stopped in front of the Bruno home.

Policemen Overtake Car.

Taking Pantano's daughter with them to identify the madman, the policemen followed the route of the street car to Wells street, thence south. Near Oak street the car came to an abrupt stop.

From the front platform Raymond Brzeczck, 35, of 2705 Thomas street, the motorman, descended, waving his arms. He called to the police:

"There's a wild man in there! He's got a gun or a knife."

Mahoney, winner of THE TRIBUNE's hero award in March, 1927, and a marine veteran of World War I, leaped on the car and cornered Bruno on the front platform. Bruno brandished his knife savagely.

"Drop it," Mahoney ordered.

"You can't kill me," Bruno cried.

He moved toward the policeman. Mahoney fired two shots into the floor of the car in an effort to dissuade the madman.

Wounded in Chest.

Bruno rushed at Mahoney and the policeman fired twice, hitting him in the chest. He was pronounced dead upon arrival at Henrotin hospital.

The street car motorman and conductor told the police that Bruno had threatened to kill them and had menaced passengers until they cowered in their seats as he charged thru the aisle.

CALLS CANADA'S ANNEXING BY U. S. MATTER OF TIME

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 28 (AP).—W. D. Herridge, former Canadian minister to Washington, said here yesterday that if the United States "pursues its imperialist way and if Canada continues on its passive way, then I believe the absorption of this country by our good friend and neighbor is but a matter of time." To most leaders of democracy in America, and elsewhere, the present conflict is "not a war to build a new world but to restore the old one," he said.

DETECTIVE GETS GOOD LUCK WIRE FROM 'FUGITIVE'

Oklahoma City, Okla., Nov. 28 (AP).—A telegram from Kansas City, Mo., signed John Wilbur Voss, the name of a 27 year old fugitive from the Oklahoma penitentiary, assured a detective today, "I think you're swell. I hope you catch me."

Voss fled from the state prison at McAlester, Oct. 17, after concealing himself in a basket of bread.

The detective said he believed the telegram was genuine. He added that Voss, a veteran of escapes from federal prisons at Leavenworth, Kas., and El Reno, Okla., often has boasted no walls can hold him.

Fort's 5 Crewmen Leap to Safety in Black Hills

JANUARY DRAFT CALL IS DOUBLE WMC ESTIMATE

Army, Navy Ask 300,000 Men.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—The army's draft call for January is to be twice the figure the war man power commission has been expecting, it was learned today, and as a result the combined army-navy call will approximate 300,000 men.

This is about the present monthly figure, as contrasted with previous indications that calls would begin dropping after the first of the year.

Two Reasons Given.

The expanding navy never expected to reach top strength until well along in 1944 and the army, it was reported authoritatively, won't be at its expected peak strength of 7,700,000 men by Jan. 1 for two main reasons:

1. The WAC enlistment drive has been disappointing. The army is pleased with the performance of its women soldiers and is willing to take hundreds of thousands, but only about 60,000 have enlisted to date.

2. Draft boards are lagging so far behind their quotas they may be unable to catch up even by the end of January.

Replacements Uncertain.

Uncertainty over what congress would do about the drafting of pre-war fathers caused many boards to delay calling them.

The general expectation, bolstered by war department testimony on Capitol hill, had been that the army would need only replacements after the first of the year.

The number of replacements, however, is one of the great question marks of the war, since it depends on how many casualties the services will suffer.

U. S. SAFETY TIED UP WITH BRITISH EMPIRE: ANGELL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—American security is bound up with the existence of the British empire, Norman Angell, author and lecturer and member of the council of the Royal Institute of International Affairs, told British radio listeners tonight.

"Some in America are warning us that the empire is all wrong and must be given up," he said. "Great American forces and resources have been poured into the empire to insure its better defense."

He asserted America was in Australia to save herself from Japan, and American troops in India were there for the same purpose. If it had not been for the dominions and the empire, England would have had to go the same way as France, he added. He therefore argued it was essential for Britain to hold the empire.

Boy, Girl, or 5 of 'Em? It's $50 Question!

Roodhouse, Ill., Nov. 28 [Special].—Staff Sgt. Perry A. Nebergall, 24 year old Thunderbolt crew chief, got his orders to go overseas last May. Before he left he talked things over with his bride, Marion.

"Where I'm going the mails are mighty uncertain," he told her. "Sometimes the boys don't hear from home for months and months. Even cables get tangled up in censorship and take a long time to catch up with the persons they are addressed to."

"Then maybe it will be weeks and weeks before you know whether it is a boy or a girl," said Marion with concern.

Money Isn't Censored.

"I've been thinking this over," the sergeant explained brightly, "and I've got a plan. They tell me there isn't any censorship on money. A message might never get to me, but a cabled money order would come right thru. So——." He took two bills from his pocket and held them before her.

"If it's a girl, you send me this," and he pressed a $10 bill into her hand. "And if it's a boy, send this." He gave her a $20 bill. She nodded happily.

Time passed. Marion got frequent letters, for a while. They came from an 8th air force base somewhere in England. Late in October Marion went to the hospital where Virgil Arthur Nebergall, an 8 pound boy, was born Oct. 23. True to her promise, she sent a cable.

Baffled by Confusion.

"Yes, the boy is fine," Marion said today at her home here. "No, I haven't heard from my husband for more than a month. But I don't understand this confusion."

Marion was being interviewed in connection with an army press dispatch from an 8th air force fighter station in England. The dispatch stated that a Thunderbolt crew chief named Perry Nebergall was appealing to his superiors to get him some news from home and get it quick. The sergeant, it was reported, was saying something like this:

"Triplets—could it be? Two boys and a girl? Or a boy and three girls? Or quintuplets—five girls?"

"It's all very simple," said Marion equably. "I cabled him so he'd know everything was all right, but because it was so close to Christmas I made it an even $50, just as a surprise."

Northern Turkey Quake Toll Put at 1,000 Dead

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—The British radio reported an Ankara broadcast today saying the death toll in the earthquake in the Black sea area of northern central Turkey early yesterday was at least 1,000 and that 700 more persons were injured. "The Turkish government has sent special relief trains to the devastated areas," the broadcast said.

UNRRA Goes Native with a Bronx Cheer

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 28.—Delegates at the meeting of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration here today were talking about the party they had last night at which they gave Hitler the Bronx cheer and sang "Pistol Packin' Mama" in an old fashioned songfest.

A solemn gentleman from India, standing on the photographers' platform, pushed back his white turban, forgot what it is the newsreels show Americans doing with their straw hats at baseball games, and decided to leave it on.

Ambassador Has Fun.

An ambassador looked about him for a door, chose between dignity and fun, and remained. A visitor from Ethiopia looked puzzled and joined in the singing of "Home on the Range."

But the volume didn't satisfy Comdr. Tom Husselton of the coast guard. Grabbing a huge banner reading "Protocol," he tore it right in two. Then he gave a pep talk that was said in diplomatic circles to have profoundly influenced some of the delegates.

Anyway, everybody was singing by the time they got to "Roll Out the Barrel."

Explains Bronx Cheer.

The orchestra leader had a little difficulty teaching his pupils from many lands the Bronx cheer. But he explained that it was really only the bird, or the razzberry, and surely they must have heard it.

And so the crowd rehearsed a while and then gave the bird, or the razzberry, in precisely the right place every time when he sang a song about Adolf and his "master race."

The most discriminating loved "The Man on the Flying Trapeze," and a few suggested that future voting on UNRRA's 2½ billion dollar enterprises be simplified to a mere "o. k." or "nix."

Raider Gives Horse Laugh to Host's 'Nay'

Melvin Harris, a Negro, who lives at 1347 West 109th place, was awakened early yesterday by the noise of thunderous tramping on his back porch. It sounded to Harris like several very large men banging their feet down on the floor.

Soon there was a knock on the back door that threatened to shake the small house to its foundations. Plaster tumbled from the ceiling, and dishes rattled in the cupboard.

Police Help Summoned.

Harris' alarm turned to indignation. The horse thrust his head and neck thru the door, but Harris pushed him back onto the porch. Then he telephoned police.

"That horse is here again," he told the desk sergeant, "and now he wants to come into the house." When police arrived he explained that the horse was a frequent visitor, but had always seemed satisfied to nibble at the grass in the yard.

The horse stood obligingly by while Policemen Lester Wright and Frank Hubert talked to Harris. "That horse ought to be locked up," Harris told the policemen. "He's likely to go around and kick somebody's house over."

Wanderer's Owner Found.

Wright and Hubert questioned residents of the neighborhood until they found that the horse belonged to Donald Lee, another Negro, who lives at 1300 West 110th place.

Lee admitted ownership. "Yes sir, that's my horse," he said. "His name is Dick, or Fred. He seems to answer to both. I bought him last March and he pulls my express wagon, and he plowed a lot of war gardens, too."

Wright and Hubert cautioned Lee against letting the horse roam the neighborhood. They explained that an unescorted horse is a nuisance. Suddenly Wright looked around and asked:

"Where did that horse go?"

It was in Lee's kitchen.

SEES JAPS MOW DOWN YANKS IN TARAWA BATTLE

BY WILLIAM HIPPLE.

WITH U. S. MARINES ON TARAWA, Nov. 22 [Delayed] (AP).—"I guess you've got a story; it looks like the Japs want a scrap" said a lieutenant colonel to me as we climbed out of a landing craft 400 yards from the beach on Betio Island Saturday morning.

1st Lt. Adolph Norvik.

There were two dead men in the bottom of our boat, bullets were whizzing by, some of them piercing the sides of the craft, and shells were coming so close they threw water over us.

My experiences are of no consequence alongside the remarkable record of heroism of the United States marines who took Tarawa, but they give an insight into what the American forces went thru with the last three days.

Japs Blow Heads Off.

An enemy garrison of 4,000 naval troops put up a stubborn fight until death. The marines are blasting each Jap from his concrete or coconut machine gun nest, his sniping positions in trees and holes, and from his bombproof dugouts.

The Japs will not give up. I saw a number of Japanese who blew off their own heads when wounded, surrounded, and their ammunition about gone.

As the colonel ordered the eight men in our boat to plunge ashore, I hit the water waist deep, cut off my "Mae West" life jacket and splashed ahead. We got down on hands and knees with only our heads showing, but the going was so slow we had to rise occasionally.

A bullet creased my steel helmet, throwing my head back. The helmet was red hot. I dived under water and tried to swim submerged.

Colonel Goes Down.

The colonel, in the lead, went down suddenly and never came up again. One of our radio operators also was killed. An officer, Lt. [j. g.] J. P. Odell Jr., of Minneapolis, who was right ahead of me, groaned and went under the water. He was hit in the shoulder.

We finally fell exhausted behind a barricade and then proceeded around it, in the face of withering cross fire.

We finally crawled into a deep shell hole where we recognized some of the men in my boat. Lt. Col. Walter Jordan of Virginia Beach, Va., immediately took over the command of the battalion with the assistance of 1st Lt. Adolph W. Norvik of Highland Park, Ill., and Lt. Odell.

The situation was desperate. The front line was only a few yards over the top of our hole. We expected the Japs to rush us with bayonets any second.

A navy pharmacist's mate, Walter A. Nagy of Akron, O., bandaged Odell's bloody shoulder while the latter tried to repair the wet telephone set. Odell finally got it going so he could talk with Lt. Col. Jim Crowe's command post. Crowe reported he also was in a bad spot, with the enemy pressing fiercely.

A couple of wounded men crawled to our hole and Nagy treated them under a log dugout. Sniper bullets were cutting the sand around us.

The air support finally arrived about 1 o'clock, the planes strafed and dive bombed near the landing strip and the eastern end to try to knock out the Jap mortars, heavy guns, and pillboxes.

Our forward units finally reached a point about a hundred yards inland, but there still were snipers, machine gunners all the way. The mortars still were pounding the two tanks that reached the shore. They soon were out of commission.

I crawled along the beach and finally ducked into a coconut log

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—A broadcast by the German agency Transocean today quoted a Tokio naval spokesman as saying "a decisive naval battle may soon be expected in the Gilbert Islands area."

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ALLIED HDQ., Nov. 29 [Monday] (AP). — A Japanese cruiser was bombed and observed to explode off New Ireland, Gen. MacArthur reported today.

This was the 49th Japanese warship sunk or damaged in November in these northern Solomons waters. A 1,000 pound bomb struck the ship and caused an internal explosion.

Adm. William F. Halsey's spokesman reported that more than 1,000 Japanese were killed by artillery and infantry fire in a 10 day battle on Bougainville Island, which brought the enemy total in dead there to more than 2,000.

American dead and wounded were around 1,000, the spokesman said. Three hundred of these were killed in an artillery duel.

American bombers swept Japanese air bases in northeastern New Guinea, destroying 13 enemy planes on the ground and in the air at Wewak and Finschhafen.

Jap Barges Sunk.

Bombers also dropped 105 tons of bombs on Jap held Buka Island off the northern tip of Bougainville, made an audacious night attack on the waterfront at Rabaul and left towering fires in a bombing and strafing raid of Japanese villages along northwestern New Guinea.

Destroy 5 Planes.

Medium bombers encountered no interception in their bombing and strafing raid of the Wewak area of New Guinea, altho they lost one plane to anti-aircraft fire. Five Japanese aircraft were destroyed on the ground and about 25 others were bombed and strafed at Wewak.

Ten escorted Japanese bombers attacked allied positions in the Finschhafen area, but only minor damage was reported. Eight of the enemy fighters were shot down.

WAC WHO SAVED SOLDIER CAUSES SCRIPT REVISION

ALGIERS, Nov. 28.—Pvt. Margaret H. Maloney of Rochester, N. Y., pint sized WAC who won the soldiers medal for saving the life of a soldier when his clothes caught fire, made a recording for broadcast over the army hour today.

But one part of the program was unscheduled: Pvt. Maloney had to tell her story from a hospital cot. The leg injuries she sustained Sept. 11 when the gasoline soaked clothing of Pvt. Kenneth M. Jacobs of York, Pa., caught fire have caused her more trouble than she expected, and she has had to return to the hospital several times.

The script for today's broadcast accordingly had to be revised to include the announcer's question "How do you feel now?" and Pvt. Maloney smiled back: "O, I am getting alone fine. I hope to be out in a few days."

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

HUNDREDS HELD; CANADA WON'T DISCLOSE WHY

No Trial and No Appeal in War Time Absolutism.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 28.—The department of justice today refused this reporter's request to make public the number and the nature of charges against hundreds, including Canadian citizens, who have been and still are detained under an unprecedented and absolute authority vested in this department by "defense of Canada" regulations.

Under these regulations, a war time executive degree under parliamentary authorization, Canadians lost their rights to a trial in open court by a jury of their peers. As it has functioned the decree has nullified appeals to courts for a writ of habeas corpus.

There is no definition of evidence warranting arrest and detention under these regulations. A likelihood of an offense against public safety or the safety of the state seems to be adequate to jail a suspect and to hold him indefinitely without trial. Property rights are in the same jeopardy as personal liberty.

Farreaching Provisions.

"The minister of justice," reads the first paragraph of chapter 21 of the regulations, "if satisfied, that with a view to preventing any particular person from acting in any manner prejudicial to the public safety or the safety of the state, it is necessary so to do, may, notwithstanding anything in these regulations, make an order:

"[a] prohibiting or restricting the possession or use by that person of any specified articles;

"[b] imposing upon him such restrictions as may be specified in the order in respect of his employment or business, in respect of his movements or place of residence, in respect of his association or communication with other persons, or in respect of his activities in relation to the dissemination of news or propagation of opinions;

"[c] directing that he be detained in such place, and under such conditions, as the minister from time to time determine; and any person shall, while detained by virtue of an order made under this paragraph, be deemed to be in legal custody."

No Inquiry into Merits.

These closing phrases, according to counsel for the department, ineffectuated petitions for a writ of habeas corpus. Courts, he said, dismiss petitions with a showing that the prisoner is held under a valid order of the minister of justice, with no inquiry into the merits of the order.

Arrests are made by the royal Canadian mounted police.

"As soon as possible after detention . . . ," reads chapter 22, "the person . . . shall be informed of the general grounds on which he is detained and notice of his detention shall, where possible and not contrary to public interest, be given to his family or such person as he may request.

The prisoner may then address an objection to his detention to the minister of justice. The objection is referred to an advisory committee of three appointed by the minister. In a secret session, the objector is told the case against him, "as full particulars . . . as in the opinion of the chairman the circumstances permit." The committee "may receive and accept such evidence and information on oath, affidavit or otherwise as in its discretion it may deem fit and proper." The quotations are from the regulations.

No Appeal Permissible.

The advisory committee reports to the minister of justice. His decision is final. There is no appeal from it. The case can be reopened with a development of new evidence. The committee can change its recommendation. That's how a number of prisoners have been released.

Canadians generally have accepted the absolutism of these regulations as a war time necessity. They compare it with America's internment of its citizens of the Japanese race. However, the Coöperative Commonwealth federation, a revolutionary political party of threatening strength, has protested against the government's increasing powers.

"In recent years, Canada has seen an alarming growth of fascist tendencies among all governmental authorities," reads a manifesto of the CCF, which would itself impose complete governmental ownership and regulation in the dominion. "The most elementary rights of freedom of speech and assembly have been arbitarily denied to workers and to all whose political and social views do not meet with the approval of those in power."

Ex-Mayor Is Prisoner.

The most widely known prisoner under the defense regulations is Camillien Houd, who was arrested about two years ago for advocating, as mayor of Montreal, disobedience to selective service registration orders. Among the French, who comprise 30 per cent of Canada's population, there were many who protested against service for the British empire, and the draft still doesn't compel a man to fight overseas.

Italians and Germans, some of them naturalized citizens, and Fascist followers of Oswald Mosley also were rounded up under the defense regulations.

FOR CHRISTMAS-Adopt a Yank in Sick Bay

Hearty indorsement of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's campaign—For Christmas—Adopt a Yank in Sick Bay!—came from Chicagoans everywhere yesterday immediately after announcement of the plan.

The first response was a big one, an offer to adopt 100 Yanks for Christmas, made by the Germania Red Cross unit of the Germania club, 108 Germania place. "We think it is a wonderful plan," said Mrs. Harry E. Hoff, unit chairman and president of the Germania Women's club. "This is the first chance to give direct aid on a large scale to our boys."

Vote Quickly to Adopt 100.

Decision to provide a Merry Christmas for 100 men was reached at a meeting of officers of the Germania Red Cross unit before 10 a. m. "We all have sons or relatives in the service," said Mrs. Hoff, whose son, J. Robert Hoff, is a navy lieutenant. Mrs. Hoff is the daughter of the late Joseph F. Haas, county recorder. Others at the meeting were Mrs. C. W. Lampe, cochairman, and Mrs. Fred Deuss, secretary-treasurer.

The Adopt a Yank in Sick Bay for Christmas plan is to help assure a cheerful holiday for the many fighting men now hospitalized in the midwest because of wounds, sickness, and other disabilities.

These men will be asked to write down lists of presents they would like, and the lists will be forwarded to THE TRIBUNE. Meanwhile, readers may send stamped, self-addressed envelopes and letters to the Adopt a Yank Editor, Tribune Tower, Chicago, stating how many Yanks they wish to adopt. They will be sent lists. The next and nicest step then comes: to send to one or more ailing Yanks—the number adopted—some present chosen from each list.

The Yanks to be remembered will be in hospitals Christmas day, some hundreds of miles from relatives, and gifts from well wishers are bound to brighten their holiday. And the day will be brighter for the sender, too!

HEARINGS BEGIN TODAY ON RIOTS AT JAP CENTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—The Dies committee on un-American activities tomorrow will begin an open inquiry into recent disorders at the Tule Lake camp for disloyal Japanese in northern California.

The inquiry will get under way as the second anniversary of the Dec. 7, 1941, attack on Pearl Harbor approaches. On the first anniversary, the Japanese at the Manzanar, Cal., center demonstrated, with a resultant death toll of two and an injury list of a dozen.

At this same camp, it now is learned, 1,800 Japanese, who are charged with disloyalty to this country, still are quartered under conditions of considerable freedom.

Decide on Open Hearings.

Open hearings on the question of handling evacuated Japanese were decided upon by the Dies subcommittee headed by Rep. John M. Costello [D., Cal.] over the objections of WRA Administrator Dillon S. Myer.

Myer branded reports of disorder in Tule Lake camp "a subversive lie" as late as Nov. 3, shortly before the army moved in. In a report Nov. 13, he said stories of the riots might be made an excuse by the Japanese to mistreat American civilians and prisoners in their hands.

Favor Thoro Probe.

Committee members said lax civilian handling of the segregated Japanese is responsible for the disorders and a thoro probing of the situation, leading perhaps to army control, will prevent further disturbances.

The principal witness tomorrow will be Dr. John T. Mason, senior medical officer at Tule Lake, who resigned after the army took over. He was a witness to the beating by Japanese of Dr. Reece M. Pedicord, chief surgeon of the camp hospital.

Rep. Claire Engle [D., Cal.], who made an independent investigation, will be another witness.

$300 Binoculars Taken from Auto of Doctor

EXPERTS TO SEE TRIBUNE TEST OF NEWSPRINT

More than two score representatives of trade papers, press associations, press, ink, and printing concerns, interested governmental officials, members of the Chicago Publishers association, and officials from newspapers in the Chicago area have been invited to witness a demonstration of newsprint made from waste paper in The Chicago Tribune press rooms at 2:30 p. m. today.

The experiment, similar to one held recently by the New York Daily News, which was witnessed by more than 60 newspaper and newsprint trade officials, is part of THE TRIBUNE'S campaign to provide a solution to war time publishing problems growing out of governmental newsprint restrictions.

Varying Stocks to Be Tested.

John W. Park, Tribune production manager, said press runs would be made on regular newsprint stock and then compared with the results of test runs of waste paper newsprint made according to various formulas, including de-inked and nonde-inked newsprint stock.

The method employed in making new paper out of old is the result of research that THE TRIBUNE and the New York Daily News have been carrying on since early in 1941.

Nature of Process.

It involves a de-inking process during which ink particles must be dislodged from the castoff paper and held in suspension until they are washed away. Then the de-inked paper is pumped into the paper mill, where it is mixed with fresh ground wood and sulphite, and sent to the paper machine.

In the experiments carried on by the two newspapers, the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse university and the Ontario Paper company of Thorold, Ont., a Chicago Tribune subsidiary, lent laboratory and research facilities.

SEES WAR MADE LONGER BY LACK OF PACIFIC HELP

Cromie Says Attrition Will Beat Japs.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA, Nov. 28.—Each week the allies fail to employ sufficient men and equipment in really large scale attacks against Japan means another week added to the eventual length of struggle against the powerful enemy.

Attrition is Japan's greatest foe in South and Southwest Pacific, and the rate they are losing planes and ships might conceivably prove fatal in the long run. But the attrition rate could be greatly speeded and victory brought closer—even without weakening the European drive—by shipping to this theater the men, planes, and other equipment at present held in the United States.

Sooner or later such an increase in supplies is inevitable. United States production now has reached such figures that it seems probable there is enough to supply both the European and Pacific theaters.

New Guinea Route Shorter.

The navy move into the Gilberts means a further drawing off of Jap strength and an increase in the rate of attrition. This move, however, does not detract from the importance of the route toward the Philippines along the New Guinea coast and thence to Mindanao, a route which is far shorter than the thrust west from the Gilberts.

Not considered feasible for topographical reasons is the move of large quantities of either men and supplies to China from India, even if the Burma road is reopened.

To support the attrition theory can be found the hundreds of planes and scores of ships destroyed by our forces since the occupation of Guadalcanal nearly 18 months ago. In addition, nine to 13 Jap divisions have gone thru the meat grinder in South and Southwest Pacific, at least half of their total strength consumed by battle losses and sickness.

Jap Production a Secret.

Peace time inquiries by military attaches and other observers in such a secretive nation as Japan were apt to be incomplete. Their output of planes and ships perhaps is higher than formerly believed. But the present rate of loss is important. It is known their air losses are serious altho it is unknown whether they were sufficient to absorb their entire monthly output.

[New Guinea dispatches said the belief is growing there that Japan is being assisted by Germany.]

China's role is important in that she is tying down many trained Jap divisions, while others are immobilized along the Siberian border thru fear of Russia's intentions. But the only major Jap losses in the China theater are in men, which can be spared, while there is practically no drain on Jap resources in Java, Burma, and Sumatra.

Altho the Japs in this area have been on the defensive for many months and there is no longer any imminent threat of an invasion of Australia, it is still within the bounds of possibility, and is determined by the enemy's potential resources, in that the Japs may suddenly shift hundreds of planes and thousands more men to make a determined drive in this sector. To date, of course, they have been sending in just enough to make an ineffective effort to hold their gains.

So far there is no evidence to support published stories predicting the Japs may abandon New Britain as they did the Aleutians. Despite the smashing raids on Rabaul, the Japs at present have more than 200 planes based there, while shipping activity is still intense, altho allied raids have put an end to the practice of anchoring large numbers of craft within the harbor itself.

Furthermore, the Jap land garrisons in New Britain are believed to have been reënforced by fresh troops, while Kavieng on the near-by island of New Ireland is being strengthened. It is obvious that the Japs are still fighting as hard as ever, that the Jap soldier is well trained with plenty of savvy in the art of war.

It is believed the Japs will vigorously oppose any allied attacks on the Marshalls, since allied ships approaching that region are liable to bombing strikes from clusters of Jap air fields on such bases as Truk, Wake, Ponape, Kwajalong, and Wotje. The drive to the Philippines thru the Marshalls will meet perhaps the sternest resistance to date, as indicated by American losses on Tarawa.

LAUNCH 14 SHIPS; 9 FOR NAVY, 5 FOR CARGO FLEET

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Fourteen vessels slid down the ways of the nation's shipyards yesterday, adding nine ships to the navy and five to the merchant marine.

The ships launched for the navy were the Nehenta Bay, an escort aircraft carrier, at the Henry J. Kaiser shipyards at Vancouver, Wash.; the Cobia, a submarine, at Groton, Conn.; the Blue, a destroyer, at Staten Island, N. Y.; the Admiral W. S. Benson, a troop transport, at Alameda, Cal.; the McClelland, a destroyer escort, and the Norton Sound, a seaplane tender, at San Diego, Cal.; the Baker and the Coffman, destroyer escorts, at Newark, N. J., and an LST [landing ship, tanks] at Evansville, Ind.

The cargo vessels were a Liberty ship at San Diego, another at South Portland, Me., and three concrete ships at Tampa, Fla.

JAP PILOTS NOW SECOND RATERS, KENNEY ASSERTS

General Says They Get Poor Training.

WITH 5TH ARMY AIR FORCE IN NEW GUINEA, Nov. 26 [Delayed]—(AP).—"The Japanese pilots we are meeting now are definitely second rate, and they probably will stay that way," Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney, allied air commander in the Southwest Pacific, said today.

"I am satisfied that the Japanese doesn't give his personnel nearly as much training as we do our boys," he said. "I believe he takes thousands of guys and has the medics give them a checkup and orders those who pass into the air corps.

Have Unlimited Numbers.

"We don't operate that way—our boy either wants to fly or doesn't—and if the Japanese loses them there are plenty more. He can produce second rate flyers in unlimited numbers, and even if he kills five of them to bring down one of our bombers, he considers he is still ahead of the game."

Asked whether Japanese suicidal courage in the air has been noted, Kenney said there was none. He said he knew of one fighter which crashed into an American bomber recently but it appeared that the Jap pilot was either dead or badly injured. Kenney said Japanese pilots are no more inclined for suicide than American or Australian pilots.

A Movement of Bases.

He described the Pacific offensive as the forward movement of air bases, with the allies continually thrusting new airdromes against the Japanese. In such undeveloped country this means special problems of construction and maintenance and places heavy burdens on the engineers.

SEES JAPS MOW DOWN YANKS IN TARAWA BATTLE

Reporter Plunges Thru Fire with Marines.

machine gun nest, out of the fire. I crawled onto five dead Japs. They were large Japs, dressed in green uniforms similar to our own marines.

Sees Dead Snipers in Trees.

Back at the command post Col. Jordan gave orders to dig in for the night. The sun was going down and all hands expected the Japs to counter-attack. Our forward unit still was less than 100 yards ahead. It was impossible to see the live Japs, but you could see a couple of snipers hanging dead from coconut tree tops, still tied in.

Robert Sherrod, Time and Life correspondent, had joined the command post. He and I dug a double foxhole with a shovel and our hands. We alternated watches, an hour to sleep and an hour to keep guard, but neither of us got much sleep.

The firing continued thruout the night and a Jap plane bombed the island. At dawn with the tide out the beach extended about 100 yards out, revealing debris, bodies, and equipment.

New troops were wading in. The Japs had hidden in pillboxes, yet undiscovered, along the beach and also were shooting from vantage points inland. Jap machine gunners were raking incoming men with fire from a beached and burned Jap ship half a mile out. Our planes began strafing and bombing this hulk and set it afire.

Sherrod and I divided the day between Col. Jordan's command post and the regimental command post set up by Col. David M. Shroup of Covington, Ind.

Things began to pick up. Our mortars began laying shells into the Jap positions.

Crawls Into Building.

A battalion at our right, commanded by Maj. John Shoettel, messaged it was having a tough time and held only a 70 yard beachhead.

You still couldn't move in the open without drawing machine gun fire. I crawled into a wrecked building, peered cautiously to the air field where there were craters, a few wrecked Jap planes, and much firing. Bullets whizzed thru the building and I flattened near a dead marine whose lips were frozen into a smile.

Flame throwers were badly needed to scorch the Japs from their positions, but Col. Crowe only had been able to get two ashore intact. Visiting his command post, we saw the burned body of one Jap, who had been shriveled by a flame thrower. Crowe believed he could hold the line for the night from a nearby wharf across the island, keeping most of the Japs pinned to the eastern end.

First Jeep Brings Cheers.

Crowe also was using a couple of tanks effectively. We saw the first jeep arrive and run up the beach as men cheered. More and more equipment, ammunition, guns, and men now were getting in.

A temporary hospital was set up on the beach and doctors were administering blood plasma.

Sherrod and I dug a hole for Sunday night again on the crowded beach, but it was too close to the water and we were soaked with wet sand. We shivered all night.

Today, Nov. 22, the Americans' strength is building steadily and many of the Japs are on the run toward the long eastern end of the island. The main part of the battle is over, altho Col. Shroup said it may take five more days to clean out every Jap.

Tarawa will go down with Guadalcanal in Pacific war history.

He was married to Sylvia Price of Wauwatosa, Wis., Nov. 1, 1942. He is 24 years old.

Burglars Steal Razors in Barber Supply House

Otto Klaske, owner of the Jackson Supply company, a barber supply house at 7328 Halsted street, told police yesterday that burglars had stolen a quantity of razors, shears, shaving and hair brushes, all valued at $50.

WOMAN BURNED IN FIRE.

Mrs. Cornelia Campbell, Negro, 55 years old, was burned on the legs, and her husband, James, 73, was overcome by smoke yesterday in a fire in their second floor flat at 559 West 13th street. An overheated oil stove started the blaze, firemen said.

YOUNG MARINE OFFICER KILLED IN PACIFIC AREA

Mrs. W. J. Russell of Pana [Christian county] was notified by the navy yesterday that her son, Lt. Charles F. Russell, 24 years old, of the marines, had been killed in action in the Southwest Pacific.

Lt. Charles F. Russell.

Lt. Russell formerly lived in Glen Ellyn, and was graduated from Glenbard High school. He was graduated from the University of Illinois in 1941, where he was prominent in student activities. He joined the marines the following year.

In addition to his mother he is survived by a sister, Mrs. George James of Lombard. An uncle, E. J. Templeton of 267 Washington boulevard, Oak Park, said that he believed the battle in which Lt. Russell was killed was his first engagement.

LEBANESE SPURN FRENCH OFFER ON MANDATE TALKS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The Daily Telegraph correspondent in Syria sends an interview with two Lebanese leaders, President Mechara Khoury and Premier Riad Solh. They said there was no constitutional issue involved in the recent disturbances in Beirut, as Lebanon is free.

The premier rejected an announcement by the French committee of national liberation to the effect that "negotiations will be opened with a view to harmonizing the French mandate with the independence promised in the proclamation of 1941." He said both the Syrian and Lebanese governments had never recognized the mandate and therefore they have no intention of entering into such negotiations.

"The only negotiations that can take place with the French," the premier said, "would not confirm either our independence or an eventual treaty with France. We are already independent and we do not regard the war period as a suitable time for concluding a treaty. After the war this problem may be discussed."

30,000 GATHER IN PROTEST ON MOSLEY LIBERTY

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—Thirty thousand persons demonstrated for more than an hour in Trafalgar square today in protest against the release of Oswald Mosley, Britain's prewar Fascist leader, from Holloway prison. Factory workers and other members of labor groups circulated thru the rain swept crowd bearing placards.

There was an effigy of Mosley hanging from a gallows and a coffin bearing a swastika and the words: "Mosley Here or Holloway. Smash Fascism now." A speaker drew applause when he declared that Mosley and his followers must be kept in prison until the end of the war and "then be given a fair trial and shot."

R. A. F. STREAMS TOWARD REICH IN 6TH MASS RAID

Planes Cross Channel from Dusk to Midnight.

LONDON, Nov. 29 [Monday]—(AP).—Massive R. A. F. formations streamed across the channel toward Germany from dusk to midnight yesterday, it was disclosed today.

Coastal observers said the planes started moving early in relatively small forces and were still flying over at regular intervals until midnight. Then a massive stream of outgoing bombers took to the air and were still streaking out 50 minutes later.

Hint New Type Bomb.

The destruction of one-third of Berlin during the last week was accomplished in part by the use of a new type incendiary bomb, it was intimated in London yesterday as Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propaganda chief, cried out against the unloading of "masses of phosphorus canisters."

Goebbels, in a speech broadcast by the German news agency, DNB, said the allies were mistaken if they thought they could gain a "cheap victory" by casting fire and bombs upon German cities and threatened aerial reprisals against Britain "with interest and double interest."

Air raid sirens sounded in London Sunday night but the all-clear signal was given a few minutes later. During the day British planes battled Nazi raiders which dropped bombs in the southeast coastal area.

The Nazi propagandist told the German people that "feverish industrial preparations for these reprisals" were being made day and night, and when "they crash down on Britain, the British people will be able to thank those who attack our peaceful cities under fog and darkness and rain fire, devastation, suffering, and death on our women and children."

Smother City with Explosives.

"After other great cities, it is now the German capital's turn," Goebbels continued. "The enemy smothers it with high explosive and incendiary bombs, unloading masses of phorphorous canisters on its cultural monuments, hospitals, churches, and workers' districts and gives triumphant expression to the hope that the population will not be able to endure this permanently but will collapse under the strain and thus write finish to the war.

"In the name of the German capital and its people, as well as in the name of the whole German nation, I can give but one reply: Never."

One London air correspondent wrote that incendiary bombs by the thousands were probably unloaded on Berlin and suggested that some of them were of a new type which defy the efforts of fire fighters to put them out. This correspondent also said the R. A. F. had increased the bomb loads of its big bombers by as much as 25 per cent in recent months.

HITLER'S PAPER BOMBED? COMES OUT 5 DAYS LATE

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 28 (AP).—Adolf Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, re-appeared in Stockholm today for the first time since Tuesday, a change in type and reduction in the number of columns from six to five, indicating that its Berlin plant had been bombed out.

News of the raids themselves were relegated to the third page and Hitler's editorials considered this announcement, underscored in red, as the most important in a war torn world:

"Morgenthau establishes Jewish bank to plunder world."

Other Berlin newspapers had also reduced their size to four tabloid pages, without advertising.

12 Boys Freeze to Death in Alpine Snowstorm

BERNE, Switzerland, Nov. 28.—The worst Alpine tragedy since 1870, when 11 climbers died of exposure on Mont Blanc, happened on the same range Wednesday night when 12 boys met death in a snowstorm. They belonged to a youth camp.

THE QUESTION.

What unusual questions have you had to answer for the prospective bride? [Asked of clerks].

WHERE ASKED.

Bride's shop, Marshall Field &Co.

THE ANSWERS.

Mrs. W. F. Saul, 2302 North Kedzie avenue—Many of my customers have asked me if I thought they'd be nervous during the ceremony—and wanted to know what they could do about it. I always tell them it's a consolation to know the bridegroom feels the same way.

Mrs. R. C. Radcliffe, 180 Delaware place—The customer was going to live in a hotel for a while and wanted to know if it was appropriate for her husband to carry her over the threshold then, or when they moved to their home. I said maybe he would carry her both times.

Ellen Anderson, 4826 North St. Louis avenue—Wearing a formal wedding gown for the first time seems to worry many. They want to know what should be done with the train at the reception. They feel better after they rehearse holding it over their arm.

Barbara Harrison, 43 East Elm street—The practical ones try to shop with an eye to the future. They want to know what they can do with the gown after the wedding. Many ask for a dress that would be appropriate for other occasions or could easily be made over.

Mrs. Richard M. Stauffer, 202 East Walton street—It isn't very often that we're expected to answer such questions as "Do you think you could arrange to dress me for a formal chapel wedding before train time?" In less than two hours we have provided a minister, chapel, and everything but the bridegroom.

STEAL WHISKY AND SHAKER.

Herman Grossman, 922 Eastwood avenue, reported to police yesterday that thieves had broken into his car parked at 206 Lake street, taking four shirts, a cocktail shaker, and a quart of whisky.

NAZIS DESPAIR OF REBUILDING BOMBED BERLIN

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 28 (AP).—Neutral correspondents said today that Germany's officials have despaired of immediately rehabilitating Berlin and likely already are performing the nation's administrative functions from other cities.

Despatches from the stricken capital said that Nazi officials will concentrate on restoring the bare services essential to war and to factory workers. They emphasized that food distribution, transportation and water and power facilities still were paralyzed.

Descriptions of life within the shattered metropolis continued to trickle out, meanwhile. Tiergarten park has been converted into a tent city, where women prepare meals under rugs suspended between trees.

Great areas are dead. Flats with walls still standing are unlighted, and their occupants wear hats and overcoats to keep warm. Boards and paper hold back the gusts of cold wind from gaping window openings. Persons with candles are considered extremely fortunate.

One correspondent wrote that Berliners have started walking to work as early as 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning because of the stalled transportation system. The streets are jammed until 6 p. m., he said, but after that, when the people throng into shelters for the night, they are deserted.

"The people of Berlin, as in Hamburg and Cologne, write their names on pieces of ruins and send them to friends," wrote another correspondent. "That is much more effective than all police announcements."

The Stockholms-Tidninger correspondent gave this description of the city and its inhabitants after five straight nights of death and terror:

"During the raids everything seemed so unreal—like a nightmare.

"Some quarters are burned out entirely. There are areas of long streets where everything seems dead. You don't meet a single human being."

5TH ARMY YANKS STORM HEIGHTS IN 2 MILE DRIVE

Capture Positions Above Italian Road.

ALLIED HDQ., Algiers, Nov. 28 (AP).—American troops of the 5th army stormed forward two miles northwest of Montaquila in the central sector of Italy and seized mountain heights commanding the secondary road leading westward from Colli al Volturno thru the German winter defense line, allied headquarters announced today.

This important advance was made on La Falconara mountain, where enemy positions previously had been attacked heavily by American fighter bombers. The Yanks took advantage of the first clear weather in many days to make their drive.

On the hard fought Sangro river front the British 8th army, aided by a powerful air offensive, extended their vital bridgehead. Consolidation and strengthening of the foothold across the river was facilitated by the support of flocks of fighters and bombers which staged a day long offensive against German gun positions and roads, and flew more than 500 sorties.

Nazis Blast 2 Villages.

In the center of the 8th army front British observers reported fires and demolitions in the villages of Villa Santa Maria and Borrello, both on the southeast side of the Sangro, as well as in other small villages across the stream. These were construed as signifying German intention to withdraw from exposed positions.

[Sunday's German war bulletin said, "In the eastern sector of the front fighting flared up again yesterday [Saturday]. The enemy attacked frequently with forces up to battalion strength with tank support; the battles are still in progress. From other sectors of the front lively artillery activity on both sides was reported in the Mediterranean area. Twelve British and North American aircraft were destroyed on Nov. 26 and 27."]

The fiercest air battle of the Mediterranean war theater in recent weeks was fought by American Flying Fortresses and their P-38 Lightning escorts in bombing railway yards and a bridge at the Italian east coast port of Rimini. This force was set upon by 30 to 50 Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs.

Down 7 German Planes.

Fortress gunners blasted down at least seven enemy planes in a 25 minute scrap. Two Fortresses were lost.

Staff Sgts. Ray L. Smith, Vandalia, Ill., and David F. Somerfield, Fond du Lac, Wis., each bagged an ME-109. harbor of Sibenik, and damaged the

Two other raids were carried out by Fortresses. One unescorted formation flew thru storms and clouds to blast bridges and the railroad yards at Grizzana between Bologna and Prato. Another group damaged approaches to bridges over the Reno river at Vergato, 15 miles southwest of Bologna.

Enemy shipping and port facilities on both sides of the Adriatic took a beating from American B-25 Mitchells. They attacked Porto Civitanova on the Italian east coast, destroying warehouses and tearing up railroad yards. On the Jugo-Slav coast they hit a small ship in the harbor of Sibenik, damaged the main quay and smashed warehouses and railroad tracks. Allied losses for all operations of the day were five planes.

The navy made belated announcement that three British destroyers during daylight last Tuesday steamed into the Gulf of Gaeta and successfully bombarded enemy positions north of the Garigliano river.

ACE 3D DIVISION FIGHTS IN ITALY; VETS OF 3 DRIVES

ALLIED HDQ., Algiers, Nov. 28 (AP).—The 3d infantry division, whose doughboys have been hailed by staff officers as the finest in the American army, was officially disclosed today to be fighting as part of the 5th army in Italy.

Most of its men are from Oregon, Washington, and California, but it also numbers hundreds from Michigan, Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, and other states. The division was one of the first to be trained for amphibious operations, and has made more landings against the enemy than any other unit in the Mediterranean theater.

[This dispatch did not identify the 3d division commander, but its leader in Sicily was Maj. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott Jr.]

The 3d first crashed into action a year ago on the beaches of Fedala as the main striking force of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton Jr.'s western task force and subdued French Morocco in three days of fighting.

One of First in Sicily.

The division was held in reserve in Morocco during most of the Tunisian campaign. It finally was sent to the battlefront, but the Nazis surrendered before it could get into line.

When Patton sent his 7th army across the Sicilian beaches last July, the 3d division landed at Licata and conquered 500 square miles in Sicily in the first three days. The wearers of the blue and white striped shoulder patch then turned north and after fighting across the mountains beat the famed 2d armored division into Palermo.

The 3d carried the ball most of the way on the long night thru the hills from Palermo to Messina, and one battalion made two amphibious landings behind enemy lines to crack the entrenched Germans.

The 3d was sent to Italy shortly after the Salerno beachhead was secured, and held most of the rugged sector of the American front for an extended period.

45TH IN SALERNO LANDING

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Nov. 27 [Delayed].—The anonymity of the 45th division which fought in the thick of the battle for the Salerno beachhead was lifted today. It was the 45th whose threat to the German flank along the Sele river and whose firm stand on the critical night of Sept. 13-14 contributed as much as anything to saving the beachhead from being a Dunkirk without ships.

The 45th originally was a national guard outfit from Oklahoma and other southwestern states. It had nearly 2,000 Indians from 52 tribes when the war began. Its emblem once was a swastika, but this was changed to the totemistic thunderbird now worn in yellow on a red background as a shoulder patch. However, there have been so many replacements from New York and New England that the second largest group of men now in the division are from New York.

The 45th fought in Sicily up to "bloody ridge" before Santo Stefano on the northern coast after which the 3d division took over. The 45th embarked for Italy the night of Sept. 7-8, went onto the beach on the left of the 36th [Texas] division and fought on the critical axis of the whole beachhead—between the Sele and Calore rivers thru Persano. One unit was trapped by the Germans and after two days as the "lost battalion" fought its way out.

NEW AIR FIELDS IN BRITAIN TO COST 2½ BILLIONS

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—About two and one-half billion dollars are being spent to expand the joint British-American air offensive from Britain, which reached a new peak of destructive intensity only last week, the air ministry news service announced today.

Of the total, about 552 millions will be spent on air fields and depots for the United States 8th air force.

ARMY TELLS 'ALMOST INCREDIBLE' FEAT OF YANK UNIT IN SICILY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—An infantry battalion of the 45th division has executed an "almost incredible" feat of stamina, courage, and sheer zest for courage, the war department reported today.

Within six days after seizing a Sicilian beachhead, the battalion, commanded by Lt. Col. Clarence B. Cochran of Okemah, Okla., assisted in the capture of a vital airport, captured an enemy tank park together with a large number of prisoners, fought off numerous counterattacks, and marched 36 miles in 48 hours, then fought and won an engagement.

That accomplished, the battalion took a brief rest, then surged forward in another action during which it captured 14 tanks, a fleet of trucks, and 470 prisoners.

In another engagement, a platoon, pinned down by fire from machine guns and 88 millimeter pieces, was counter-attacked by a Mark VI. enemy tank. Eight men were riding the tank and shooting, others walked on the flanks. The platoon was behind a stone wall. At 50 yards, the platoon opened up with anti-tank grenades, damaging the tank's turret. The platoon won the engagement with only two casualties against 18 enemy troops killed.

GERMANS KNOW THEY CAN'T WIN, SAYS AIR CHIEF

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, 8th airforce fighter command chief, asserted in a broadcast to the United States today that the Germans already know they can't win.

"The enemy can fight back cleverly with limited resources, but he can't win against the hammer blows of an airforce which will continue to grow while his is wiped out," the general continued.

"Our pilots' morale is getting higher while German pilots' morale has nowhere to go but downhill. Already we can see the German weakening in the air whenever the weather permits us to carry out sustained operations."

Mayor of Nice; Fascist Member, Assassinated

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 28 (AP).—Dr. Tourtou, mayor of Nice and a member of the political bureau of the French Popular party, a Fascist group, was assassinated Nov. 24, the newspaper Le Cri du Peuple said today.

PARTISANS BEAT BACK NAZI ARMY IN FIUME REGION

Inland Guerrilla Forces Quicken Blows.

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—Gen. Josip [Tito] Broz's Partisan guerrilla forces have hurled back Marshal Erwin Rommel's Nazi tropps in clashes along the Jugo-Slav coast southeast of Fiume, an army of liberation breadcast said today.

Deep inland, where there is no front line and where the war is made up largely of swift, bloody guerrilla thrusts, Tito's announcement said his forces had quickened their blows aimed at inflicting as much damage as possible on German positions and supplies before winter slows their activities.

The defenders said they had absorbed the blows of Nazi forces piercing downward along the coast in the direction of Novi and Senj, opposite the Adriatic island of Krk [Veglia], then had seized the initiative and in a series of sharp lashes had forced the enemy into retreat toward the northwest. Fighting was said to be continuing at Crikvenica, 15 miles southeast of Fiume, where the Germans were making a stand.

Keep Up Strong Resistance.

On Krk, Cherso, and Lussin, rocky island guardians to Fiume's approaches, the Jugo-Slavs said they were putting up strong resistance despite assaults by overwhelming forces put ashore several days ago. The islanders' defenders have held out for weeks since sea borne Nazi forces established their first bridgeheads.

Tito announced that Kosyeric, Serbian village about 70 miles east of Sarajevo, had fallen to one of his inland warrior bands, and described stepped up forays in the interior of Montenegro, Bosnia, Croatia, and Slovenia. Fighting was reported from Dalmatia, where a German column is thrusting toward Skoplje.

The Berlin radio claimed the capture of Kladanj, a central Bosnian town, and said mopping up action against guerillas concentrating near Glina, Croatian town south of Zagreb, was making progress.

Mopped Up, Germans Say.

Some of the Dalmatian Islands lying off Zara, southeast of Krk, Cherso, and Lussin, were mopped up and quantities of war material, largely of Italian origin, were captured, the Berlin broadcast went on. Berlin said three British officers were among 1,000 Partisans killed.

Berlin quoted Croatian press reports as saying that in Adriatic provinces "now returned to Croatia," Italian troops during their occupation had imprisoned "about 100,000 Croats and 40,000 Slovenes, and of these more than 90,000 died."

The approach of winter finds guerrilla forces pushed from most of the Adriatic coast they seized after Italy's fall, but still playing a considerable part in the allied over-all strategy. Nazi divisions sorely needed elsewhere have been pinned down, and the loosely knit guerrilla bands apparently will remain a threat to German positions thruout the winter.

An allied nations broadcast from Algiers, describing the support given the guerillas by allied air forces, said Jugo-Slavia and Albania have been bombed 32 times within the last 23 days.

British Home Guards Man Anti-Aircraft Guns

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The British home guard has taken over so many of Britain's anti-aircraft batteries from the regular army, it was disclosed today, that when a raider is shot down by fire from the ground, the chances are 100 to 1 that the gunner is a home guard man. Altho anti-aircraft gunnery demands a high standard of physical fitness, there are many veterans from the last war among some of the batteries. Their incorporation into the anti-aircraft batteries has made possible the release of thousands of regular soldiers.

CHANGTEH HOLDS OUT UNDER FIRE FROM ALL SIDES

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 29 [Monday]—(AP).—Desperate Japanese attempts to capture the Changteh gateway to Changsha were reported today by the Chinese high command. The city's defenders, pressed on all sides, were declared holding out against incessant artillery and air bombardment.

The Chinese said previously that they had surrounded a large force of Japanese in northern Hunan province, in which Changteh is situated, and were fighting to liquidate them.

The high command charged the Japanese with using poison gas on 13 occasions Friday, but said the Chinese had fought back and annihilated more than 2,000 of the invaders. Sunday, the enemy attack was blunted and Changteh still remained in Chinese hands.

Morocco Banker Jailed for Sending Vichy Gold

ALGIERS, Nov. 28 (AP).—Two directors of the state bank of Morocco who were arrested last August on charges of routing bank gold to Vichy by way of Lisbon were sentenced today by the Rabat correctional tribunal. Director Pabst was sentenced to one year in prison and fined 10,000 francs, while former Director De Saubry was fined 5,000 francs on a charge of corresponding with persons in enemy occupied territory.

AEGEAN ISLANDS HELP NAZIS AS REIN ON TURKEY

Loss of Leros Is Allied Blow, Says Lanza.

[This is the second article on matters of military importance in the Aegean sea.]

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

When the armistice with Italy was announced on Sept. 9, Hitler already had been able to do much to meet the new situation. His troops in Sicily had been successfully withdrawn, and additional troops were in Italy, or en route there. It was not until later that he had troops to send to the Balkans, and still later before any were available for the Aegean sea.

In the meantime, things happened in the Aegean. Forewarned, the Germans on Crete rather easily overpowered the Italians. In time these Germans were reënforced. The Germans on Rhodes, who were few in number, broke down the resistance of the much larger Italian force by sheer audacity and courage, and held that island until they in turn were reënforced.

Serious Blow for British.

The British commander, Gen. Henry Maitland Wilson, was over in Egypt. He represented allied interests in the Aegean. Promptly on Sept. 9, he radioed instructions to the Italian garrisons on the Aegean Islands to place themselves under his orders. The Italians were willing, and Gen. Wilson flew in British troops, who landed on Kos, Leros, and Samos, besides some less important islands. The British took over peacefully. Leros was most useful to them on account of its naval base.

It was about a month later before Hitler had troops available to retake these islands. The first German attempt was against Kos. This was selected because it was the nearest British held island to the air fields of North Africa.

When this fell, it was difficult for the British to furnish air support to the other islands, which were attacked in turn, one at a time. Leros was a distinct loss to the British, for its naval base was important. Samos was the largest of the British held islands, and the last to fall. Now, once more, all the Aegean Islands, except the small Turkish group, are under Hitler's control.

Turkey Leans to Allies.

But the most important islands are still that outer belt of Crete, Scarpanto, and Rhodes.

Both sides to the present war would like to have Turkey join their side. Turkey so far has declined to join either side, altho showing a decided preference for the allies. This, of course, Germany knows. She has had to provide against the possibility that Turkey some day will join the allies.

Should this happen, the first German reaction would seem to be to attack the straits of the Dardanelles and Bosphorus. The land connection of the Dardanelles is only 50 miles from the Meric river, where axis troops are watching. Istanbul is 120 miles from the Bulgarian frontier. Bulgaria is supposed to have at least 12 divisions ready to dash toward this great city.

It would greatly aid an axis land attack against the straits to have German air fleets operate from the belt of islands off the Turkish coast. From these bases they would be excellently placed to attack troops and supplies en route to the defense of the straits.

More Pressure Needed.

Whether the Germans, if they entered Istanbul, would be content to hold solely the European side of the straits is not known. This would suffice to deny the use of the straits to the allies. But an advance this far seems fairly certain. Turkey realizes this situation, and has doubts as to whether the allies could rescue the straits in time. For the German held Aegean islands probably would prevent the allied fleets from sailing thru the Aegean, or their air fleets from flying over it, and an advance overland across all of Asia Minor would require considerable time.

For this, as well as some other reasons, Turkey is not desirous of entering the war. Notwithstanding recent predictions that she soon would do so, this is not likely unless considerably more pressure is applied to Turkey than has yet been dared.

As long as Turkey remains neutral and keeps the straits closed, the Germans are satisfied.

Help to Isolate Turkey.

This is why the Aegean islands are valuable. In German hands they are a heavy weight enforcing Turkish neutrality by isolating her one great territorial prize—Istanbul and the straits.

It is to be regretted that the British attempt to seize the belt of islands close to Asia Minor has failed. Had the outer belt of Crete and Rhodes been seized before the German reënforcements arrived, the coast belt might have been held, and this would have furnished a way from the allied bases in Africa directly toward Istanbul.

KEEPING APPOINTMENTS WITH CONVOYS

In a day's combat, an infantry division fires about 300 tons of ammunition... 100 37 mm. anti-aircraft guns, 127½ tons... and the thousands of army vehicles "passing the ammunition" and other supplies each burn up an average of 10 gallons of gasoline...

All of these materials—the guns, the "gas", the ammunition, the vehicles—plus 700,000 other different military items—must come by sea.

A gigantic supply task without parallel in the history of the nation, this job calls for the finest coordination of American railroads with ships.

The railroads must bring everything to ship sidings exactly as needed—and when needed. Any slip, any delay, may hold up a convoy sailing.

So keeping appointments with convoys is one of the most important jobs railroads have these days.

If pushing a "convoy train" through ahead of your passenger train caused you to be a little late for an early-morning business appointment, the Pennsylvania Railroad feels sure you will gladly overlook it. The demands of war must have not only railroad equipment—but the right-of-way!

FRONT SURGEONS MAKE ANYTHING DO FOR HOSPITAL

Cottage, Cave or Tent May Serve Purpose.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE 5TH ARMY IN ITALY, Nov. 26 [Delayed].—It was wet and cold in the little Italian village. But in a peasant cottage a warm fire glowed in the fireplace as Maj. Ivan J. Roggen of Maurice, Ia., spoke gravely on the efforts of American doctors to bring relief and mercy to our fighting men.

Roggen, formerly on the staff of the Iowa Methodist hospital at Des Moines, is chief medical officer attached to a front line unit.

Inside the front door of the 'cottage was the receiving room. The dining room contained stores and medical equipment. Upstairs was the ward and operating room. The town was within enemy artillery range, and the big guns boomed across the valley as Roggen talked.

Litters Long on the Way.

"It's not been easy but we've done the best we could," he said. "From those heights it takes anywhere from several hours to a full day to bring in the litters a distance of six miles. We've never lost anybody because of delay but we've had complications because of the time it takes to get the wounded properly cared for.

"We can't spare men on the line to carry litters, and usually we use civilians. But I remember the day there were two direct hits by enemy artillery near a path. The civilians ran away and we pulled men from foxholes to carry their comrades down the hill.

"Honestly I believe the litter bearers have the worst time of all. They can't hurry, and must travel on difficult trails. Sometimes they have to crawl thru underbrush and often under terrific German shell fire."

Forward Units in Tents.

Roggen spoke casually of feats of brain, abdominal, and bone surgery performed within the cracked walls of the cottage.

The young doctor is one of many who have followed American troops into the Appenines, establishing stations wherever the fate and fortunes of war dictate—farm houses, caves, and urban dwellings. Forward units operating in tents have male nurses. Farther back, also under tents, are women nurses who have won great respect from seasoned American soldiers for their refusal to accept favors and for their insistance on enduring the same hardships as the men.

This country is as rough as any found in all Italy. Supplies and materials have to be carried to the front on mule pack train. The Station on Mountainside.

Roggen is a veteran, but shrugging off his own efforts, he told about Capt. Charles Pack of Milan, Tenn., who established a forward aid station halfway up a mountain side during fighting for the peak, to bring medical care to the wounded faster. Pack found an abandoned farm house before the start of the fighting and stocked it with instruments, bandages, and plasma.

Roggen also told proudly of an intrepid young private attached to his unit, Robert Hershey of Hillsboro, N. C., who obtained permission from an army general to lead ambulance drivers part way up the mountain to evacuate the wounded after the drivers, following previous orders, had refused because of the shelling.

"It's impracticable for ambulances to go too far, because we can't afford their loss," Roggen said. "These drivers were within their rights since they had been ordered not to go farther.

Doesn't Lose an Ambulance.

"Still Hershey is from mountain country and he believed he could lead them thru. When the drivers refused he appealed to a general standing near-by who asked him if he were sure he could make it. Hershey said he was sure. The general told him to go ahead. He did, too, without losing an ambulance."

"Have you had any unusual cases?" Roggen was asked.

"Yes," he said. "One I remember. An Italian came to our station a few days ago and told of an American wounded in the hills. We went with him several miles and every time we asked whether the American was really hit, he assured us it was so. Finally we got to a ramshackle farm house, and he brought out his cow whose tail had been knocked off by shrapnel. He said he wanted it fixed by American doctors. Since then we've been more careful about following Italian tipsters."

LINK VON PAPEN TO FRESH WAVE OF PEACE TALK

Nazi Envoy Reported Seeking Vatican Aid.

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

BERNE, Switzerland, Nov. 28.—Armed with credentials from economic and army groups in Germany—the former headed by the Saar valley magnate, Hermann Roechling, and the former reichsbank president, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, and the latter by Gen. Fritz Erich von Mannstein—Franz von Papen, Germany's "negotiator extraordinary" is reliably reported to be in Rome, where he is awaiting a private audience with Pope Pius XII. Von Papen, a Catholic and a papal chamberlain, it is understood, enjoys a favorable reputation in Vatican circles.

Italian and German frontier reports state that the diplomat arrived in Rome last night by plane from Munich after a lengthy conference with economic leaders and the minister of finance.

Berlin Issues Disclaimer.

Simultaneously with the revelation of the peace rumors, which caused a sensation in Basle, Zurich, and international financial circles, the official German news agency DNB tonight issued a disclaimer of "any peace feeler negotiations."

[The Swiss newspaper Basler Nachrichten first reported last Thursday in a dispatch from the Swiss border town of Chiasso that Pope Pius had undertaken a mission of mediation between Germany and the allies. Various other reports on peace moves have cropped up since the R. A. F. began its heaviest bombardment of Berlin, and since reports from London have stressed that a meeting of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, and Joseph Stalin, and perhaps even Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China might be imminent.]

Urges Hungary to Seek Peace.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 28 (AP).—Hungary should try to make peace, and no longer is bound by the three power axis pact, Parliament Deputy Zsilinczsky declared in a sensational statement during debate Saturday on the foreign ministry budget, a Budapest dispatch said today.

Hungary can get out of the war without breaking her word, since Italy's capitulation invalidated the tri-power pact, he said, urging that the first step be withdrawal of Hungarian troops still on Russian soil.

The dispatch said loud applause from the opposition parties greeted the statement.

[A Cairo broadcast, quoting Ankara reports, said today that five Rumanian divisions had gone home from Russia, with three sailing from the Crimea and two from Odessa. United States government monitors recorded the broadcast.]

Vatican Asks Air Safety.

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—The Berlin radio broadcast a Rome dispatch today saying the pope had asked belligerent nations to respect an "air neutrality" over Vatican City.

115 Taverns and Liquor Stores Ordered Closed

A total of 115 taverns and liquor stores in the city were ordered closed yesterday by the police department when the establishments failed to renew their liquor licenses by the deadline of midnight Saturday.

SECOND BLAZE AT NOTRE DAME WITHIN A WEEK

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 28 [Special].—Fire damaged the university carpenter shop tonight in the second serious blaze on the Notre Dame campus within a week. University and South Bend fire companies were engaged for several hours in bringing the flames under control.

The shop adjoins the old press building which was partly burned last Tuesday. A third fire in the same group of buildings was extinguished by a sprinkler system two weeks ago.

The cause of tonight's blaze was undetermined and no estimate of the amount of damage was made.

SEES STREAMS OF U. S. TRUCKS GOING THRU KIEV

Vehicles Help Reds Meet Zhitomir Onslaught.

BY EDDY GILMORE.

KIEV, Russia, Nov. 28 (AP).—American made trucks and jeeps in large numbers are pouring down the roads west of Kiev bearing implements of war which the Red army is throwing against furious Nazi counter-attacks in the Zhitomir sector.

Here in my hotel I got a fine view of the procession. I came here yesterday with a group of American and British correspondents on the first trip to this Ukrainian capital by any foreigners since the Red army hurled the Germans westward after more than two years of Nazi occupation.

From the time we arrived we heard the rumble outside our window of the trucks going by. Quite often the rumble turned into a roar. The trucks bore great loads. The Red army is fighting a great battle of supply in the Zhitomir sector.

Nazis Have Great Power.

From every one who comes into the city from the west we get the same story—the Nazis have a great weight of tanks and mobile guns operating in this area and are doing all in their power to hold up the Russians and then drive them back.

From a soldier who is a native of Zhitomir we learned that many forests surround the city and, as soviet dispatches which announced the capture of Zhitomir said, the Red army used abundant cavalry in its seizure.

The belief is that these advance units chased the Germans from the city with swords and tommy guns and then proceeded to occupy it with only advanced forces. The Germans recaptured Zhitomir and attacked toward Kiev.

View Scenes of Battles.

From the beginning of our trip, we got a good idea of how American built transport can work in capable Russian hands and how it is playing a part in helping the Red army win the war.

The wind howled and shrieked over Moscow's airport as we gathered for the trip. As soon as we sat down we saw that our plane was an American built transport, and new.

Down below us during the flight lay an eloquent story of great battles of the early summer. Between Tula and Orel were a hundred burned out and battered tanks.

Kursk still is something of a mess because of the German destruction, but from the air you can see it coming to life. Smoke pours from the factories, and streets once choked with rubble are taking shape. Trains are moving thru Kursk with seeds and farm implements from far away places.

Rail Lines Rebuilt.

We head toward Kiev. The sun is shining brightly now and it picked out the railways and made the rails glisten. Russian railway workers have done a marvelous job. Here and there you still see burned and blasted boxcars lying alongside the lines, but trains are puffing along.

On either side of the railways are the broad, black steppe lands. Thousands of these rich acres already are under cultivation.

We swoop over hundreds of little villages trying to live again, but great fires started by battle and German torches has laid waste most of them. The struggle to live is so strong and the Russian people can take so much that they have returned to their homes from the woods and now there is hardly a single burned out shanty from which smoke from a chimney is not streaming.

Eat Well at Village.

Finally we sight an airport at a little village in the Ukraine and we land. We eat in what once was a schoolhouse, and it doesn't seem to bother these Russian women and a Georgian cook that we descended on them past midnight. They turn out a meal of eggs, steak, and potatoes with a lashing of vodka.

Breakfast is early and excellent, and we set out for Kiev. My transport is an American truck. We bump along at a fast pace. Ukrainian peasants line the road but most of them are girls or women. We bounce thru many little villages. Virtually all of them are burned, but new houses already are begun.

We near the Desna river and the country gets more wooded. Along the side of the road I see one of the most forlorn sights in the world —a yellow can that had contained Chicago made Vienna sausage.

We cross the Desna on a strong wooden bridge which Red army engineers built in haste. You see how tough a job it was. There are 1,000 little foxholes which the Russians had to dig as they fought, all in full view of the Germans on the high bank opposite them.

FINDS MEAGER EVIDENCE OF KIEV MASSACRE

BY W. H. LAWRENCE.

[Correspondent of the New York Times.]

KIEV, Russia, Oct. 22 [Delayed]. —Kiev authorities asserted today that the Germans machine gunned an estimated 50,000 to 80,000 Kiev Jewish men, women, and children in late September, 1941, and two years later—when Kiev's recapture by the Red army seemed imminent—forced soviet war prisoners to burn all of the bodies, completely destroying all evidence of this crime.

This was the story told today to the Kiev atrocity commission and a group of Anglo-American-soviet correspondents in bleak Babi Yar, deep in a ravine northwest of Kiev where the massacre allegedly occurred.

On the basis of what we saw it is impossible for this correspondent to judge the truth or falsity of the story we were told. It is the contention of the Kiev authorities that the Germans not only burned bodies and clothing but crumbled bones, and shot and burned the bodies of war prisoners participating in the burning. If this was the German intent they succeeded well for there is little evidence in the ravine to prove or disprove the story.

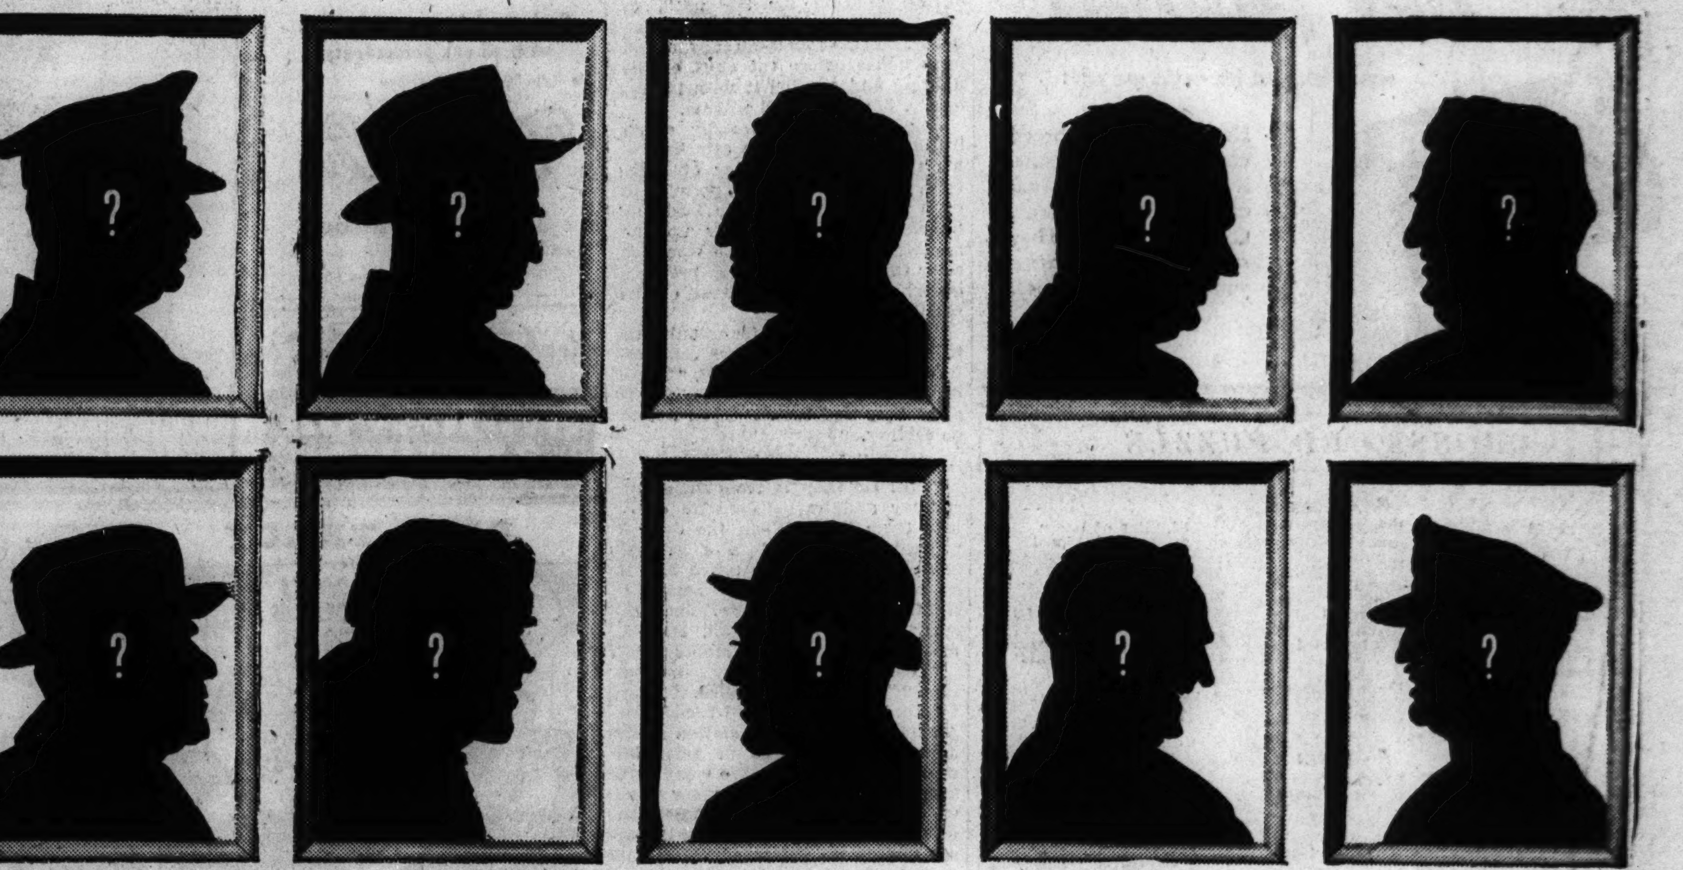
DO YOU KNOW THE NAMES OF

The 10 most important leaders in the world's most powerful nation?



AMERICAN LEADERSHIP has never been so vital as today. On the eve of the second anniversary of Pearl Harbor, the names of a few outstanding leaders stand out in bold relief... military men, government officials and business or labor leaders who have helped bring this nation from a militarily weak state to that of the greatest military and economic power the world has ever known.

Because of the vital significance of American leadership, both today and for the future, Newsweek has put the following question to some 65 distinguished American editors, historians and news correspondents:

¶Who, in your opinion, are the ten Americans —in government, the armed forces or civil life—who have made the greatest contribution of leadership to the nation during the first two years of our formal participation in the war?

How would you answer this question? It's a question as stimulating as it is important to be able to answer.

For the core of a democracy's strength is its leadership. Leadership that is not constrained by force, but that is chosen by the free will of the people... or that comes about naturally through the sheer ability of the individual.

As a part of the free press which makes it possible for a democratic people to evaluate its leadership, Newsweek will present a comprehensive review of America's two years of war in the December 6th issue. Keynote of this section will be the names of America's ten outstanding leaders, along with the names of the men who chose them.

This Thursday, when the December 6th issue of Newsweek appears on the newsstands, a Newsweek advertisement will appear in this paper—announcing the ten leaders selected, for the benefit of those who are unable to obtain a copy of Newsweek. If you are able to get a copy, please share it with as many friends as possible.

THE SECOND ANNIVERSARY OF PEARL HARBOR

Two years of war have wrought mighty changes in the United States. These changes—and their significance—are the theme of a special section of the December 6th Newsweek. Feature of the section will be pictures and stories describing the ten men who have helped most in transforming the United States from a weakling to a military colossus. This section will also include a graphic presentation of production; the growth of our Army, Navy and Air Force; the cost of war and shipments of lend-lease; and the nation's far-flung battle-fronts. This review is particularly important for every thinking American to read. If you can't get a copy, make every effort to borrow one from a friend.

REDS WIN KEY RAIL TOWN ON ROAD TO MINSK

Nazis Claim Recapture of Korosten.

LONDON, Nov. 28 (AP).—Russian armies swept tonight toward the German main defense wall in White Russia, capturing some 200 communities in 24 hours, Moscow announced, but the Nazis claimed recapture of Korosten, stronghold on the Russian salient 45 miles north of Zhitomir.

A major prize in the soviet push was a key rail junction nearly 30 miles northwest of Gomel on the road to Minsk, according to the Moscow-broadcast Russian war bulletin.

The capture of this point meant that Gen. Constantine Rokossovsky was rapidly straightening his line after seizing Gomel, and battering at German forces, estimated as high as 300,000, left in the Gomel salient.

Reds Hold in South.

To the south, the Moscow bulletin pictured Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's army holding firm against Nazi tank and infantry assaults near Korosten, and midway between Zhitomir and Kiev.

Advices from Moscow indicated the Russians were pouring columns of reënforcements into that sector.

The German announcement told of encircling and wiping out the soviet defenders of Korosten, 75 miles northwest of Kiev, without admitting that the Russians ever had taken the town. It declared the Russians "who temporarily penetrated the eastern part of the town were wiped out despite desperate resistance."

"German statements are very reserved," he said, "and it appears as if German units have so far occupied only parts of the town."

Nazis Claim Successes.

Another Berlin radio broadcast said the Germans won local successes west of Gomel and southwest of Krichev, and "at other points, soviet attacks were smashed."

Moscow reported that Gen. Rokossovsky's plunge northwest of Gomel swept up 150 villages, and offensives striking along the lower reaches of the Berezina and Pripet rivers, west and southwest of Gomel, punched deeper into Nazi defenses.

It said 24 communities were taken along the lower Berezina—the river of Napoleon's final disaster in Russia just 131 years ago today—and seven along the Pripet river, in the sector northeast of Korosten.

Meanwhile, soviet forces struck deeper into the Dnieper bend. Several enemy strongholds were seized despite Nazi counter-attacks southwest of Kremenchug, and Red army troops cutting southwest of Dnepropetrovsk overran 15 other villages, the bulletin said.

JEWS DEMAND REVOCATION OF PALESTINE EDICT

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—The national labor committee for Palestine today adopted a resolution demanding the revocation of the British white paper prohibiting immigration in force into Palestine after next March.

Cessation of "attacks" in the Palestine Jewish community and appointment of an interparliamentary body to investigate the activities of the British government in Palestine were other demands embodied in the resolution, directed to President Roosevelt, congress and to the allies, and adopted at the closing session of the committee's 20th anniversary convention.

The committee declared that international promises made to the Jewish people following World War I. "are still being ignored by the Palestine representatives of the British mandatory government."

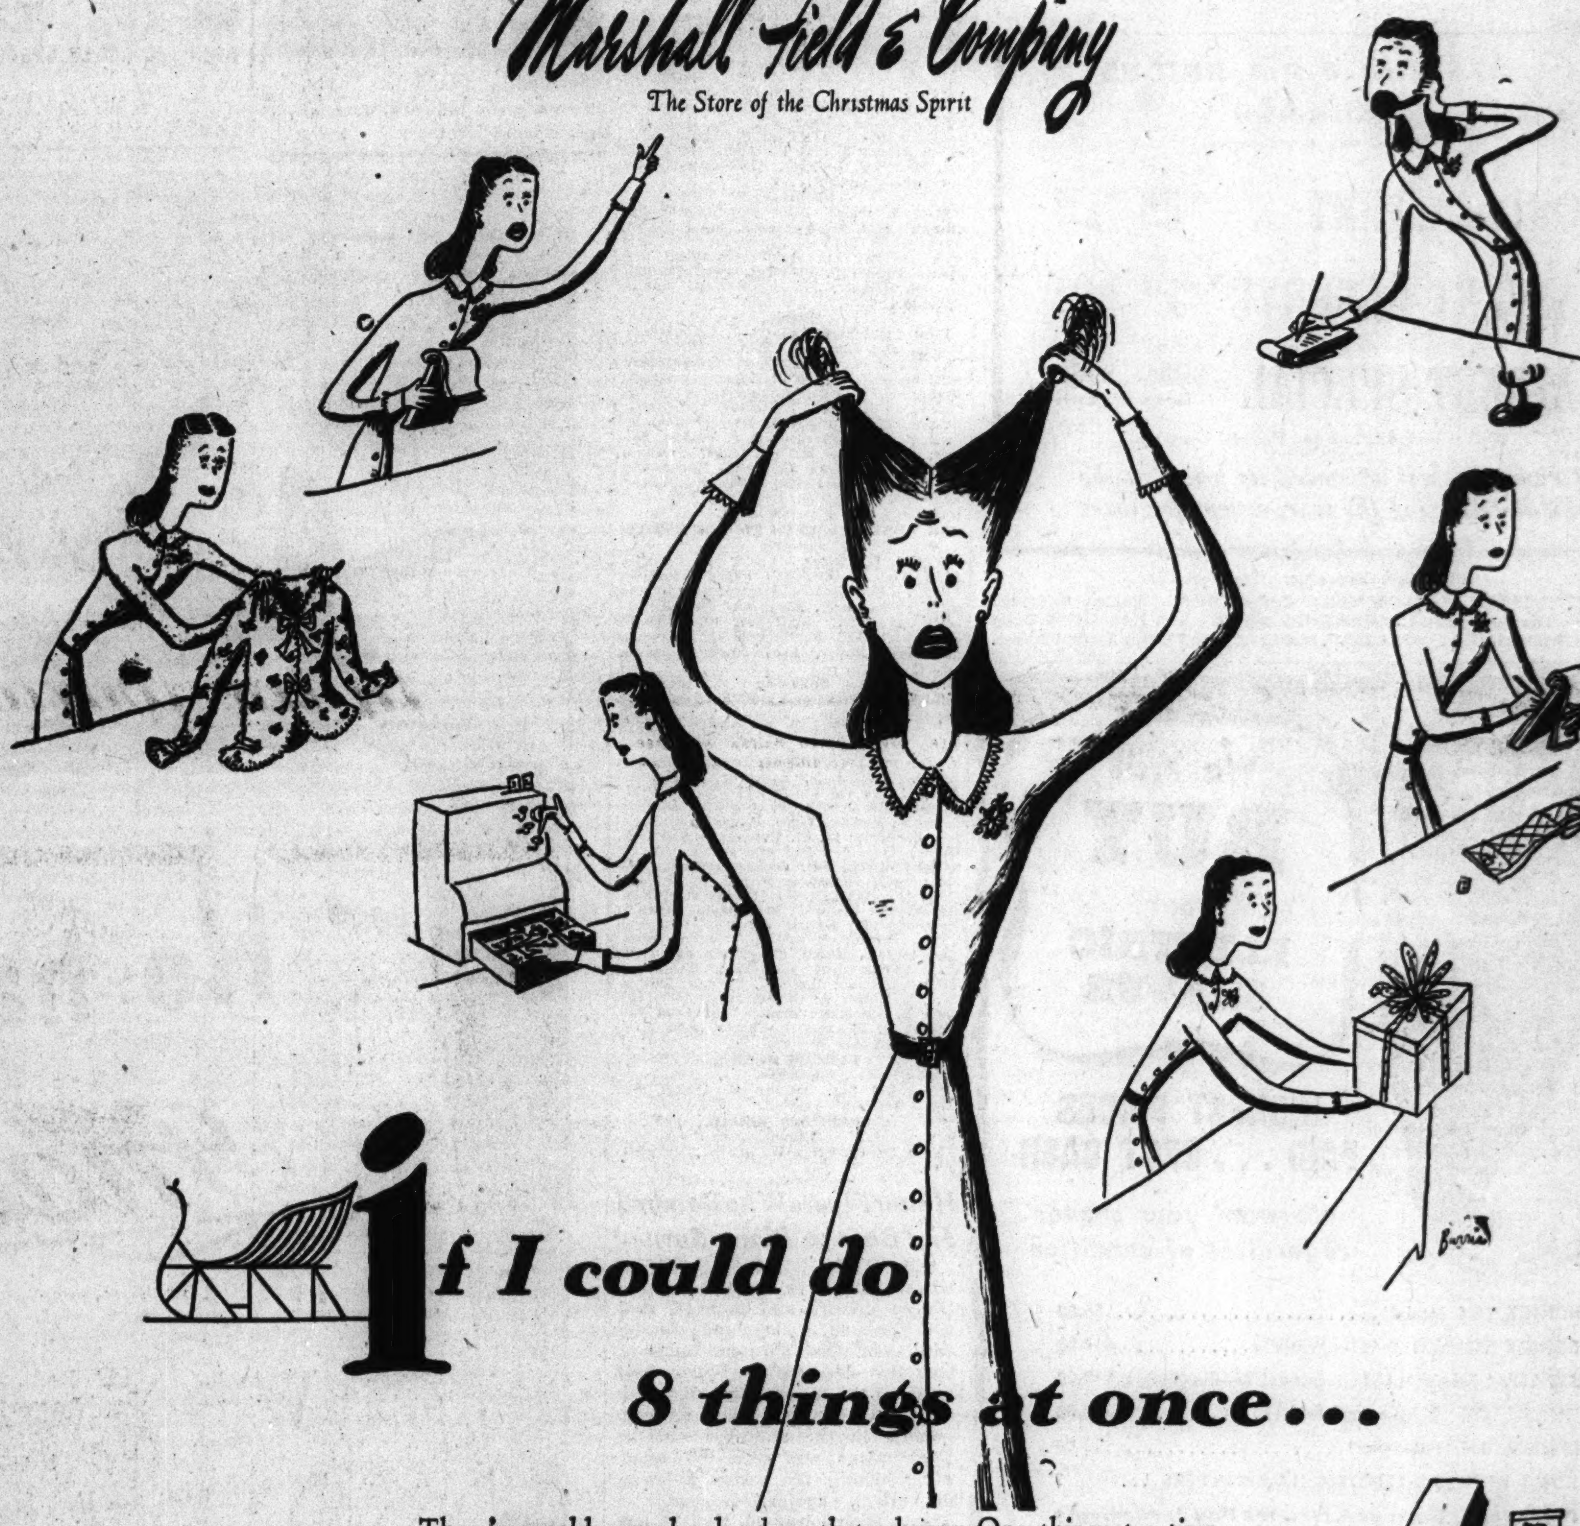
The Store of the Christmas Spirit



If I could do 8 things at once...

There's an old copy-book adage that advises: One thing at a time..., But our salespeople have had to throw that out for the duration—they're doing 3 or 4 or 5 things at once—and wishing they could do 8. We know you have to wait—and we're sorry. We're not making deliveries as we could and did during the years of peace—and we're sorry for that, too. We hate having to say that something you want isn't available. But we're keeping this the Store of the Christmas Spirit, trying to maintain the quality of our service, if not the amount. It is with great pride in our people and the job they're doing that we ask your help and understanding—ask you also to look upward to the 2,679 stars on our Service Flag.

HAVE A HEART... HERE ARE 8 THINGS YOU CAN DO

- Shop with a list—have a second choice, and a third.
- Try to look at gifts on display and make your selection before the salesperson gets to you.
- Allow salesperson to divide her time between you and another customer.
- Know the correct size—know correct mailing addresses.
- Use your charga-plate—save time and error.
- Be patient with new and inexperienced salespeople.
- Carry as many packages as you can—this saves double handling.
- Come early in the day—we can give you so much better service before noon!

"To the man who asked for Calvert and went away... mad!"

"YESTERDAY was a tough day in my liquor store. I had to tell a lot of customers that I didn't have the brand they asked for—but that more was expected in a few days.

It's not pleasant to have to disappoint anyone. But worst of all is to have someone leave my store thinking that I am to blame—or that the distillers are to blame for the scarcity of liquor.

When you get right down to it—there is only one real reason for low liquor stocks. It's the war. And I don't have a single customer who doesn't honestly agree that the war comes first.

I know for a fact that Calvert hasn't distilled whiskey for over a year. All they are distilling is war alcohol for munitions, rubber and medical supplies.

I still get some Calvert Whiskey to sell. But I don't get as much as I could use, because every drop of it is being drawn from irreplaceable reserves which must last till more can be distilled.

And even if I did get twice as much Calvert these days—it wouldn't be enough to go around, because more and more people are asking for Calvert. They know it is prewar quality in every way.

If you'll keep asking for Calvert, I'll keep trying to supply you. I still get my fair share delivered to me. You may count on me to try to portion it fairly to my customers."

He has a date with an Ingersoll

TIMED TO 1/100TH OF A SECOND!

WHEN "Mr. Nazi" comes calling, up go thousands of shells to greet him . . . and strew his sky-path with deadly blossoms of bursting steel! To make sure those "blossoms" explode right on time, each ack ack shell carries its own private "watch". This "watch" (or fuse) explodes the shell just at the split-second calculated to do most damage. Every Ingersoll is checked to an accuracy of 1/100th of a second. Each of these "watches" has over one hundred parts and to make them in needed quantities Ingersoll linked perfect precision to mass production.

Ingersoll time engineers foresee great advances in manufacture of fine watches and clocks when Victory is won.

Not so long ago fine watch making meant a patient, painstaking, skilled craftsman must spend a week—or perhaps a month or more—on a single watch.

But time and the war have changed things. Research developed American machines that "see" better than the human eye—"measure" more accurately than the human brain—"do" more quickly than any human hands.

Ingersoll time engineers applied this new manufacturing skill to the mass production of fine precision instruments for our army, navy and air forces. And therein lies the promise that America will lead the world in making fine watches and clocks after Victory . . . just as Ingersoll led the world in 1892 by introducing the famous Ingersoll watch of which more than one hundred and fifty millions have been purchased.

Today's Watchword Is Victory
Tomorrow's Will Be . . . Watch Ingersoll!

Thousands of American soldiers and sailors are paying for Victory with their lives. Let's not stint on buying our share of war bonds.

INACTIVE TROOPS BLAMED FOR LAX BRITISH MORALS

Hundreds of Girls Accost Free Spending Yanks.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The presence of hundreds of thousands of allied troops bored by inaction thru years of standing by in Britain is held responsible in many quarters for the general lowering of moral standards which has been alarming the press and public.

Some Canadians, Poles, and Frenchmen have been here nearly four years, while many Americans came as long as 18 months ago.

The Americans come in for the largest share of criticism because they have plenty of money and spend it more freely than is customary in Britain. Some girls of questionable character are unable to resist the temptation to pick up $15 or $20 nightly from soldiers, it is explained.

$8 Enough for Two Days.

While most American authorities take the view that nothing is too good for the soldier, some believe the amenities available in London leave the troops with too much loose cash. The Yank on leave in London can get a room with bathing facilities for 40 cents at the Red Cross clubs, breakfast for 30 cents and free tickets to theaters and other entertainment. It has been estimated a soldier could have an interesting 48 hour leave at a cost of $8.

Because of the government's policy of frowning on criticism of allies, the British press treats the subject with caution, but there is a great deal of talk about it.

British and American authorities are coöperating in attempts to clean up London's hot spots.

Venereal Disease Widespread.

British broadcasts have called attention to the "disgrace of Piccadilly" and Norman Sargent, vice chairman of the Alliance of Honor, said recently that venereal disease is assuming the proportions of an epidemic.

The London News Chronicle recently sent two British reporters into Piccadilly Circus to conduct an all night investigation. Here are extracts from their report:

"5 to 6 p. m.—Still daylight. Groups of well dressed women standing at the junction of Bond street and Piccadilly and Regent street and Piccadilly. We saw three women accost seven United States officers. A great number of younger girls, many not more than 17 years old, in groups in Shaftesbury avenue and Coventry street.

"7 to 8 p. m.—Darkness. We walked thru Green park, St. James's park and Hyde park. In all these places couples were lying on the grass. In St. James's park we counted 11 couples. At a later hour there were more in all three parks.

Girls Clutter Street Corners.

"11 p. m. to Midnight.—Hundreds of girls standing on the pavements, leaning against the walls of Coventry street and cluttering the corners of streets adjoining Shaftesbury avenue, Wardour street and Old Compton street. It was impossible for a service man to move along the pavements without being accosted. These girls were all young. One woman walking between Old Bond street and Piccadilly Circus accosted eight soldiers, one after the other. One soldier offered her five pounds [approximately $20]. The girl shook her head and continued her walk. Altho there were hundreds of servicemen in the streets, there seemed to be more girls."

PARTED ROOKIES MEET AGAIN AS VETERANS OF AIR

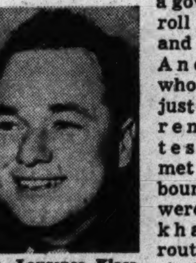
Two years ago, Laurence Klass, who was then 23 and just out of a government pay roll department, and Charles C. Anderson Jr., who was 21 and just a few days removed from testing valves, met on a Texas bound train. They were both new to khaki, and en route to an army airplane training base. They talked and planned and then their paths separated.



Lt. Laurence Klass.

Two weeks ago in Casablanca, a plane was awaiting to take home a group of battle weary veterans. Anderson and Klass were among them. Both are lieutenants now, in the army air forces, and veterans of many and varied actions.

Klass is a veteran of the Sicilian and Italian campaigns where he flew what he calls the "sweetest thing in the air today," an A-36 Invader dive bomber, safely thru 57 flying missions. Anderson is a veteran navigator who served with Flying Fortresses thruout the Mediterranean and in the Balkans in 50 campaigns.

Has Son He's Never Seen.

Klass was hurrying home to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Klass of 5222 South Drexel boulevard, and Anderson was hurrying to his wife, Helen, and the son he had never seen, Charles C. Anderson III., 3 months old, of 2642 Emmett street.

Both described the lights of the city of Miami, Fla., as the most exciting scene they had viewed since they left the United States and had seen only the light of flashing gunfire. They also described the five hamburgers and quart of milk they each consumed at a Miami hot dog stand as the best food they had eaten in months. They were flown to Miami, and there entrained for Chicago.

Klass said he had his narrowest escape in Africa, and that it was the African dust, rather than the enemy that gave it to him. "I was taking off hurriedly," he said, "and one of those dust clouds that are always around closed in on me, and I almost crashed into a line of grounded planes."

Three Other Heroes Home.

Three other Chicago war heroes were home on leave yesterday from foreign battle fronts. Sgt. Charles J. Fulanovich, 21 years old, of 1511 West 19th street, and Sgt. Ralph Nakaniski, 426 Hickory street, Waukegan, both turret gunners on Flying Fortresses, explained their oak leaf clusters and distinguished flying crosses to their kinsmen.

Last night, Maj. Otto Kerner, who had been cited for gallantry in Sicily, was honored at the Bohemia club at 3659 Douglas boulevard. He was introduced to the 200 guests by his father, Federal Judge Otto Kerner. He had been in foreign service a year.

COLD meets defeat!—because this Anti-Freeze holds out against HEAT

$29.41 is the average price, among popular cars, for a new radiator alone . . . if you can get one. But even supposing that you could get free repairs on your present radiator after a freeze-up, the man-power shortage still might lay up your car for a week or two—a costly inconvenience.

Same old "scare stuff," do you say? Yet here's what may be new to you: You could easily sacrifice your car to the cold, unless your anti-freeze is able to save itself from the HEAT!

HEAT makes your engine go. HEAT rises after every stop. And days below zero are often followed by days above freezing! In Winter car operation, heat is fully as much a factor as cold, and Super Pyro is ready for both. Because it won't be all "gone with the heat" every time, you needn't keep adding a lot for safe passage through a whole string of cold spells.

You pay nowhere near a top price for Super Pyro. And yet how it lasts. So will your cooling system, because this highly heat-safe, cold-safe Super Pyro also protects against dangerous clogging rust. Now—while most dealers still have some—get your Super Pyro.

MR. BARNES* is a capitalist. He's the head of a business which he and several of his friends risked their life savings to start, just a few years ago.

He went into business to make a profit. Not all the Mr. Barneses who go into business make a profit. As a matter of fact, about thirty per cent of them fail. It's risky, going into business.

But because thousands of them over the years have been willing to take that risk, millions of new jobs have been created—all because these men could look forward to turning their ideas into dollars.

When the war is over, he would like a chance to make a profit on his own again. And if he and all the others like him get that chance—not just in business and industry, but in agriculture, commerce and the professions—they'll be able to provide jobs for the 56,000,000 people who will want and need them.

Meanwhile, a few awfully perplexing questions are standing in the way of the plans he would like to lay to help provide those jobs when the time comes . . .

For example, Mr. Barnes would like to be able to reinvest part of the profits he makes in order to allow his business to grow. As it grows, of course, it will provide more jobs. But as things are, he has to pay out most of the money he makes in taxes—because the tax laws do not distinguish between the money he would reinvest in his business and the money he'd put in his bank account. What can be done about this?

Then there's the question of war contracts. He would like to know how quick a settlement he can count on when the war's over—so he'll know about how much cash he'll have for reconversion and when it will be available.

There's also the matter of labor. He's well aware that the happier his employees are, the better his production will be. But what he isn't quite sure about is—can he count on able leadership in labor and management relations after the war, or are his business and other businesses in for a period of agitation and unrest?

* * *

As you can see, these aren't the ordinary problems of product improvement, better distribution or more economical sales methods that are perplexing Mr. Barnes. Those problems he knows how to handle. But these problems he can do nothing about. They're questions you will have to help him answer.

But you can be sure of one thing—if, when the war is over, the Mr. Barneses of this country are given a political and economic environment favorable to the expansion of free enterprise, their business "know how" will not only help provide the jobs needed but will take this country to heights never before dreamed of.

THE LEA AVIATION BILL.

The Lea aviation bill which the house is soon to consider is a comprehensive and complicated document intended to chart the course of all civil aviation in the United States after the war.

In general, the bill aims to centralize power over aviation in the federal government to a greater extent than ever before. The states are denied many powers previously held, including some which have been wisely exercised. To a large extent, the bill embodies the views and meets the wishes of the domestic air lines and transport plane manufacturers. They, with the American Bar association, are its most ardent backers.

In a great many respects the interests of the air transport industry are also the best interests of the country as a whole, and to this extent the bill is recommended. But the present operators in the aviation industry also have vested interests, and some of the provisions of the bill seem to have been drafted to protect those interests rather than to advance the national welfare.

The case for national regulation in some fields of aviation is unimpeachable. Safety is one of those fields. The development of private aviation will probably be helped more than it is harmed by rigid federal supervision of safety in the private field. Some of the manufacturers of small, so-called personal planes are dubious of this. They apparently object not so much to regulation of the operation of planes as to those regulations governing the manufacture of planes. At present the safety tests required to win approval of a new type of plane are expensive and may even be unduly onerous. This is a technical problem and no effort should be spared to reduce the costs of the tests. The alternative, however, that manufacturers be permitted to market unapproved planes for private use is hardly appealing.

One excellent safety provision in the bill is the restoration of independent investigation of air accidents. Mr. Roosevelt's destruction of this principle for political reasons and the turning over the investigations, which often involve the federally maintained air safety system, to the persons responsible for the maintenance of that system was an obviously backward step, and the Lea bill would correct it.

Of equal value is the declaration that conflicting state taxation of air commerce and air transportation personnel is against the national interest. The development of the nation's trucking industry has been impeded by conflicting and often discriminatory state regulations. To date few of these conflicts have occurred in aviation, but the time to stop them is before they appear.

Among the most vigorous opponents of the bill are the state regulatory agencies and the railroads. The state aeronautical commissions assert that the bill goes too far in wiping out state jurisdiction over aviation. They point out that the impression that all air trips are cross-country, or at least interstate, is erroneous, and they express fear that the concentration of authority over routes in Washington will hamper the development of intrastate air transportation, restricting it, perhaps, to such feeder lines as the interstate carriers find profitable in their operations.

This is a contention that deserves close consideration by congress. One of the most prolific post-war developments will be in the field of intrastate routes and authorities on the spot should be able to foster such developments better than burocrats in Washington. If it is true that one of the reported motives of the bill is to prevent local capital from setting up returned air heroes in small aviation enterprises, the motive is an ignoble one. So long as the returned flyers are able to qualify themselves and their equipment under proper safety regulations, they should have a chance to go into the business.

The railroads oppose the bill because it continues the present requirement that their participation in the air transportation business be incidental to their present operations of surface carriers. There is no reason for this restriction except to protect the air lines against competition, and there has been no demonstration that they need or should have such protection. Some years ago, when there was a good deal of agitation against allowing railroads to operate bus and truck lines, THE TRIBUNE contended that the railroads are engaged in the transportation business, are experts in that business, and that the limit of their operations should be set by economic factors and not by law. The same argument applies to railroads in the air transport business. The danger of monopoly if they are allowed to compete with the air lines is without foundation.

The bill provides for the continuance after the war of the CAA's present civilian pilot training program. This is not an appropriate field for government expenditure in peace time. There is no more reason why the public should pay part of the cost of training air pilots or mechanics than there is for paying part of the cost of training locomotive engineers or radio announcers. The post-war problem is going to be to find jobs for the millions of men that the army and navy have already trained in aviation, rather than to train new personnel.

Another unwise provision of the Lea bill is section 410 [b], the somewhat cloudy wording of which seems to vest in the proposed civil aeronautics commission discretion to disburse subsidy payments to domestic as well as foreign air line operators. It is doubtful whether subsidies for domestic operators will be justified if the government does not hamstring their business by over-regulation and allows them to make adequate profits. The payment of subsidies for operations by American companies outside our continental boundaries obviously depends on what other nations do. If they pursue their previous policies of defraying deficits of national air lines out of their treasuries, that form of competition may have to be met by the United States. However, it is a mistake to leave subsidy payments to the discretion of a regulatory agency. If they are justified, congress should provide them directly in a bill intended for that purpose.

PRISON FOR THE TROTSKYITES.

The American Trotskyites probably will have the distinction of being the first Communist party leaders and organizers to serve prison terms for practicing and preaching straight Marx-Lenin doctrines in this country. They were convicted of conspiracy in the Minneapolis federal District court along with officials of the Dunn brothers' teamsters' union. The Circuit Court of Appeals sustained the convictions, and the United States Supreme court has refused to review the case.

The revolutionaries who seem about to pay a stiff penalty for their opinions and words constitute a small group, negligible in politics and influence, for a while only, in the Minneapolis teamsters' union, which years back had a record of violence in Twin City strikes. They are uncompromising ideologs, and just before the murder of Trotsky in Mexico they were engaged first in trying to reclaim and then in expelling certain associates who had questioned the value and worthwhileness of the dialectic in modern communistic activities. They are sticklers for the true word. They take their doctrine straight from the fountain head. Trotsky was their prophet and to them Stalin is a monster of hideous mien. In the political field they might remind you of Jehovah's Witnesses in the religious.

Their present troubles started when the Minneapolis teamsters tried to withdraw from Dan Tobin's AFL organization. Tobin called on the White House for help. At Mr. Roosevelt's instructions Steve Early notified the department of justice that a revolution was brewing in Minnesota. The Trotskyites denied that they had engaged in a conspiracy to commit violent acts, but they willingly admitted that they regarded the government of the United States as capitalistic, imperialistic, and constituted for the purpose of denying the workers and farmers the right to control and manage the means of production. They were for a revolutionary change in the system and they were against war. They've had their days in court and they protest against the injustice of punishment for opinion and speech.

Unlike the Trotskyites, the Browder Communists have exercised considerable political power, particularly in New York, and they have bored into many labor activities, in all of which they have exercised a destructive influence. Stalin liquidated the comintern, but he didn't stop Browder and the Stalinite comrades here. They remain aliens in their own country. They are hypocritical in their professions and treacherous in their acts. At times they have been ludicrous in their efforts to keep hitched to the Moscow line when they couldn't find it.

Not even regard for Russia's war needs has deterred some of the American Communists of the Browder affiliation from undertaking to damage industry and transportation. THE TRIBUNE has disclosed what was done at the Studebaker plant. Wherever Communist influence has made headway in the merchant marine it has caused demoralization of discipline and sustained insubordination. Communists have been allowed to fill important governmental positions; they have bored into schools, teachers' colleges, and teachers' unions. They have founded schools of their own. Much of their work is underground. They are waiting for the turn of events, meanwhile doing as much damage as they can.

The few outspoken Trotsky revolutionary ideologs have been sentenced to prison. Earl Browder, jailed for a passport fraud, was pardoned and set free to renew his activities, and the country can't get rid of Mme. Perkins' friend, Harry Bridges, no matter what device is tried. If the Trotskyites are shouting against such patent favoritism, who could deny them this privilege?

Editorial of the Day

NEW DEAL INCONSISTENCY.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer.]

Last Friday lines of men and women two blocks long besieged Cleveland's state liquor stores. The shelves were stocked with whisky for the first time in two weeks. At places the commotion was such that police had difficulty maintaining order. A woman was knocked down and trampled, but she retained her place in line, determined to get her rationed share of liquor.

While this spectacle was in progress New Deal administrators in Washington were espousing grandiose plans designed to prevent the price of a loaf of bread from rising a penny or two.

Nothing could better illustrate the inconsistency of much of the New Deal thinking than the stampede at the liquor stores. In pre-revolutionary France one penny in the price of bread might have meant the difference between life and death. Even at the bottom of the depression in the last decade a penny or two knocked off the price might have made it possible for a mother to buy both milk and bread instead of being forced to choose one or the other.

But who cares today whether a loaf of bread costs 10 or 11 cents? Humanitarianism at the wrong time is demagoguery.

The Germans have Jugo-Slav guerrillas to wreck coal mines and stop production in the Belgrade area. Here we have John L. Lewis.—[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

HIS PRIVATE HONOR.

See Kipling's story, "His Private Honor," which may be found in volume II. in his collected works and also in "Many Inventions," for an account of what may happen when a commissioned officer strikes a private soldier. The incident that makes this tale was much more trivial than the matter now under national discussion, and there is a happy ending with satisfaction on both sides, but the moral is identical.

* * *

A certain Ouless, junior subaltern, has a half-company of the rawest and clumsiest rookies ever shipped from Home on the parade ground. A seasoned veteran named Stanley Ortheris [one of Kipling's three musketeers] has tried to whip them into shape, but they are getting on Mr. Ouless' nerves. A ragged maneuver causes him to lose his head and he flicks his riding cane, used as a pointer, at the nearest man. A snag in the cane's silver trimming tears the soldier's tunic.

* * *

The offended party happens to be Ortheris, the only good soldier in the detachment. A captain comes up, sees him in disorderly uniform, and wants to know. Ortheris, altho in a rage, protects the subaltern; he answers that he snagged his tunic against a gate post.

* * *

He broods over the public affront; his honor as a soldier has been deeply injured. The officer also broods over his mistake and wonders how to right it. Shall he ask for a transfer? Mr. Ouless is a rattled kid and he gets cold comfort from the only adviser he seeks, who happens to be the narrator of the tale.

* * *

Ouless solves his problem by taking his victim out shooting. In a secluded spot he suggests that they settle the matter with bare fists, and Ortheris is more than willing. So they go to it according to British nonmilitary custom.

* * *

Ouless gets a bloody nose and is otherwise bunged up, but he puts Ortheris down for the count. A curious ending, perhaps, but it satisfies the quaint English notion [in fiction] that a gentleman is always a better boxer than a plebeian. Anyway, Ortheris is greatly pleased and Mr. Ouless promptly becomes a much better shavetail.

WHEN DAD FEELS BETTER.

When dad is sick it is no joke,
And when at night he doesn't smoke
The fam'ly knows that he is sick
And that some organ doesn't click.
And then ma does her level best
To make him stay in bed and rest.
Now when he's ill he's very meek
And even "turns the other cheek,"
And then one morning he comes down,
His face o'ershadowed with a frown.
"The toast is burnt" (we know it's not),
"The coffee's cold" (we know it's hot),
And what he'll do to that galoot
Who claimed to press his winter suit!
Yet his bad mood doth good news tell,

Choppy Is Himself Again.

Occasionally a fellow gets a windfall and sometimes part of it blows toward his dog.

'Twas only the other day that I stopped into a restaurant for a bit of lunch, and there was Shandy Gaff sitting at the table. "Hello, Shandy," I said, and he made the customary reply. "How is everything buzzing along?" asked Shandy, and that is where he made a big mistake.

"I have just spent 24 meat points for Choppy," I said, "and you know in times like these it doesn't seem quite right. I feel very bad about it." "O, I say, you shouldn't have to spend meat points like that, you know, old chap. There must be another way. When things look blackest there is always a right way out. Have you tried horse meat?"

No, I had not tried horse meat, so I called up the north, east, west, and south sides of Chicago, and some had horse meat but none would deliver, and I have no car due to the scarcity on account of the war, you know. Might as well tell the truth. I have never had a car, and for the usual reason.

Well, when I was out a-walkin' Choppy one evening, along comes a store and I stopped in. "Do you have horse meat?" "We do." It was just around the corner from Choppy's flat. I cooked some and Choppy ate it with relish and gusto. He wagged his tail in a circle so hard that it got wound up so tight it unwound in the opposite direction for five minutes, with no effort from him. Then he leaped into the air and kicked his heels in all directions.

ON A CITY STREET.

A city street is much the same
To those who lived from childhood there
As little streets that one could name
In country towns most anywhere.

People share, as neighbors do,
Whate'er their joys or troubles be;
The postman, milkman, grocer, too,
Can name his whole community.

The children running in from play
Still raid their mothers' cookie jars,
And young folks ever find the way
Of rendezvous beneath the stars.

On Sunday mornings church bells ring
Thru city streets or country lanes,
And everywhere do voices sing
The same beloved old refrains.

And there is peace at eventide
Along the thorofares we roam,
When lighted windows show inside
The sweet content of home sweet home.

How to Keep Well By Dr. Irving S. Cutter

DO WE INHERIT DISEASE?

I ONCE heard a wise old doctor say to a patient, "If you will tell me accurately all of the illnesses from which your grand and great grandparents suffered, I will write out your horoscope and forecast your physical career."

What did he mean? Merely that he could judge an individual's longevity thru a study of his forbears. It behooves each of us to know something about the story of Gregor Mendel and his sweet peas. We could then understand better how we represent the physical as well as mental qualities of our ancestors.

The question of hereditary disease bothers a great many people. The statement, "I inherited tuberculosis from my father [or my mother]," is wholly incorrect. Tuberculosis is never inherited. What the speaker meant was that he had taken tubercle germs into his body from some outside source. Living in a household with one who is expectorating the organisms, it is not strange that he would inhale or swallow them and thus contract the disorder. True enough, some are more prone than others. But this merely indicates that a given constitution is less resistant than another.

There is probably more fear about cancer than any other ailment. But even cancer is not inherited. If we resort to the laws of breeding, certain strains of mice, thru numerous generations, can be rendered susceptible. The experiment may be carried to such an extreme that practically every animal will be afflicted. On the other hand, we can select in the opposite direction until every specimen is immune. Whether the human race is moving toward less resistance in this respect is not clear. The chances are that the seeming increase in this dread malady is due to earlier recognition.

But there are definite tendencies which go with the germ plasm—for example, types of deafness and albinism, in which pigment is absent from the skin, hair, and eyes. In another condition, hemophilia, the blood lacks the power to clot. Males exhibit this peculiarity chiefly. Females, not sufferers themselves, may pass it on to their children. The apparently normal mother of a boy and a girl may find that a son will be a victim while the daughter will not. All such persons are obliged to take extra precautions against injuries, including trivial wounds.

Color blindness is another feature which is sex-linked. While it is more common in men, the color blind male does not transmit the defect to his sons. Altho his daughters are normal, they will donate the trait to half their sons.

We are all familiar with sensitivity, or allergy. Some persons are irritated by foods or substances with which they come into contact. Hay fever and asthma are tangible manifestations of the abnormality. Here the idiosyncrasy may be in the family.

Finally, we can recall that mental attributes, strong mentalities as well as criminal tendencies and feeblemindedness, are parts of the developing embryo. In like fashion, we may anticipate a nervous daughter of a jittery mother.

We can say, then, that basic characteristics are all handed down to us. But many of these can be influenced powerfully by environment and training. But we do not inherit smallpox, tuberculosis, syphilis, or cancer.

Call It Muggin.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28.—Hiram Bingham III., the former United States senator from Connecticut, is exceedingly annoyed about the phonetic progress of the war in the Pacific. It isn't progressing at all. It's those radio commentators again. As usual, they are mispronouncing all the names.

That matters little to the average person, but it matters tremendously to Sen. Bingham, for he is just about the only man in the United States who knows how the names should be pronounced. He also is, he thinks, the only man in these parts who can speak Gilbertese, the language of the Gilbert Islands. He once spoke it fluently, but now confines his conversation to such pleasantries as counting from 1 to 10 and saying, "ko naw mauri." This is Gilbertese for "may you be well" and is a phrase used in politer circles by the Micronesians after the year 1857 when the senator's father, Hiram II., a Congregationalist missionary, landed on the island of Abaing about 25 miles from Tarawa. The natives previously were accustomed to greet visitors with the Gilbertese equivalent of "Where you going? Where you been?" But this to the mind of the senator's father was uncivil, so Hiram II. prevailed upon them to change it.

The senator's grandfather, Hiram Bingham I., was the first white missionary to the Hawaiian Islands, arriving in Honolulu full of ideas and hope in the year 1819. His son, Hiram, eventually was sent back to Yale for schooling and while there chanced upon a five volume narrative of a nautical survey of the Pacific written by Charles Wilkes, American naval officer who toured the region for five years with five ships. The most harrowing episodes in the five volumes concerned a group of islands called the Kingsmill Islands, inhabited by cannibals whom Wilkes described as "the most fierce and warlike peoples in the entire Pacific."

"Yet knowing that, my father and mother went there on their wedding trip," the senator mused. "The Kingsmills are the Gilberts, for the British later changed the name. I didn't know, until a few days ago when I reread my father's narrative, what a brave man he must have been."

That's how it came about that Hiram II. reduced Gilbertese to writing and gave the islanders a literature. He reduced the tongue to an alphabet of 15 letters and translated the Bible into it. But as the Gilberts are arid, empty islands, with a midday heat that rises to 160 degrees, a sandy soil that precludes the growth of any crop other than coconuts, bananas, and a species of the root crop, taro, the natives couldn't understand what the Bible was about. Hiram II. then wrote an illustrated Bible dictionary. Much of this their son learned, for he remained in the Gilberts and the Hawaiians until 1892, when he came home to school.

But back to the phonetics:

"I was extremely distressed," the senator began, "the other night to hear Raymond Gram Swing go all to pieces pronouncing the island of Tarawa. He called it three separate names, all woeful. It should be Tarah-wah, accent on the second syllable. All the A's are broad. If people knew that, it would simplify their understanding. And Muggin, what they do to Muggin!"

"Muggin?" we asked in surprise. "What is that?"

"There!" he said reproachfully. "You don't know either. That is the island of M-a-k-i-n. My father changed it to Maw-kin or Mock-in, but it really is Muggin. Yet people here call it Make-in. Terrible.

"We have a habit," unhappily, "of mispronouncing every word in the Pacific. I get very much out of patience with those people on the radio. They say Ray-bool when it should be Rah-ah-ole. And altho the natives call T-r-u-k Trook, the navy calls it Truck, and so does every one else.

"But I hate to think of what will happen when we get to P-o-n-a-p-e," he concluded. "You're going to hear a lot of it, for it's the largest island in the Carolinas. It should be pronounced Pone-ah-pay, but those radio people are certain to call it everything from Po-nape to Pineapple."

FROM JOHN COWLES.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 26.—A CHICAGO TRIBUNE story today quotes C. Nelson Sparks as saying Thomas Lamont "at one time loaned or arranged a substantial loan to Cowles to complete purchase of his Minneapolis newspaper property." This is completely false and without a shred of truth. At no time has Thomas Lamont either directly or indirectly loaned a cent either to me personally or to any member of the Cowles family or to any of our companies. Nor has he ever "arranged" any such loan. Neither have I, personally, nor any of our publications, ever borrowed a dollar from or secured any form of financing thru any eastern source. Since the statement quoted by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is utterly without foundation I assume you will wish to correct it. JOHN COWLES, Minneapolis Star Journal and Tribune.

"SUPER-HIGHWAYS."

Chicago, Nov. 24.—Having been interested in accident prevention work in Chicago for about 39 years, I am writing to congratulate you on your editorial on "Super-highways." If we could improve our city with super-highways we would not only make the traffic more convenient for the autoists, but we would save a lot of lives as super-highways would separate the motorists living in the outskirts of our cities and suburbs from the local traffic in their respective communities.

Being a northwest sider I am particularly interested in such an improvement for our part of the city as we have only one thorofare, which is Milwaukee avenue. FRANK J. TOMCZAK.

THE PATTON CASE.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—"Old Blood and Guts," eh? I suppose it took "guts" to strike a nervous shell-shocked private soldier convalescing in a hospital! However, in spite of this cowardly deed, Lt. Gen. Patton retains command, after a "reprimand" and an "apology."

I wonder what would have happened to the private soldier had he struck a general? Do you suppose that he could have merely apologized and remained in good standing in his unit? JOHN R. GRAY.

CHURCHILL AND THE FOURTH TERM.

Oak Park, Ill., Nov. 22.—So Cecil Brooks figures Prime Minister Churchill can assure a fourth term for President Roosevelt?

If I remember correctly, Churchill gave a talk in this country shortly before the last election and everybody knows the results, so if this is any criterion, I hope he does come over and stump for him. However, if Willkie is the opponent this wouldn't be necessary, and neither would the election. HARRY H. BUTTS.

FSA REPAYMENTS.

Camp Van Dorn, Miss., Nov. 21.—In your article "Bankers Urge End of Farm Co-op Credit," in the Nov. 18 issue of THE TRIBUNE, you made a sub-heading for W. L. Brown's point that not a dollar of the Government capital has been returned. Farm security administration reports show that a good percentage of their loans have been repaid. The World Almanac states that more than 78 per cent of the FSA loans were repaid. PVT. RAYMOND A. WACHTER.

"BLEW HIS TOP."

Miami, Fla., Nov. 22.—Lt. Gen. George S. Patton struck a private after pulling him out of bed in a hospital. The private was a fatigue or shell shock victim. I like Gen. Patton as a military leader and a human being, but I am an enlisted navy man so I have no ax to grind defending gold braid.

The American public seems to forget that the American army, navy, marine corps, and coast guard are composed of the plain ordinary run of human beings, good and bad, men with guts, men without, cowards, and, lastly, just plain worthless men.

These worthless individuals are what made Gen. Patton blow his top. I am not excusing him. He is a general and he's supposed to hold in, but let me, just an enlisted man who isn't supposed to cover up his baser feelings, try to explain.

The small percentage of worthless men makes it tough on real shell shock victims and real shell shock victims have it tough enough. These worthless guys fake shell shock to get back to the base hospital where they won't run a chance of being killed. Now no one wants to get killed, but they least of all, because they have never done a single good thing for humanity in their lives, and as they are utterly useless to themselves or the world in general they naturally are afraid of the hereafter when they have to walk up to St. Peter with that recommendation in their hands.

Let us say the doctor was right and this was a real shell shock victim. Well please try and understand Gen. Patton. He has seen so many of these pathetic, worthless, "to the rear march" boys who just leave the dirty work for their fellow enlisted men. He also has seen so many swell fellows' names on the "died in action" list, he just blew his top. Listen, pal, you would too.

TIP OF THE NAVY.

THE BRITISH MEDALS.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—I notice the award of medals and "inference" of titles to generals of the United States army by Lord Halifax in THE TRIBUNE today.

I do not think that any officer of the army should be excused for failure to know and uphold paragraph eight of section nine of article one of the Constitution as well as any other provision of the Constitution which he is sworn to uphold. Very likely this item was specifically included in the Constitution for the benefit of those who would not otherwise be able to comprehend why they should not accept favors from any foreign interest or sovereign. It certainly is nauseating to any one with the interest of this country at heart.

UNRRA LEADERS VIE IN STRUGGLE FOR TRADE EDGE

Dutch Minister Discloses Pact Negotiations.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 28.—The official task of the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration is to help victims of the war, but some of those who are shaping UNRRA policies are also actively engaged as representatives of their governments in a struggle for the world's post-war trade.

One of these is P. A. Kerstens, minister of commerce for the Netherlands and his country's delegate on the UNRRA council. He discussed the struggle for commercial and industrial advantage today, but said there is a clear distinction between it and UNRRA's work.

Kerstens smiled when it was suggested that his country would be placed in an enviable position if the allied military organization restores its ports and shipping facilities and UNRRA follows up by industrial rehabilitation of his country.

Heads Industrial Group.

Kerstens is chairman of an UNRRA subcommittee on rehabilitation of industries and transport deemed essential to relief. He spoke at a press conference on the subcommittee's report that rehabilitation supplies are to consist of raw materials, machinery, and spare parts necessary for countries to produce and transport essentials of relief.

His country and its neighbors, he explained, are already planning how they can get and hold the commercial control which Germany will be forced to relinquish. As the Netherlands minister of commerce and not as delegate to UNRRA, he said, he has already entered negotiations in London looking toward a commercial agreement with Czecho-Slovakia and expects the co-operation of Poland, Belgium, and other European countries.

Kerstens said he saw little likelihood that UNRRA's industrial rehabilitation work would give any particular advantage to any country, but indicated that it would help bring about a resumption of industry.

Germany, he said, should be deprived of its enormous industrial capacity, on which he said its war capacity is based, and control of this industry should be vested in the other countries of Europe. Kerstens warned that Germany should never be restored as a major industrial power.

A black picture of German horror in Poland was painted today in a statement of that country's relief needs.

"The unprecedented policy of biological extermination of the entire nation is being carried out by systematic starvation of the population," the Polish statement said. "Foodstuffs are exported to Germany and the Poles are allotted incredibly small food rations, amounting to 800 calories per diem for Christians and 400 for Jews."

Poles Explain Needs.

Poland volunteered to establish its own relief agencies for distribution of supplies, but said the task is so vast that UNRRA personnel will also be required.

Poland's statement of its needs accompanied those of other countries which are expected to receive UNRRA relief supplies — Belgium, China, Czecho Slovakia, France, Greece, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, and Netherlands East Indies, Norway, and Jugo-Slavia.

Most of the statements were general, without appeals for definite amounts of supplies. The Chinese said, however, that China would request 1,500,000 tons of brown rice, 1,200,000 tons of whole wheat flour, and 500,000 tons of such foods as dry meat, milk powder, and soup powder. The Chinese also asked a suit of underwear, a suit of cotton clothes, a cotton blanket, and a cotton mattress for each of 84 million destitute persons.

An anticipated proposal for UNRRA aid to the starving in India has not been made. Many here say they feel this movement was halted by a British statement of opposition.

ARMY HOSPITAL TO RETRAIN MEN IN USE OF BODIES

George B. Foster, commanding officer. The hospital houses 2,500 patients from virtually all of the war fronts.

A gymnasium, 100 by 190 feet, will be constructed where instructors will train war shattered men in regaining use of their arms, legs, and bodies.

PASTOR CARRIES HIS OPA GAS BAN FIGHT TO PULPIT

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 28 [Special]. —The Rev. Leland L. Marion, pastor of the Christian Temple church here, repeated from the pulpit at his regular evening services tonight his charge that the local rationing board had denied him gasoline for pastoral duties because it does not consider church work fundamental to the war. A crowded church heard his statement.

The pastor told his congregation he expects to start circulation of a petition Tuesday night calling on Washington officials of the office of price administration to remove Alfred J. Diebel as chairman of the Pontiac rationing board. Diebel is accused by the pastor of saying that "the quicker the churches close, the better it will be."

The Rev. Mr. Marion said he will go to Detroit this week to appeal the local board's ruling to the state OPA headquarters. The controversy between the pastor and OPA authorities came to public attention Friday when 50 members of the congregation picketed the office of the board.

PROGRAM TAKEN OFF AIR FOR CIO SPEECH RETURNS

The "Voice of the Dairy Farmer" program sponsored by the American Dairy association, which was choked off the air a week ago to make way for a speech by a CIO union official with the result that a congressional investigation was demanded, was broadcast yesterday at its usual time.

D. T. Carlson, president of the association, who has led the fight to find out why its radio time was canceled, told listeners yesterday that the association was glad to be back on the air after being barred last week "to permit an outside speaker to discuss a controversial issue."

The time was given to R. J. Thomas, Congress of Industrial Organization vice president, who spoke in favor of consumer subsidies to control food prices. Two days later, the house, ignoring administration demands, voted to outlaw all food subsidy payments except those required to maintain or increase food production.

700 AT RED RALLY MARK BIRTHDAY OF SOVIET UNION

Seven hundred persons attended a rally sponsored by the Lake county, Ind., Communist party in Seeman's hall in Gary last night to commemorate the 26th birthday of the soviet union.

Howard Lawrence, secretary of the party in Lake county, told the rally that China's participation in the Moscow conference had "proved axis propaganda had failed to drive a wedge between the soviet union and China by raising a false cry for Siberian bases."

Lawrence denounced THE TRIBUNE for what he interpreted as its profascist policies. He added THE TRIBUNE would fail in any attempt "to weaken the anti-fascist coalition either now or after Hitler is defeated."

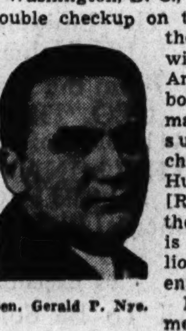
SEN. NYE PLANS PROBE OF LATIN AMERICAN DEAL

Supplements Inquiry by Byrd's Group.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—A double checkup on the dealings of the United States with its Latin American neighbors is in the making as a result of the charges of Sen. Hugh A. Butler [R., Neb.] that the United States is wasting millions on useless enterprises.



Sen. Gerald P. Nye.

Republican members of the senate appropriations committee, headed by Sen. Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, plan to enlarge the inquiry the committee ordered into lend-lease operations to take account of Butler's accusation that this government has obligated more than 6 billion dollars for spending in Central and South American countries.

"We shall certainly want to have the facts on this, particularly in reference to lend-lease details," Nye told a reporter.

Byrd Probe Assured.

The Byrd economy committee already has ordered an inquiry into operations carried on in Latin America by Nelson Rockefeller, coördinator of inter-American affairs. Chairman Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.] said this investigation will be widened later to include other agencies.

Butler's charges that Latin Americans are taking our money and laughing at us brought a reply from Vice President Wallace, who apologized for the "slur" he said the Nebraskan had cast on some of the Latin American governments. Butler replied last night that Wallace ought to have apologized "to the American taxpayers whose money is being wasted in Latin America."

Defends 6 Billion Estimate.

Butler defended his estimate that 6 billion dollars has been earmarked for Latin American expenditures. He said, however, that this amount covered a projected three year program and included loans as well as actual grants.

He said that in obtaining his 6 billion dollar figure he had taken totals from individual agencies, adding that there was some room for error in such a method. He complained, however, that no one agency had information on what the others were doing. More than 40 bureaus, he asserted, were active in Latin American countries.

JOHNSON SAYS DEAN NEED NOT QUIT POST IF COURT FREES HER

William H. Johnson, superintendent of Chicago schools, said yesterday that Mrs. Jeanet Freckelton, dean of girls at Lindblom High school, who was arrested early Saturday morning on a charge of disorderly conduct, will not be asked to resign from her position at the school unless charges against her are proved.

Mrs. Freckelton and Porter Craig, 14904 Marshfield avenue, Harvey, a visitor in her apartment, were arrested at 4 a. m. Saturday when police, accompanied by her husband, William J. Freckelton, a teacher in the Chicago Vocational school, raided her apartment at 11253 Hermosa avenue. Both were released on $50 bonds and are scheduled to appear today in Women's court.

"At the present time no charges have been filed with me that would call for any action against Mrs. Freckelton," Johnson said.

In a statement yesterday Mrs. Freckelton disclosed that she probably will not return to her duties at the high school because "I don't believe I will be able to face those youngsters up there after all the publicity I have been given."

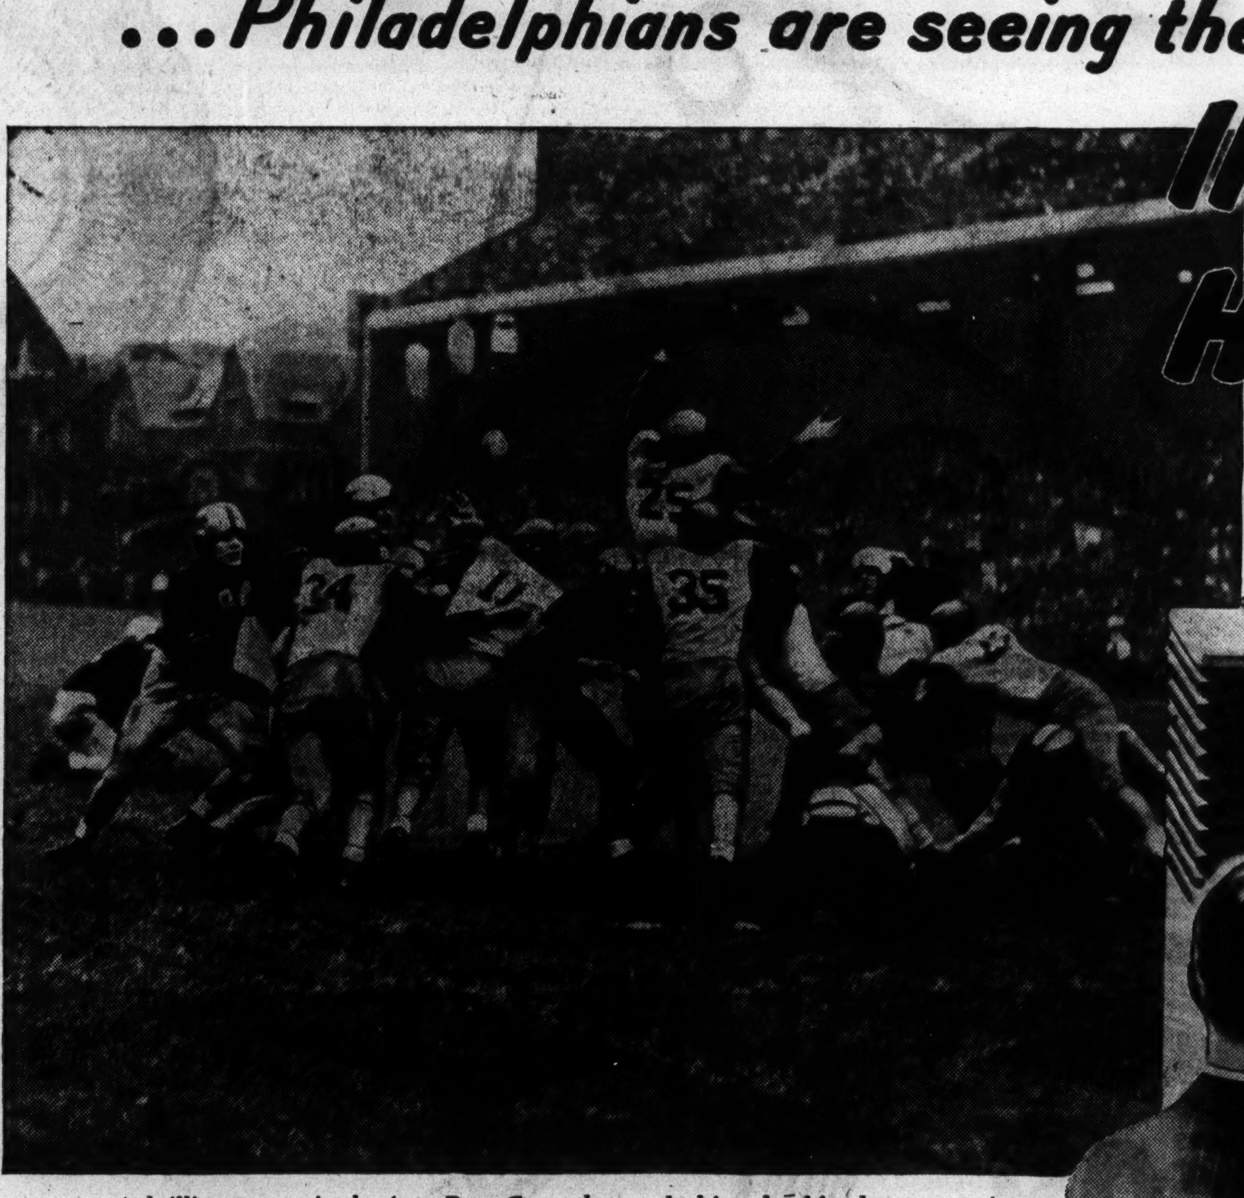
TODAY!—3rd War Loan

Through Philco Television

...Philadelphians are seeing the Penn Games IN THEIR HOMES!



A thrilling moment in the Army-Penn Game that resulted in a hard-fought, 13 to 13 tie.

A MONTH AGO, on Franklin Field in Philadelphia, 72,000 football fans crowded the stands to see Army and Penn fight to a thrilling 13 to 13 tie. And another 2500 people, miles away, saw the entire game, the excitement of every play, the frenzy of the crowd . . . by television in their own homes!

Thus history is being made by Philco Television Station WPTZ and the experimental television audience in Philadelphia. For three years, Philco has televised every Penn game from Franklin Field as part of its television research program. This is the first time that complete football schedules have ever been sent over the air by television.

Since 1928, Philco has pioneered in television research. Its laboratories have made vital contributions to the science of television and its future. Today, its engineers are devoted entirely to the development of highly specialized radio equipment for our armed forces. When Victory is won, they will be ready again to speed the day when television will be here for all to enjoy, bringing you its highest developments under the famous Philco name.

PREVIEW OF THE FUTURE

To enable you to see programs thousands of miles away, the development of television links is the first big assignment of television engineers after the war. Here, again, Philco Television Station WPTZ has been a rich laboratory of experience. For years, Philco engineers have rebroadcast television programs from New York to the Philadelphia area and have made important contributions to the technique of chain television operation. In the peacetime world, Philco with its pioneer research and experience, will be in the forefront of the developments that will make television nationwide.

Social Calendar Includes Number of Interesting Events

BY JUDITH CASS.

INVITATIONS are out to a number of interesting events, to a tea the medical staff of the Children's Memorial hospital is giving next Sunday as a farewell to Dr. C. Anderson Aldrich; to a cocktail party Mrs. Edward Morris is giving on Dec. 8 for Mrs. Francis Neilson; to a party the woman's board of the Lake Forest hospital is giving tomorrow and Wednesday at the Onwentsia club; to the Chicago school children's Christmas fair; to the first of the Arts club's Sunday night musicals, and to a lecture by Sister Kenny, among others.

Dr. Aldrich, physician in chief of the Children's Memorial, has accepted an appointment at the Mayo clinic to direct a long term research project on preventive medicine in childhood, so that he and Mrs. Aldrich will be moving to Rochester, Minn. Mrs. Paul H. Holinger, Mrs. Eugene T. McEnerny, and Mrs. John L. Reichert are in charge of the tea. John P. Wilson heads the board of directors, and Mrs. James C. Hutchins is president of the woman's auxiliary board, whose members have been invited to the party.

The reason for the party which Mrs. Morris is giving for her mother is being kept secret until that afternoon. There's no secret about the two day affair planned at the Onwentsia, for it is the annual display of Christmas tables, wrappings, and individually designed packages, presented by the board from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. on the two days. The tables will be set with china and crystal from the Trading Post, the attractive Lake Forest gift shop maintained for the benefit of the hospital.

Mrs. Roger Bronson and Mrs. Lester Armour are in charge of the display. Other members of the board, many of whom are nurses' aides, motor corps drivers, and telephone operators at the hospital, are Mrs. William F. Burrows, Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy, Mrs. Albert D. Farwell, Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord, Mrs. Phelps Kelley, Mrs. John Kellogg, Mrs. Richard Mabbatt, Mrs. Robert McGann, Mrs. Philip Reddy, Mrs. Edward K. Welles, and Mrs. Farwell Winston.

Blackstone hall of the Art Institute of Chicago will be decorated in an old world atmosphere for the Chicago school children's Christmas fair, to be held there from Wednesday to Dec. 15 under the auspices of the Chicago Public School Art society and the art department of the board of education. Picture frames, table ornaments, mittens, tree decorations, and toys made by children in the Chicago public schools will be among the articles offered for sale from 9 to 5 p. m. daily and from noon to 5 p. m. on Sundays.

The first of the Arts club's musical evenings will be a dinner at 7 p. m. next Sunday, followed by the first Chicago appearance in a piano recital of William Kapell. Ravinia concert goers heard Mr. Kapell with the Chicago Symphony orchestra last summer. The club also has cards out for an illustrated lecture by Darius Milhaud, on "Brazilian Composers," at 11:30 a. m., on Dec. 10.

Members of the woman's auxiliary of the Evanston hospital, the North Shore auxiliary for the crippled, and the Junior league of Evanston are being invited to a lecture by Sister Elizabeth Kenny which the three groups are sponsoring at 2:30 p. m. next Saturday in Patten Memorial hall of the Evanston hospital. The Australian public health nurse will speak on her widely publicized treatment for poliomyelitis. Members of the staff and nurses at the hospital also will be included in the audience. At the same time there will be a sale of articles made by the occupational therapy depart-

Nursery Cares for Children of War Workers

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

The sun shone thru the candy stripe drapes and danced in its own reflection on the tiny, bright yellow tables and chairs of the dining room. It picked out a number of small, tousled tow heads bent over bowls of steaming soup and darted off mischievously to burnish the fiery, red locks of a freckled-faced boy. In one corner of the room, a pair of parakeets scolded behind the bars of their cage while a radiator whistled in warmth on the opposite side.

The North Avenue Day nursery is a rambling old home where brightly colored paper autumn leaves dot the windows. Inside it is gayly decorated with storybook wallpaper and diminutive furniture. Outside, the grounds are carefree with swings and teeter-totters.

The nursery throws open its doors at 7 a. m. and its parade of small charges keeps entering until 9:30 a. m. During their rest period before class they sing, play at art work, learn rhythms and hear stories. Promptly at 11:15 a. m., the preschool children eat a hot luncheon, and their elder sisters and brothers who attend the public school near-by are fed at 12:15 p. m. In the afternoon the children play outdoors, nap, and end the day with games. Their mothers call for them between 4:30 and 6 p. m.

Sponsored by the Junior League and supervised by Miss Marianne Stern, who specialized in child care in Europe, it is an ideal children's haven. Reasonable fees of between $1.50 and $5 a week are charged, depending on the income of the parents. Most of its small charges are the children of working women, and with the aid of office of civilian defense workers, seven of whom spend six hours a week at the nursery, they receive individual attention.

There is little Raymond, a handsome, blonde youngster 4 years old, whose mother works in a shoe factory and whose father is stationed in North Africa. Pretty, dark-eyed Arsilia, 5 years old, plays happily all day while her mother works as an elevator operator. Her father, too, is in the army. Red-haired, freckle-faced Alan, 5 years old, is learning to find companionship with other youngsters of his age. His parents are divorced, and his mother works on the assembly line in a war plant.

There are thousands of children thruout the city who need such care today and 250 OCD women volunteer workers are needed to watch over them, according to Mrs. Elizabeth S. Fitch, director of the volunteer bureau of the Council of Social Agencies and the OCD. These volunteers are sought by all of the 84 child care centers, 59 of which offer 10 hours or more of care a day for children. Sixteen of the units are the new war nurseries sponsored by the board of education and financed by the Lanham fund.

Thru the Looking Glass

We all know those women who look spic and span all the time. We all envy them from the bottom of our hearts and we wonder what their secret is. Is it money? A clever, tireless maid? Is it magic?

Actually it's usually not any of these things. It's just that those women have the habit of paying attention to detail, of being meticulous—and now more than ever they're in luck. We more careless creatures are stymied because the steady stream of maintenance services as represented by the beauty shop, the dry cleaner, the shoe shine shop, the snappy laundry, is so badly disrupted. We've heard many a woman say lately that she wished to heaven her mother or her school mothers had drilled her unmercifully in the practices of tidiness and self sufficiency!

Not that we can't learn to be more careful. We can . . . and we had darned well better! Grooming is entirely a matter of discipline and attention to detail, of doing the thing that needs to be done before, rather than after, the need is apparent.

You'll never feel unkempt and self-conscious if you mend your grooming fences before they collapse, if you catch the stocking run the minute you see it; brush your clothes when you take them off and before you don them again; wash your powder puffs before they're actually dirty; empty your pocketbooks daily; hang your clothes precisely rather than carelessly on hangers, and button and zip them so they won't get out of press as they hang. If you have your shampoo the day before your hair begins to look gosh-awful, your manicure the minute polish begins to chip, if you never, never wear or carry anything even slightly soiled, you'll be well groomed, not just for special occasions but ALL the time.

It's discipline that does it—and now more than ever we heretofore pampered women need it.

Miss Anderson Still Walks in Vocal Beauty

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

People squabble over Marian Anderson nowadays as if she were an international boundary instead of an international artist, and indeed her shift of vocal stance in the last few seasons is ground for haggling. She remains a rare artist with a magnificent voice, but that voice has changed. It is lighter in weight and color than it used to be, higher in range, more flexible and subtle in vocal style, but less consistently thrilling. Perhaps the change is experimental, perhaps unavoidable. Only Miss Anderson knows. Certainly she is no singer to rest on laurels already won. Her program at the Civic Opera house yesterday afternoon, with Franz Rupp again the accompanist, was almost entirely composed of music new to her long list of concerts in Chicago.

It opened with three old Italian airs, the loveliest of them from Rinaldo de Capua's "Vologoso," which she sang exquisitely, with a radiant and supple elegance superbly of the period. Then she delved into Brahms' "Four Serious Songs," those eloquent settings of biblical texts rarely tackled by a singer who has the magnetism to achieve popular appeal. The result was not completely successful, because the highest citadel of lieder can take a lifetime in conquest. But it was completely to Miss Anderson's credit that she wanted to sing these magnificent songs, that she dared to sing them before so large an audience, and that in the third, "O Death, How Bitter," she achieved a splendor of tone and depth of understanding that should, eventually, admit her into their realm.

From then on, the spirituals and the encores were the cream of the concert, tho there was true operatic flair in the aria from Gounod's "The Queen of Sheba," a quality lacking in the old days of more opulent but less bravura tone. But the group of songs in English, two by Vaughan Williams, was less than distinguished, partly because the words could not be understood.

This was doubly curious when every word of the spirituals was, as always, etched in the burnished shadows of that unique voice. Singing them, Miss Anderson was supremely articulate. "Poor Me" was sometimes a dangerously husky whisper, but "Let Us Break Bread Together" was as reverent a prayer as "No Hidin' Place" was an impish outburst at a camp meeting.

As encore to the Brahms group, Miss Anderson chose the brief brilliance of "The Blacksmith," a song she never would have sung in the old days when she stood, remote, eyes closed, like some pagan priestess, but which yesterday she tossed off gaily, eyes wide open, reaching out to her audience. There were, too, a sparkling performance of "Comin' Thru the Rye," with its shining cadenza, her favorite "Nightingale," an anonymous and lovely Spanish folk song—and, because no one would go home without it, the "Ave Maria," which still sounds as if it were sung by a bewitched cello.

Critic Joins in Acclaim for a New Pianist

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

A pianist can scarcely win the Chopin concourse, formerly one of Europe's outstanding competitions, and be a slouch. There was, therefore, considerable interest in the first appearance here of the Russian, Alexander Uninsky, one of the last winners of the coveted award, at the Civic theater yesterday afternoon.

Uninsky immediately impressed as a pianist of comprehensive ability. His technical equipment seemingly knows no bounds. The incredibly fast and feathery octaves of the Brahms-Paganini Variations, the scales of the Liszt-Paganini Etude, like perfectly matched pearls, and the scampering, zephyrlike double thirds of Chopin's Etude, indisputably place him in the upper brackets of virtuosi. If there is any flaw in his technical armor it was not revealed in this inclusive program.

But music is a house of many mansions, and the new pianist does not seem to have investigated all of them with equal thoroness. It would be idle to call him unmiscal. No one who can play the first Chopin Nocturne with such tenderness, Brahms' C major Intermezzo with such charm, or the C major Etude of Chopin so sparkingly, could merit that description.

Yet in the over all view, Uninsky's playing fell short of being completely satisfying. Just why, it is difficult to say. A work of large dimensions such as Beethoven's "Appassionata" Sonata had every detail in order, disclosed a firm grasp of structure and form, and was in general beautifully played. But it lacked the essential emotional impulse, that ability to probe to the very heart of a composer, that might have made for an unforgettable performance. Uninsky has a flair for the miniature, as such delightful encores as a Prokofieff gavotte, Chopin's G-flat waltz and Mendelssohn's Spinning Song plainly proved, yet earlier he had played the "cradle song" Intermezzo of Brahms quite unfeelingly.

A paradox, perhaps, but don't mistake us—also a very fine pianist.

Tho it is an enemy word, the German gemütlich best describes the concert of "Danube Melodies" which took place yesterday afternoon at Orchestra hall before a large audience that seemed on familiar ground and loved it. And well they might, for with Emmerich Kalman, one of the best if not the best of extant operetta composers, to play his own music, and the vivacious, sprightly Margit Bokor and the sturdy and friendly voiced tenor, Richard Tyrol, to sing it, an enjoyable afternoon was guaranteed.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 28.—Mary Pickford, the canny soul, since she's got "Rain" set with Buddy De Sylva and [they hope] Dorothy Lamour, lets it be known that she owns "The Greeks Had a Word for It," which she also wants done as a musical. That one could really be naughty and nice. Mary's off to New York in three weeks to open an office there, which means she'll be away from her adopted children for Christmas. Meanwhile, Lt. Buddy Rogers is a test pilot stationed at San Pedro instead of in the ferry command. . . . Charles Brackett's next will be "To Each His Own" which Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett are writing. It's a grand yarn about an American girl who marries an English title. The play opens just as she's turning their Berkeley Square home over to the Red Cross. A Canadian doctor-major recognizes the hostess and says, "I'm so happy to meet you again. Hope your son is well." "Sorry, I've never been married before and have no son." But she had. The story goes on from there. It's a thriller. Brackett hasn't yet announced the star. If he can't get the one he wants, he'll have to settle for another.

Keeping Hand In.

Gracie Fields not only lends her support but threw in a couple of good ideas at rehearsals of "The Face," the play her husband, Monty Banks, and Laszlo Szucs open at the Playtime, Dec. 3. . . . Betty Lawford is up for the lead opposite Randolph Scott in "Stranger on the Highway" at 20th. Betty looks like a million. . . . Since Charles Bennett wrote "Heart's Desire," he's aiming to take a role away from an actor and play it himself. . . . Susan Hayward is a darling but couldn't be more unlike Carlotta Monterey O'Neill, who created the femme lead in "The Hairy Ape" on Broadway. Susan does the picture with Bill Bendix. . . . Tyrone Power, on leave from the marines, is getting the glad hand here while doing an infantile paralysis short.

Memory Lingers On.

Quentin Reynolds tells that when he was in North Africa, Sicily and Bizerte, Bob Hope was there, too. Whenever Hope put in for a show, the enemy started bombing. Finally Quentin Reynolds went up to him and said, "Hi, Hope—would you mind getting out of here? You're more dangerous than the enemy." . . . Hope's funniest crack at the victory committee meeting was, "We'll never know what this war is really like until David Selznick puts it on the screen."

'Twasn't Funny.

Constance Dowling's sister gets her release from Selznick. She says he's done nothing to further her career. The other day in the midst of all David's other troubles, he had a call from Monty Woolley, who's only half thru "Since You Went Away," telling the boss man he was flying to New York that evening. He couldn't stand working any longer. After everybody had gone mad, the beard admitted he was just having fun and it was all done as a gag. . . . Barry Buchanan, former showman, is now bedded down here with Howard D. Mills at our war finance division. . . . Day before Mervyn Leroy shoved off to Florida and locations for "Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo," Paulette Goddard gave him a dinner. Also present were the Lewis Milestones and Jinx Falkenburg.

Work and Play.

Vincent Youmans trained out for New York, where he'll do his symphonic ballet with Baranova, and Massine staging dances and directing. He returns in March and will go ahead on the Tschaikowsky life. Vincent's wife calls him "The Rainmaker." "Wherever we go for a holiday," says she, "the rains come. I could really hire him out to the farmers, but he says he'd prefer the farmers' daughters!" William Tilden a year ago, offered to put on tennis tournaments in army camps. Little was done about it until he arranged to produce his own play in Hollywood. Now that has to be postponed because he'll be playing at camps steadily for the next two months. . . . Moss Hart, speaking to actors: "Remember the only guy who profits by kneeling at the feet of others is a bootblack."

INSTALMENT XIII.
LOCATES HIDEOUT.

The Rustlers' gap man did not stop Neal until he had reached the door. "Wait a minute, MacGowan. No use flying off the handle. I'll have to think this out."

Clemson faced a dilemma. He had meant to send Blackburn word to go into hiding until MacGowan was out of the gap, but the deputy had forestalled that. It would not do to let him come back with a big posse to comb the place and perhaps drag out half a dozen fugitives. Why not let him take Blackburn out? The fellow had not been here more than a few weeks and already his overbearing ways had made him unpopular. Moreover, if he had killed a woman they could not protect him. Public opinion would be too strong. There was always the chance, too, that Jess would kill MacGowan.

"All right," he said. "You can have Blackburn. He's giving the gap a bad name, anyhow. I won't help you take him, but I won't stand in yore way."

"I didn't promise to run him down for you," Clemson complained sourly. "But I'm a law-abiding citizen. I'll give you Russ."

Russ Miller was in the lead, his pinto pony climbing like a cat up a steep gulch trail. From the rear Tim put a question to his chief.

"You talked mighty brash to Cad," he said cheerfully. "How did you know he wouldn't figure out that the best way wasn't to give orders to have us drygulched?"

Neal turned, his hand on the back of the saddle. "He thought of that. But after he had looked the idea over carefully, he saw it would be a mistake. He was afraid if I disappeared the U. S. government might get too inquisitive."

Tim laughed. "That's what you hope he thought."

They reached the top of the gulch and looked down on a mountain meadow through which a small stream ran. Miller gave them instructions.

"All you gotta do is follow the crick for about a mile—mebbe a mile 'n' a half. You'll come to another canyon, a kinda box one with straight up walls. On the left there's a break in the wall. Follow that draw and you can't miss the house. It's a log cabin.

"And no matter what happens keep yore mouths shut about me bringing you here," Miller insisted.

"That's a promise," Neal assured him. "Come down to the K-B and there's a job waiting for you."

The boyish face of the red cheeked rustler took on a dogged look. "I can make a lot more on my own," he answered.

"You can make more rustling another man's beef—for a time," Neal conceded. "But this isn't going on long. Law is coming to this country."

"Easy for you to talk thataway," the lad growled. "You've got a fine, well stocked ranch."

"I started from scratch," Neal replied patiently. "Look at Tim here. There years ago he came in here riding the chuck line. Now he has a nice homestead, a brand of his own, and a small bunch of cows. In 10 years Tim will be one of the responsible ranchmen of the Flood river country."

"If he's lucky," Miller assented. "I aim to be one myself some day."

"You won't be the way you're starting out. Don't be a lunkhead and do Cad Clemson's dirty work for him." Neal's smile was warm and friendly.

"I'm satisfied," the youngster flung back at him. He waved a hand at them and headed for Clemson's place.

Tim shook his head.

They used the little stream for a guide. It took them into a box canyon and they passed through the rock break up the draw Russ had mentioned. In a grove of pines a log house was half hidden. No sign of life showed except the smoke drift from the chimney. The K-B men reached the door undiscovered.

The sneering triumphant voice of Blackburn came to them. "Why don't you tinhorns learn how to play before you tackle a top hand?"

They were playing cards at a table, four of them—Blackburn, Dunn, Fox, and a stranger unknown to Neal. Dunn was the first to see the visitors.

"Look who's with us, boys," he drawled.

"What are you doing here?" Blackburn demanded.

"I'm looking for a scoundrel who shot a girl yesterday," Neal answered evenly, his gaze fastened to the pig eyes in the flushed, beefy face.

The stranger at the table spoke. "If some one would give me a knockdown to these gents, I might know where we were at," he suggested.

"Sure," Dunn obliged, a harsh sarcasm in his tone. "Meet Mr. Neal MacGowan, a good friend of us honest settlers in the gap. And meet Tim Owen, the bird with the red top-knot. Mr. Owen and Mr. MacGowan, meet Cass Purdy, a gent who has come to build up his health in our salubrious air. What's this about some one shooting a girl?"

"Ask Blackburn," the cattleman replied, a challenge in his low, clear words. "Ask him where he was yesterday afternoon at two o'clock," Neal continued.

"What girl was shot?" Dunn demanded of MacGowan.

"Janet Lane."

Again Dunn's appraising gaze rested on Blackburn. Allan Dunn felt the fellow was guilty. He knew too, that the man was as dangerous as a cornered wolf.

"Better fix a better alibi than that, Jess," the tall calf thief said contemptuously. "At two o'clock Luke was over at my place."

"That's right," Blackburn corrected. "It was Lee Daly, not Luke. Cass will tell you I was here."

Purdy came to scratch. "Sure, I won $8 from him."

"Or maybe it was nine," Neal amended, politely skeptical.

"DOUGHBOYS IN IRELAND."

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

In which a young band leader, inducted into the army, discovers that the girl he left behind isn't the one he really loves—and decides to make an American beauty of a wild Irish rose.

Band leader: Kenny Baker.
G. L. B. [Girl Left Behind]: Lynn Merrick.

This is a gay, take it or leave it soldier show, tuneful and often quite amusing, with Kenny Baker fairly blooming all over it. He sings and he sings—new songs and a number of old ones, including "Mother Machree" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." . . . As Danny O'Keefe he has a Broadway sweetheart—a singer who promises to be his girl till he gets back home again—but who turns his letters over to her secretary to answer. . . . Away off—somewhere in Ireland, Danny gets into an argument with a sweet Irish girl who invades his life in a donkey cart. . . . When the storm clears away—well—Irish eyes are smilin' and a pair of Irish hearts beat together in three-quarter time—or the likes.

Kenny Baker is always a favorite, and this pleasant little time killer will prove another feather in his cap. You should like the supporting players, too.

You won't find the apricots this year for your favorite apricot fruit cake glaze. If you glaze your cakes at all, you'll probably be using this type of simple dressing which will hold the fruit and nut decorations on your cakes nicely.

Fruit Cake Glaze.

Combine ½ cup sugar, ½ cup corn sirup and ¼ cup water and cook until mixture thickens, but not long enough for it to spin a thread. Brush over warm cakes and press fruits and nuts into the glaze.

Use a tin box or canister with a tight cover for storing fruit cakes, which should be individually wrapped in waxed paper before storing.

If you wish to baste your cakes with wine at intervals as they age, use a clean pastry brush and "paint" the cakes about twice a week. Or use a spoon and dribble several tablespoons of wine over the surfaces. Be wary of using too much wine at once. You'll have better results by the "take it easy" plan. Each cake may be wrapped in a wine-soaked piece of cheesecloth before the waxed paper is tucked around it. Port, muscatel, tokay, or any sweet dessert wine is good for basting. Brandy is also fine.

My department still has copies of that tremendously popular "Maywood Fruit Cake" which was published in these columns first about four years ago, and which readers usually declare to be the best white fruit cake they ever made. If you'd like a copy, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me, in care of THE TRIBUNE, stating your request. The recipe will be mailed promptly.

We also have an excellent little booklet of tested fruit cake and cookie recipes, called "Holiday Cookies and Fruit Cakes." If you'd like this booklet, inclose 5 cents in stamps, in your letter.

Some of these fruit cake recipes, and many of the old favorites from your own files, no doubt ask for butter. Have no qualms about substituting margarine, or a combination of margarine and vegetable shortening.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY

An Hour of Charm.

Backstage at the Chicago theater, in the dressing room of Phil Spitalny, I waited with a kit full of questions. For here was the conductor of the All Girl orchestra, and certainly here could be found an answer to the eternal riddle of how to get women to work together. Thirty-five high salaried, talented, ambitious, beautiful girls working together day after day—and harmoniously! Could be; but how?

Their conductor pleasantly discounted any suggestion that "women are difficult." He had directed a male orchestra before he formed the All Girl orchestra and believes that the girls are easier to manage than men. He finds women more intense about their work, "just as they are about their children or their families." He has also learned women are more intense in their desire to believe in some one. "The first requisite is that they must believe in the person who is directing them; they must have confidence," he said. "Once that confidence is established a woman will put everything she has into her work."

Harmony.

"Women are more prompt than men; they are always on time for rehearsals," Spitalny commented, upsetting a man-made theory that "women are always late." "And," upsetting still another, "it is not true that a woman can't stand success; she is happier and more attractive when she is successful."

"But wait," I interrupted, thinking of my questions. "Each of these girls is talented. How do you avoid professional jealousy and competition?"

"I formed an Hour of Charm Stock company," he replied. "Every girl owns stock, so the success of one is the success of all."

One for All.

The orchestra has played in 56 army camps since Pearl Harbor. "We love that," said Evelyn, the pretty and gifted concert-mistress who left graduate work at the Julliard school for the first rehearsal of the orchestra and has been with it ever since.

By this time the girls were settling themselves on the stage, like fragile butterflies in their filmy marquisette dresses. Rosa Linda was running her fingers up and down the keyboard. [She made her debut with the Chicago Symphony orchestra when she was 8.] Francene, the tall, Dianalike contralto, stood waiting for her cue. From the wings as the curtains parted I studied their faces, noticed the gracefulness with which they handled their instruments [no girl weighs over 120 pounds] and watched their complete absorption. I thought I never had seen anything so feminine—and so businesslike.

Deadlines don't wait and I had to leave. There were hurrying feet after me while Vivien, in sheer black lace, stepped on the stage. It was Francene following me. "You're not leaving without hearing Vivien and her beautiful high voice?" she asked . . . "you're not leaving!"

Loyalty! Coöperation! Charm! Could be!

News of Weddings.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry John Crates of Garrett and Fort Wayne, Ind., announce the marriage on Saturday of their daughter, Vivian Crates Logan of Milwaukee, Wis., to Perry George Anderson of Milwaukee, formerly of Evanston, son of Alfred C. Anderson of Edgerton, Wis. The ceremony took place in the First Unitarian church of Chicago, with Dr. Von Ogden Vogt, pastor of the church and dean of the Meadville Theological school, officiating.

The bride was graduated from Indiana university and took graduate study at Radcliffe college. Mr. Anderson was graduated from the University of Wisconsin and took post-graduate work at De Paul and Loyola universities. After a wedding trip to California he and his bride will live in Milwaukee.

Friends of Miss Barbara McLaughlin and Yeoman Irving Kreutz of Darlington, Wis., who is stationed at Great Lakes, will be receiving invitations to a round of parties for the popular pair, who are to be married on Dec. 18, probably in the Lake Forest home of her father, Maj. Frederick McLaughlin,. Miss McLaughlin and her mother, Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin, are at the Deerpath Inn. Miss Joan Hixon is planning a dinner for the Saturday before the wedding, and Mrs. T. Albert Potter will give a bridal luncheon on the 18th.

Yeoman Kreutz, who was graduated from the University of Wisconsin, and his bride will live in Lake Forest until he receives further orders. Miss McLaughlin, a graduate of Ferry Hall, plans to return to her studies at Smith college when her husband goes to sea. Her Smith roommate, Miss Phyllis Brown, of St. Paul, Minn., and Miss Patricia McLaughlin will be bridesmaid. Miss Joan Potter will be the maid of honor.

Today's Event.

It's a question whether the winner of the battle checkers tournament today at the Key club would have the courage to wear the daring chapeau which will be the prize. So another "serious" hat is being provided by the same designer. The two unusual bonnets will be modeled at luncheon and during the contest by Mrs. Baldwin Baldwin of Indianapolis, Ind., who is staying in Chicago while her husband is overseas, and Mrs. Prentiss Andrews, the former Mrs. Williams Lane, whose husband, Maj. Andrews, is still at home on leave. Among those who will be playing their first game of battle checkers today are Mrs. Paget Cady, Mrs. George Braun, Mrs. Gilbert Healy, Mrs. Jere Patterson, and Mrs. George May.

Parents Should Show Respect to Child as Person

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1943: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

A recent article began with the comment that respect should be two-sided between parents and children. But then it devoted itself to the statement which gets too little attention: That parents should respect their children.

Shall I explain still farther that respecting your child doesn't mean handling him with gloves, walking on eggs, bending over backwards with mannerliness and outer consideration? You can be as jolly, as offhand, as free and easy, have as much of a sense of humor as you please; you can even get cross and say things you wish you hadn't without any real harm if, underneath it all, you feel the interest, the regard, the consideration, the friendship that are part of the feeling of respect for this real and important young person [of any age] that you call "my child."

And I'd like to add one more bit of advice. It is this: While it surely adds to the interest and pleasure of life with your children if you do respect them as persons when they're small, the whole relationship takes on an added importance when your boys and girls get into their middle and late teens.

If you do respect your young persons and they know it, they respond to it in a way that is almost touching. And if all along the line your child has been aware of this treatment you will reap an especially rich harvest when he reaches adolescence.

Women in War Work

By Kate Massee

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Margaret Greaves, graduate of drafting course at Illinois Tech. More women are urgently needed for this and other tuition-free courses.

Altho approximately 1,100 women have been trained for war jobs at the Illinois Institute of Technology in the last 18 months, at least 1,000 more are needed for essential work in industry. There has been a sharp slump recently in the number of women enrolling for the tuition-free courses, according to John I. Yellott, war training director at Illinois Tech. Mr. Yellott said:

"Many women apparently have the feeling that, because of good news from the battle fronts, the war is virtually over. This misconception has brought about a situation that is not only critical, but alarming. Women on the home front must not be slackers if they want their men to return home soon."

Mr. Yellott also said that Illinois Tech can place in war industry virtually every woman who can be trained in any of several fields. This is especially true about drafting courses, as the demand for trained workers in this field far exceeds the supply.

When the school established its war training facilities in March, 1942, 90 drafting boards were set up in three rooms. Until recently, enrollments have been highly satisfactory. Since October, however, nine women and one man—who were graduated on Saturday—have been the only trainees. They are:

Mrs. Hazel Alice D'Arcy, Mrs. Mary Moore, Mrs. Margaret Greaves, Mrs. Greta Hale, Mrs. Lulu Foote, Miss Pearl Orensten, Miss Naomi Peterson, Miss Irene N. White, Mrs. Dorothea B. Wynder, and Stanley Tomczynski.

Engineering drafting is one of three government sponsored, tuition free courses offered at Illinois Tech. Requirements are high school graduation, with training in mathematics and experience in industry or art school which indicates ability to learn drafting.

The second course is in industrial chemistry, with high school graduation and one year of high school or college chemistry required.

The third is metallurgical techniques, also requiring high school graduation and chemistry training in high school or college.

Women desiring to enroll for any of these courses, in fields in which the need is immediate, should apply at the war training for women office, Illinois Institute of Technology, 1951 Madison street.

The first class of volunteer physical therapy assistants will be graduated Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. by the American Physiotherapy association. The ceremony will take place in the Nurses' club, 8 South Michigan avenue. The students, who were recruited from a selected group of young women interested in this war time service, received their practical experience at Wesley, Passavant, St. Luke's, Billings, and Michael Reese hospitals.

Training was given by physicians and members of the association, and was made possible thru coöperation of the Chicago unit of the American Women's Voluntary Services.

The new volunteer physical therapy assistants will be assigned to Chicago hospitals, where they will help to replace graduate physical therapists who have gone into service.

The Wives of Flying Army Officers will have their third meeting on Saturday at 6:15 p. m. in the Silver room of Huyler's restaurant, 308 South Michigan avenue. The young women, who are wives of pilots, navigators, and bombardiers, invite other such wives to join them for dinner and learn to know the club. Reservations are being accepted now by Mrs. Richard Barnard, 4409 Greenwood avenue.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1943: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Do you mind if I say something about your play of that hand?" North politely asked his partner. After all, throwing away a grand slam is grounds for at least a mild squawk, North reflected bitterly. "All I want to know is why you had to play the heart ace at the first trick. What was your hurry about a discard?"

South, not understanding the import of North's question, took refuge in sulking, but, in the vernacular, North certainly "had something there." This was the deal:

NORTH
♠ K 6 5 4 2
♥ A 5 3 2
♦ 8 4

WEST
♠ 10 8
♥ K Q 10 9
♦ Q 10 7

EAST
♠ Q 9 3
♥ J 8 7 6 4
♦ J 9 5 3 2

SOUTH
♠ A J 7
♦ A K 6
♣ A J 9 8 7 4 2

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
4 clubs	Pass	7 clubs	Pass
Pass	Pass

The contract was excellent—so sound, indeed, that it was almost foolproof. South, however, as previously implied, managed to find a way to go down.

West opened the heart king. South put up the heart ace and discarded a spade from his own hand. Then he cashed the trump king—and muttered something that must be censored when East "failed." For it was now all too apparent that if South ruffed his losing diamond, a trump trick inevitably would have to be lost. Desperately, South tried to recover by finessing to the spade jack, but alas, altho this finesse succeeded, West had only two spades, and when South, having cashed the spade ace and entered dummy with a trump, tried to discard his diamond on the spade king, West ruffed and raked in the setting trick.

North's post-mortem remark about the unwisdom of playing the heart ace at the first trick was well founded. What, indeed, was the hurry? The obviously correct play was for South to ruff the heart king, then lead a trump. If both defenders followed suit, declarer would not need both of dummy's trumps for trump-drawing, and he could well afford to ruff a diamond, ruff another heart, draw trumps, and finally discard a spade on the heart ace. With West showing up with all four missing trumps, however, declarer would actually see that he would need the heart ace for a diamond discard, and would therefore be forced to take the winning spade finesse.

Winter Party Coats Serving in Double Role

BY REA SEEGER.

New winter party coats are obliging models for they can quickly double on afternoon and semi-dress parade occasions as well as provide the correct dramatics for parties. These smart coats are of dull, black wool and lined with smooth, flat lamb. The sharp contrast is most distinctive, for the snowy lamb extends over the outside of the collar and forms the turn-back, long tuxedo lines down the front. Sleeves are wide and loose, easy to slide over any dress of silk, satin, or wool. Streamlines are simple and casual.

You will find full length, seven-eighths, and knee-length coats, even a few popular shorts to swing jauntily just above the knees. Some models are copied from the severely simple coolie coats with the side seams slit.

Such stunning coats are worn with simple black wool or afternoon dresses of vivid color, or they team with a slim black velvet or wool two piece dinner suit for an elegant three piece costume. They do the best job of decorative contrast as a topper worn with party clothes, however. They're especially smart with short length evening dresses, the dresses spangled with beads and sequins, the popular party dresses with evening decolletage and the skirt of street length.

Long, straight line dinner costumes also slide under these white fur lined party coats to perfection. The sheaths of crepe, velvet, satin, and lavishly glittering woolens and brocades attain a new and eye catching splendor when dramatized with these new party coats.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

M. W., 1030 Michigan avenue, Evanston—Here is a household help I have used: When I clean radiators I sprinkle a double sheet of old newspaper with water and slip it under radiator. It catches and holds whatever dust falls from radiator and saves work cleaning floor.

Mrs. Elmer T., Chicago—To restore fluffiness of chenille and candlewick after laundering I shake vigorously several times while articles are drying. Then when they are completely dry I brush with a whiskbroom.

Mrs. Fred A., Oshkosh, Wis.—Here's a trick I learned from my grandmother. She always kept a white ribbed stocking [a child's stocking] to cover rolling pin. She would cut off the foot, slip stocking over rolling pin, and then fasten with rubber bands at the ends. She always said she could handle dough more easily if she gave the rolling pin this treatment.

Now—PLEASE—Your—Idea!

Stage Note

Michael Todd has decided not to bring "Star and Garter" to the Studebaker for Christmas, after all, remarking in a typical telegram, "Impossible to get type of girls I wanted. In canceling I am aware the show would make money in any condition." No holiday substitute has been announced for the Michigan Avenue theater, but it may house John Golden's "Three's a Family."

Sally Requests Some Items for Men in Service

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Readers who are particularly interested in contributing items requested by service people may find that they can provide one or more of the items mentioned.

A private overseas would like to have a knife with an eight inch blade. He would be glad to purchase it, but finds it impossible to do so at the post at which he is now stationed. Since it is necessary to provide his request in mailing the package, any reader willing to provide a knife may send it to this department to be forwarded from here.

Another reader recently returned from overseas duty and is now a convalescent. He would like to have a small radio, even if he could use it only temporarily. Further information will be supplied to interested readers.

A former Chicagoan, now serving with the WAC, is stationed in a rural district. She has appealed to our readers for several items which she has found impossible to obtain. There is only one tailor on the post, and it is sometimes necessary to wait for repairs on uniforms and equipment. If any reader can provide a sewing machine, the group will be grateful for it. Lamps and a radio would also be welcome.

Requests for electric irons and radios are very numerous. Readers having either of these items may call or write this department for addresses of posts at which they are wanted. Most men are willing to purchase these items but find that they are not obtainable in the small towns near which they are stationed.

Girl's Figure Must Be Kept Well Arranged

on the SOLID side

If he's out to get himself a paper doll to call his own you can bet your best Harry James recording, two sticks of gum, and your last pair of nylons that John Doe Jr. is looking for some one not only pleasant and pretty but also neat and tidy, and on the well buttered side. He'd like to find himself a honeychile who's neatly stacked. And to make the most of what you've got, posture is number one on the hep parade.

The modern high school wardrobe for the well dressed wolf-bait is out of this atmosphere so far as comfort is concerned. But sloppy sweaters, pleated skirts, plaid sport shirts with tails to the wind, and baggy station wagon coats are conducive to lazy living—round shoulders, slumping figure, slack muscles—all the unattractive factors that make a hag with a sag, strictly a droop drape. Even the smoothest new sarong can look like last year's sack and snood if it's worn carelessly. And the most classy chassis can lose its attractiveness if it has that sagging, tired-of-it-all slump. Plenty of rest and exercise are important to an alert, healthy figure. It's necessary to make with the muscles occasionally to keep in shape.

Good grooming and good posture go hand in hand to give a doll that "pinup girl" look that can really stop the show. Shoulders back, stomach in, and backbone held straight with an imaginary ramrod running straight up and down the back of the knees—you take it from there! Even to wear a sweater and skirt well takes a certain kind of showmanship. Walk as if you think you are lovely to look at and you will be. Any figure can look like a good figure—as long as you keep it "well arranged!"

$6 ROBBER HELD 16 YEARS CALLED TOUGH CRIMINAL

Alex Mazy, who is seeking release from the state prison thru the federal courts, was depicted in records at Stateville penitentiary yesterday as a tough man at the time of his crime.

Mazy has served nearly 16 years for a $6 robbery and contends that he has been ordered to serve 11 more, a total of 27 years for what he describes as his first and only offense. His case came to public attention Saturday when he petitioned Judge William J. Campbell of the federal District court for a writ of habeas corpus. The judge appointed Atty. Martin S. Gerber as friend of the court, and set a hearing for Wednesday.

Victim Slugged, Tied.

The prison records, as produced by Warden Joseph E. Ragen, show that in June, 1927, Mazy and another man held up a cab driver in Johnston City, Ill., and robbed him of $6 and some change. Mazy slugged the driver, tied him up, and threw him from his cab, according to the files.

Mazy and his companion drove in the stolen taxi until they ran out of gas, then stole another car from a motorist, the records state; at Carbondale, they abandoned this second car, and stole a third. Carbondale police soon overtook them, however, and an exchange of shots followed in which Mazy was wounded in the arm and captured. At the time of Mazy's conviction the trial judge and the prosecutor recommended that Mazy serve the maximum of a sentence of 10 years to life.

Calls Term Too Severe.

In his petition to Judge Campbell, Mazy admitted the armed robbery of the taxi driver, but argued that the 10 year to life sentence was too severe. The penalty for armed robbery now is one year to life, he said, adding that other men sentenced under the old statute had been released after less imprisonment than his thus far.

Mazy argued that his was only a $6 robbery, that he was a first offender with a a previous good record, and that he was once adjudged insane because of the crime. He protested further that in 1938 the parole board decreed he must stay in prison until 1954. Warden Ragen disputed this, saying that Mazy is entitled to appeal for parole next year.

VICTIMS OF HOLDUP IDENTIFY PAROLEE IN THEATER ROBBERY

Frank Crudder, 45 years old, a recent parolee from the Eastern State penitentiary at Philadelphia, Pa., who was captured Saturday night during an attempt to rob McVickers theater, was identified at the police show-up yesterday by four recent robbery victims.

Frank Crudder.

Crudder was seized by employes of the theater as he sought to flee with $1,500 he had obtained in a holdup of the manager's office.

The robbery victims who identified him were Samuel Sloan, clerk at the Cass hotel, 640 North Wabash avenue, who lost $1,806 in cash and war bonds to two armed bandits Nov. 11; Joseph Akesson, clerk at the Croydon hotel, 600 Rush street, where Crudder allegedly cashed a fraudulent $25 check; Norman Wrobel, manager of the Graham theater, where $560 was obtained in a holdup Oct. 31, and Clayton Wright, clerk at a Nunn Bush shoe store at 50 South Clark street, who was robbed of $45 last Friday.

Police also questioned Mrs. Kathryn Flesher, 19 years old, wife of a soldier serving overseas, said to have been a friend of Crudder.

Chicago's first bombing of the year, at the 606 Club at 606 South Wabash avenue, early yesterday morning, was being investigated last night by members of the detective bureau's bomb squad on the theory that the bomb might have been meant for another tenant of the four story brick building.

The upper three floors of the building house the Wabash Avenue hotel, where 160 guests were sleeping. The bomb exploded in a space between a steel smokestack and the brick rear wall of the building. Joseph Pierson, manager of the hotel, said $1,000 in damage was done to hotel windows by the blast, but he discounted a theory that the bombing might have grown out of remodeling and repairs now in progress at the hotel.

Sgt. Marshall Pidgeon of the bomb squad said the bomb was exploded by lighting a fuse by hand.

The blast, as the final floor show was being presented, was heard thruout the loop. It ripped open a chimney and showered entertainers and patrons with soot. Louis Nathan, club owner, said he knew of no reason why his place should be bombed.

Store Looted of Turkey, Hams, Butter, and Coffee

A turkey, three hams, 25 pounds of butter, and 12 pounds of coffee were stolen Saturday night in a burglary of a National Tea company store at 443 West 65th place.

FOUR ARRESTED IN STRIP TEASE TAVERN RAIDS

Sgt. Emmett Ormsby and two deputy county highway sheriffs yesterday arrested four persons in raids on two taverns in Calumet City.

In the 21 club, 21 State street, they arrested Emil Sebastian, a bartender, and Esther Panor, whom they charged with strip tease dancing. Sebastian, charged with permitting an indecent dance to be presented, was released on $400 bond; Miss Panor on $100.

At the Gaytime club, 401 State street, the deputies arrested Pete Christiano for the fifth time, booking on a charge of permitting indecent dancing, and when he argued with the arresting officers they charged him with disorderly conduct. Dolores Rose was arrested on a charge of indecent dancing. She was released on $100 bond, and Christiano on bond of $500. All four will appear in the Willow Springs police court Dec. 2.

The Blackhawks' treat for 16,649 of the customer pals last night was a five goal second period, just enough to give them a third Chicago Stadium victory of the year over the aggressive Bruins from Boston, 5 to 4. It was the fifth straight home success for the Chicagoans and enabled them to leave for the east in sole possession of second place.

The Bruins, with a new kid goalie, Maurice Courteau, replacing Bert Gardiner, hopped off to a 2 to 0 lead in the first period on goals by the veteran stars, Herb Cain and Buzz Boll. Then came the Hawk goal cyclone in the second period.

Bentley Ties It Up.

The score was tied at 2-all on Clint Smith's first goal, Mush March assisting, and George Allen's first goal, which was unassisted. Smith tallied in 58 seconds of the period and Allen netted the tying score in 5:18. The tie lasted little more than a minute. Then Don Gallinger gave the visitors a 3 to 2 lead in 6:34. That was the Hawks' signal and they really went to town, scoring three essential goals in less than two minutes.

Doug Bentley restored the tie on a spectacular zigzag dash thru the entire Boston first string team in 10:34, whereupon Smith followed up with his No. 2 goal in 11:45, Bentley and Bill Mosienko earning assists. What turned out to be the winning goal was on a long whizzer by Allen, with Earl Seibert getting an assist.

By making an assist on the Bruins' first goal, Bill Cowley retained his position at the top of the league point producers, with Bentley and Mosienko each only a point back. Cowley has made 4 goals and 17 assists for 21 points.

Stadium Clock Acts Up.

The stadium clock failed to start with the opening face-off and eight minutes of actual playing time had passed before it was put into action. Officials decided 3 minutes and 20 seconds of playing time had elapsed and agreed to chop it off the end of the first period. They inadvertently blew the horn with 4 minutes, 20 seconds left and decided to make the second period last 21 minutes instead of 20, not operating the clock the first 60 seconds.

To add to the confusion, Smith's second period goal was made on what amounted to borrowed time.

25 CHICAGOANS EARN PLACES IN TENPIN TOURNEY

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The field of unseeded Chicagoans in the third All-Star National individual match game bowling tournament, opening Saturday at the Auditorium Service Men's center, was completed yesterday with the rolldown of the seventh and final block of round robin competition at five designated centers thruout the city.

A total of 25 local stars gained places in the No. 1 show of American tenpin toppling, sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America. The tournament will continue thru Dec. 12.

Plans Are Changed.

The original plan was to qualify the two leaders at the five qualifying establishments, where the eight survivors of total pin eliminations went into man-to-man bowling a week ago Saturday, every man meeting each of his seven opponents in a four game block. The All-Star committee, in a special meeting Saturday, decided to take the first five men at each center instead of two, after a number of out of town entries withdrew because of war work.

The seven block match trials were decided on the Petersen cumulative point system, which also will be the basis of determining the winners in the main event at the Auditorium. Thru this method, the bowler is awarded one point for each 50 pins knocked down, 1 point for each game won in a match, and 1 point if his total pins exceed those of his opponent, while still losing in games.

The final Petersen standings at each of the five centers, with the first five listed earning roles in the national tourney, follow:

Dykes Bound for Meetings in New York

The White Sox board of strategy was thrown into somewhat of a turmoil Saturday when Appling was accepted by the army. The drafting of Appling came a few weeks after Edgar Smith, left handed pitcher, answered a draft call.

Loss of Appling a Blow.

"We have no hopes of finding a good shortstop in New York," Dykes said last night." The loss of Luke is a hard blow. Appling was not only the best hitter in the league last year, but he is practically irreplacable in the White Sox scheme of things. He could find more aches and pains than a hospital full of patients, but when the chips were down old Luke was out there performing like a kid."

Dykes anticipates little or no trading in New York because of the fact that teams in both leagues will keep anything that looks like talent as insurance against future draft inroads.

James [Skeeter] Webb, second baseman, looks like a likely candidate to succeed Appling in the event that Sox are unable to come up with any talent this week on baseball's trading market. Dykes was mildly hopeful that a baseball player named Leroy Schalk, a Chicago boy who played with Little Rock and who has been discharged by the army, might make a bid for the shortstop job.

Expects Much of Trosky.

The White Sox boss said last night that he expected great things from Hal Trosky, whom Chicago acquired from Cleveland and who already has signed his 1944 contract.

Accompanying Dykes and Grabiner to New York today will be William Harridge, president of the American league; Owner P. K. Wrigley and General Manager James Gallagher of the Cubs.

Dan D. Rogers, chairman of the board of directors of the Cotton Bowl Athletic association, made the announcement tonight following a poll of the Cotton bowl committee and a conference with Coach D. X. Bible of the University of Texas, the host team and Southwest conference champion.

Randolph field, featuring Glenn Dobbs, formerly of Tulsa university, played a 10 game schedule this season, winning nine and losing one—6 to 0—Saturday to Southwestern Louisiana institute.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

HOW about a cheer for the navy? . . . You have to go back a long way to find a Saturday when the wearers of the blue had a more glorious afternoon in football than they did last Saturday at West Point and Ross stadium, Great Lakes. . . . Beating Army always is the major objective of the Middies from Annapolis. . . . Victory over Notre Dame had been the dream of the Bluejackets these many weeks. . . . Both Army and Navy had tried and failed. . . . So had the Iowa Seahawks, the nation's No. 1 service eleven. . . . Maybe it was only justice prevailing when another navy unit, Great Lakes, robbed Notre Dame of its first undefeated, untied season in 13 years by that spectacular finish Saturday. . . . No team in the land was called upon to face a schedule as difficult as Notre Dame's turned out to be. . . . Its ability to carry on to the last few seconds of the season undefeated and untied will enshrine the names of the 1943 Irish in the hearts of Notre Dame followers as long as the university's gridiron records endure. . . . When better Cuban ball players are born, Clark Griffith will sign them. . . . The Senators' latest acquisition from the island republic is Pitcher Olivero Ortiz, brother of Outfielder Roberto. . . . A year ago Gene Littler, a 47 second quarter-miler, held the "unbeatable" record of 2 minutes 6 seconds for the obstacle course at St. Mary's Pre-Flight school. . . . Recently an entire platoon of cadets averaged two and a half seconds better than Littler's old mark, revealing the improvement gained in a year of conditioning. . . . When Ray Flores of San Francisco, who manufactured most of the boxing gloves used in Pacific coast rings, enlisted in the coast guard, his wife, Lucille, took over the business. . . . She can turn out 40 sets a month by hand. . . . Officials of the Baltimore baseball club have refused an offer of $150,000 for 51 per cent of the stock, which makes the Oriole franchise one of the most valuable in the minor leagues. . . . Seaman Johnny Rigney, the White Sox mound star, is stationed at the Norfolk Naval station. . . . Brown university athletic groups enjoy having their pictures taken. . . . The photographer is a comely blonde in slacks. . . . Here is why Coach Curly Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers discontinued the practice of directing his team by telephone from the press box: When the Packers were playing the Giants in New York, Curly figured to the fraction of a second how long it would take him to make the trip from the lofty press roost to the dressing rooms for the usual half-time harangue. . . . He reckoned, however, without the blocking power of Gotham's subway trained commandos. . . . What Lambeau figured would be a 3 minute jaunt was so prolonged by scuffles with the surging customers he arrived at his goal just in time to see his boys taking the field for the second half.

Pet Peeves.

To break my neck getting to work on time every morning, then see some one else come in a half hour late and get away with it.

Disgusted.

To receive a letter from THE service man hurriedly written before he takes off for a week-end in town while I have to sit at home.

Jeanne.

Guadalcanal—it meant nothing to me
In my school days of long ago,
But a coral isle in the southern sea
Where the jungle was high and low.

But now, since my soldier boy sleepeth there,
And the jungle has claimed my pal,
I always ask God in His infinite care
To keep vigil o'er Guadalcanal.

REDSKINS LOSE TO PHIL-PITT IN 27 TO 14 UPSET

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—The Philadelphia-Pittsburgh Eagles passed and sprinted to a 27 to 14 upset victory over the Washington Redskins today in a National Football league game before 35,826 customers.

The league champions, who were held to a 14-14 tie by the Phil-Pitts at their last meeting, looked like a badly worn carbon copy of the team that defeated the Chicago Bears a week ago. Slingin' Sam Baugh was far off form in the aerial department and a hard charging Eagle line smothered the Washington ground attack repeatedly.

The Eagles were able to shake Roy Zimmerman, Jack Hinkle, and John Butler loose for 10 Phil-Pitt first downs against Washington's 10. They counted a touchdown in the first period, added another in the third and crashed over for two more in the final period.

65 Yard Eagle March.

Butler, Hinkle, and Cabrelli sparked a 65 yard first period Eagle march which was climaxed with Bob Thurbon's 6 yard slice off tackle for a score. Zimmerman added the extra point with the first of three successful place kicks.

Zimmerman set up another score with a pair of passes to Tony Bova early in the third and then sent Thurbon over tackle for the touchdown.

The Redskins counted a few minutes later when Joe Zeno blocked a Zimmerman punt on the Phil-Pitt 34. Baugh and Moore worked the Jailer Baker Lands in Grid Hoosegow!

Capt. Conway Baker of the Chicago Cardinals will be moseying along down to Shreveport, La., this week with one of the best stories of the 1943 professional football season to spin for folks who call at his place of business—the city jail.

The Shreveport city jailer left yesterday's game with the Bears in such a hurry that the reason wasn't known until the contest was over. As Conway's Shreveport desk sergeant would say, let's reconstruct the details:

It's the third quarter and the Cards are ahead, 17 to 14, rightfully thinking that an upset was in the making. The Bears' woe is increased when Johnny Martin intercepts Sid Luckman's pass on his 5 yard line and returns 35 yards. Luckman himself makes the tackle and Capt. Baker is in the immediate vicinity.

Cards Lose Most Versatile Player.

Suddenly the Cards are penalized 15 yards and Capt. Baker trots off the field to be seen no more, much to his team's sorrow, because Capt. Baker, who starts at left guard, eventually plays the other guard, not to mention both tackles, as a sort of revolving lineman. He's versatile.

What causes Capt. Baker's departure is that an official catches him in the act of taking a swing at Luckman, and connecting so successfully that the Bears' forward passing wizard is knocked over a couple of other gladiators.

But Capt. Baker, who in eight seasons with the Cardinals has been known to be a champion of gentlemanly conduct on the field, reported that he swung only after Luckman had stuck his cleated shoe in his face, which is enough to roil the softest of tempers.

Second Puncher Caught in the Act.

It was the first time Capt. Baker ever was shagged from the field, and the result bore out the code of football, "get in the first punch." Capt. Baker, having got in the second one, was caught in the act and Luckman went unpunished. More than that, Luckman went on to lead the Bears to an uphill victory, and Baker, who was sorely needed to bolster up a battered Cardinal line, could only sit on the bench and bite what was left of his fingernails.

Capt. Baker can be excused for thinking the Cardinals would have saved the game, but for his quick exit from the field of strife.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

A fellow two days out of a hospital and an old gaffer five years out of football did the almost impossible yesterday for the Chicago Bears. The Bears found themselves 10 points behind the Cardinals as the fourth quarter started in the gathering gloom of Comiskey park and 17,219 spectators almost forgot their physical discomforts in anticipation of an upset in the making.

In this desperate situation the recent hospital case, Sid Luckman, and the man who came out of the past, Bronko Nagurski, took command. In that final quarter, the Bears crossed the Cardinal goal line three times in much the same sort of finish as on Pearl Harbor day two years ago. On that historic afternoon the Bears won, 34 to 24. Yesterday's score was 35 to 24.

As in 1941, the Bears' championship hopes were at stake yesterday. They had to win or tie the Cardinals for a ride into the National Football league championship game on Dec. 19 in Wrigley field.

Nagurski Goes Over.

Barely a minute after the fourth quarter started, the 35 year old Nagurski bolted over from the 1 yard line. When Bob Snyder kicked the third of 5 extra points the Bears trailed, 24 to 21.

Then, from their 13 yard line, with darkness beginning to envelop the field, the Bears started out again. They now had 10 minutes' time. Luckman mixed up short passes with Nagurski and Harry Clark, the league's leading ground gainer, making savage lunges at a Cardinal line which had been superb until weariness set in. It was the Nag, as they called him in his younger days before he retired in 1937 to become a country squire in Minnesota, who flopped his huge frame over the Cards' solid wall on a 2 yard plunge for a first down on the Cardinal 24. Clark lost a yard and it was Luckman's turn to try the airways. At the goal line, Clark's eager hands won a battle with two leaping Cardinals and he stepped over for the score which decided the issue.

Luckman Passes to Wilson.

The third touchdown of the period was an anti-climax and Luckman and Nagurski had a hand in that one, too. Sid intercepted a pass and ran to the Cardinal 29 yard line. Clark cracked the middle for 11, and Nagurski ploughed for the same distance. Then came Luckman's 21st pass of the day, his 10th completion—a pitch under the goal posts from the 10 yard line to George Wilson, who calmly stepped over.

Three times the Cardinals led in a game in which the Bears needed at least a tie to clinch Western division honors. They were ahead, 7 to 0, at the end of the first quarter. They went in front, 10 to 7, in the second quarter, but were behind when the half ended, 14 to 10. Then came two touchdowns in the third quarter for a 24 to 14 lead which started to melt under the smashing offensive efforts of the old and the new in the Bears' scheme of attack.

Nagurski had soiled his white pants at tackle for the Bears in previous games this season. Loss of Bill Osmanski to the navy and injuries to Gary Famiglietti and Doug McEnulty created yesterday's pleasurable assignment at full back.

The Bronko carried the ball 15 times for 84 yards as he powered thru the middle or slanted off the right side of the Cardinal line. When a yard was needed for a first down, the Nag squirmed for every inch.

Luckman, in his day of triumph, smashed two league records which had been posted last season by Green Bay's Cecil Isbell. Sid threw four touchdown passes, raising his total for 10 games in 1943 to 28. Isbell's old mark of 24 was set in 11 games. The Bear quarter back's 10 completed aerials gained 241 yards, giving him 2,194 for the season. This wiped out Isbell's standard of 2,021 yards.

Redskins Need Tie or Victory.

Now the Bears, who finished the regular season with eight victories, one defeat, and one tie, have three weeks to await the invasion of the eastern champions for the title game. Their opponents undoubtedly will be the Washington Redskins, who need only a tie in two remaining games with the New York Giants.

For the Cardinals, it was the toughest of their 10 straight defeats. They could be pardoned for snarling at Nagurski, "Why didn't you stay on your farm in Minnesota?," or to Luckman, "They should have locked the door in your hospital room." Luckman, against the advice of his physician, left the hospital Friday after a bout with the grippe.

Late in the first quarter, Bob Morrow intercepted Luckman's pass and ran 44 yards to the Bears' 1, where Sid bumped him out of bounds. On his second try, Johnny Grigas went over for a touchdown, and Capt. Conway Baker kicked goal. Then the Bears paraded 72 yards for the tying score, and it was Nagurski who provided the spark, too, in this rally.

Bears March 75 Yards.

When the first quarter ended, two running plays had advanced the ball to the Bears' 25. In the ensuing 75 yard march, Nagurski carried six times—3, 15, 6, 6, 1, and 3. From the 14, Luckman pitched to Clark, who made a leaping catch in the end zone.

Marshall Robnett recovered Dante Magnani's fumble a little later on the Bears' 39, and at the same time the north siders drew a 15 yard clipping penalty. The Cards settled for a 17 yard field goal by Baker. After the kick-off the Bears went 74 yards for a touchdown, exclusive of two penalties for 20 yards. On fourth down, from the Cardinal 35, Hamp Pool raced into the end zone and beat two Cardinals in a battle for Luckman's pass.

Early in the third quarter, Johnny Martin caught a pass for 50 yards from Grigas. Backed to their 15, the Bears escaped when Clark intercepted a pass. Then Grigas and Martin clicked again for 50 yards. From the Bears' 14, the Cards powered over in four smashes, the last three by Morrow. Baker's kick made it 17 to 14.

Gil Duggan recovered Clark's fumble on the Bears' 35 to set up the Cards' third touchdown in the same period. On third down, Grigas bolted around the Bears' left end, knocked Luckman out of his path, and went over for a touchdown.

From there it was strictly a Luckman-Nagurski story. Statistics:

Spartas and Vikings Reach Soccer Finals

BY OFFSIDE.

The Vikings and Sparta yesterday gained the Illinois state cup soccer final by emerging victorious from their clashes with the Schwabens and Hakoah Centers, respectively.

The Vikings handed the Schwabens their first defeat, 4 to 2, in Winnemac park in a hard fought battle. Sparta won, 2 to 1, over the Centers in Sparta stadium in a game which was decided by a penalty kick.

After 28 minutes of battling, the Vikings opened the scoring when Nels Brostrom drove into the net from five yards out after taking a pass from Jimmy McDermott, who had beaten three opponents.

Jordon's Goal Ties It.

Schwabens tied it up when Vic Absil broke away on the right and sent a low cross to Max Jordon, who kicked past Goalie Jocke Johanasen from three yards out.

Bill List made certain of the game for the Vikings after nine minutes of the second period on a penalty kick after Gus Whilborg had made a miracle stop of what appeared to be a certain Schwaben goal by Absil earlier.

In the other game, with the score tied, 1 to 1, Sparta was awarded a penalty kick during the second half and Jimmy Wolf shot home what proved to be the winning goal.

Sparta Scores First.

The two teams played on even terms during the first 30 minutes, Sparta registering first when Right Half John Tvrzickey sent a long angular shot into the net from 30 yards out.

The Hakoahs tied the score near the close of the period. Max Grunner sent a shot past Goalie Joe Silovsky from 25 yards out.

The two teams, Vikings and Spartas, will not meet for the state championship until next spring.

Eagles Score 27 to 14 Upset Over Redskins

Steele Goes 47 Yards.

Ernie Steele, former University of Washington flash, broke for a 47 yard dash for the Eagles in the fourth after Zimmerman's interception of a Baugh toss set the Phil-Pitts in offensive motion again.

Ted Doyle, one time Nebraska star, made the day almost a total loss for Baugh by breaking thru to block one of Sammy's quick kicks for an Eagle recovery on the 1 yard line. Hinkle plunged for the final score.

George Cafego and Baugh tossed to Frank Seno, and Joe Aguirre for Washington's second touchdown, Aguirre taking the ball on the goal line. Aguirre added the extra point.

Flurry of Flying Fists.

A brief flurry of flying fists in the third period resulted in the ejection of the Eagles' Ben Kish and the Redskins' Willie Wilkin. Wilkin swung at Kish after Kish roughed up Masterson on a pass play.

The Eagles gained 297 yards on rushing plays to 58 for Washington. The Redskins completed 14 out of twice as many pass attempts for 211 yards while the Eagles clicked on six of 13 aerials for 82 yards.

One Defensive Error Costly to Notre Dame

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Notre Dame's one mistake on pass defense Saturday afternoon in the last minute of the game with Great Lakes cost the Irish an undefeated season. From a technical viewpoint however, Notre Dame's varsity, already hailed as the finest offensive team in the history of the school, climaxed its scoring record with an 80 yard touchdown drive in the fourth period which has had few parallels in the sport.

Nine minutes remained of the game and Notre Dame trailed, 12 to 7. The Irish had the ball after a touchback on Emil Sitko's punt. For exactly 7 minutes 54 seconds Notre Dame retained control, linked together 20 consecutive rushing plays for six first downs, and took the lead, 14 to 12.

One of Greatest Assaults.

The attack, averaging 4 yards for each of the 20 rushes, was spotlighted by the sturdy resistance of the Bluejackets' line and backers-up. That line yielded but it never was broken completely. Here was the steadily mounting crescendo of an irresistible attack. It stands with any assault by any Notre Dame eleven, altho seconds later the memory was momentarily obliterated by the winning touchdown pass from Steve Lach to Paul Anderson.

Creighton Miller, Bob Kelly, Jim Mello, and John Lujack composed the Irish back field operating behind the varsity line. Twice in this march, on Notre Dame's 45 yard line and again on Great Lakes' 24 yard line, the Irish came to fourth down with 2 yards to continue. Each time Mello was called upon and each time he came thru.

Irish Have 60 Plays.

In all, Notre Dame had 60 rushing plays in the game. Twenty of them produced this fourth period touchdown. Fifteen rushes, plus two passes, covered 67 yards for the first Irish touchdown after reception of the initial kickoff.

The third period, in which Notre Dame was held scoreless for the first time this season, belonged to the Bluejackets. This was the peak of Great Lakes' attack. In 11 minutes 47 seconds, Great Lakes scored twice to lead, 12 to 7, and in this time the Bluejackets so thoroly dominated the Irish defense that Great Lakes had 21 plays from scrimmage to nine for Notre Dame.

Great Lakes opened the third period by receiving the kickoff and driving 71 yards to the goal in 11 plays. The second touchdown move covered 80 yards and was accomplished in three plays. The score was made on Dewey Proctor's 51 yard dash after he crashed outside the defensive left tackle. This brilliant run not only gave Proctor the almost unbelievable rushing average of 9 yards for the 17 times he carried the ball, but it gave the full back a season's record of 514 yards gained in 103 rushes.

Who Missed Assignment?

Unless one knows the defensive assignments of the Notre Dame secondary, or sees the motion pictures of the game, it is impossible to say which Notre Dame man should have covered Anderson on Great Lakes' winning pass.

Anderson, the Bluejacket quarterback, was the fourth eligible pass receiver down field, a situation that always calls for smooth defensive maneuvers. The ends and Sitko immediately were in the open and covered. Anderson went down the left side, which is the back side of the play for a right handed passer.

Lach set up the score because he eluded two linemen who almost tackled him. His short run to his left, before he threw, was the feint which drew in the secondary. The pass, when thrown, was elemental. But it never will be forgotten. Undoubtedly it was the most important single play in 1943 collegiate football.

UDELL CAPTURES DINGHY FLEET'S OLD-TIMERS' RACE

Clare Udell, owner of the 52 foot racing sloop Falcon II., won the Chicago Yacht club dinghy fleet's old-timers' race yesterday in Belmont harbor. Skipper Udell defeated 10 other veteran yachtsmen with a score of 14 points. Gould Davis, owner-skipper of the 39 foot R boat Tabasco, was second with 12 points, and Jake Schmidt, one of the crew of the schooner Bagheera, was third with 10 points.

Trophies awarded by Ed Decker were given place winners of a series of races by the club's regular dinghy racers. Jack Vilas Jr. was first with 45 points, followed by Russell Moon with 43, and Harry Nye Jr. with 42.

The Columbia Yacht club's 10 foot C class Frostbite dinghies defeated the club's B class craft, 11½ feet long, in a series of four team races sailed in Chicago harbor. The C class fleet won with 45½ points to 36½ for the B boats. Gary Comer and William Parks, junior members, each won a race for the C class, and George Macha captured the other two events in his B class dinghy, Digit.

GIANTS DEFEAT DODGERS, 24-7, BEFORE 28,706

New York, Nov. 28 (AP). — Steve Owen's New York Giants struck early and then coasted to a 24 to 7 Interborough triumph today over the Brooklyn Dodgers before 28,706 fans.

Bill Paschal, Giant rookie full back, added 12 points to bring his season total to 60 and take the runner-up spot to Don Hutson in the league's point race. Ward Cuff added the other 12 on a touchdown, three extra points and a 37 yard field goal.

Giants Score in Two Minutes.

The Giants connected in the first two minutes on their second play after getting possession of the ball. After Paschal picked up 27 around left end to the 14, Cuff battled his way for the touchdown.

Paschal carried most of the burden in a New York 45 yard drive that clicked for another touchdown midway in the second period and romped over from the 8 with nobody near to disturb him.

The Dodgers put on their only sustained drive at the start of the second half when they moved the ball 80 yards to score on a pass from Pug Manders to Bruiser Kinard.

McAdams' Punt Blocked.

Al Blozis and Steve Pritko smashed thru to block Dean McAdams' punt in the closing minutes of the third quarter and the Giants recovered on the Brooklyn 36. Five plays later Paschal added the final score when he took Tuffy Leeman's 10 yard toss on the 14 and went over. Lineups:

CEILING PRICES IN CAFES TAKE EFFECT TODAY

Restaurant prices in the six counties of the Chicago metropolitan area will be limited beginning today to the highest levels in effect during the week of April 4 to 10, but the dining public is expected to notice little difference since most restaurants voluntarily have been operating under that maximum. Food and drinks are included in the recent office of price administration order, which makes Chicago the first city in the seven state mid-western region of the OPA to have restaurant ceilings.

The OPA said the formal ceilings were ordered to protect the public from overcharge and to bring into line the comparatively few establishments found violating the "gentlemen's agreement" between OPA and restaurant owners.

98 Per Cent Effective.

Donald F. Klesau, executive secretary of the Chicago Restaurant association, with 1,200 of the 3,400 Chicago cafes as members, said 98 per cent of his group had never violated the agreement and therefore would not be affected by the fixed ceilings.

Klesau said the few violators would be obliged to cut their prices to April levels or be liable for OPA action. The OPA requires eating establishments to keep for inspection their menus of the April base period and to note on current bills of fare that the ceiling prices are available for customers to investigate.

Enforcement Up To Public.

Michael F. Mulcahy, Chicago area OPA director, said most of the enforcement will rest upon the public, altho investigators from his office will make spot investigations of prices from time to time. Complaints will be referred to community price panels.

Restaurants, clubs, hotels, bars, soda fountains, delicatessens serving meals, boarding houses, and other similar dining places are covered by the ceiling order.

It was learned in Washington that the OPA had postponed until after Dec. 15 the effective date of the cattle price stabilization program ordered for Dec. 1 by Fred M. Vinson, economic stabilization director. The program is to be effective as of the beginning of the first accounting period after Dec. 15 for each slaughterer. It comprises a subsidy program, payment of which is dependent upon the slaughterer buying cattle at prices within limits set by Vinson for each grade.

TRUCK CRASHES INTO BUILDING; PLASTER FALLS

A motor truck and trailer struck a three story building at 1506 Elston avenue last night with a force sufficient to knock a woman from her bed on the second floor. The woman, Mrs. Anna Szymaszek, 53 years old, suffered shock but was not injured. The truck was driven by John Matthews, 1636 Congress street, an employe of the Senate Cartage company, 922 South Morgan street. He told the police that the truck bounded over the curb when he lost control.

The front of the building was damaged and plaster loosened in several rooms on the first and second floors.

FARM AID RANKS 1ST AFTER WAR, GOV. GREEN SAYS

Farm needs are being given A-1 priority rating in reconstruction plans of the Illinois post-war planning commission, Gov. Dwight H. Green said yesterday in his weekly radio report.

"As soon as the war ends," Gov. Green said, "the farmer is going to need new machinery and new farm buildings. His soil, strained to produce the last ounce of food, will need fertilization. His dairy herds, slaughtered in the face of a labor and meat shortage, must be rebuilt. And there will be an urgent need to return farm labor to the farm as quickly as possible.

"The farmer needs these things now. But his need will be even more serious after the war, particularly if he will be expected to help feed the starving countries of Europe as well as his own fellow Americans."

ARGUES LONGER WEEK AVERTS CONTRACT BAN

Chicago Is at Crisis Brink: Spencer.

William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, said yesterday he is confident that imposition of the 48 hour week in Chicago will keep the area out of the No. 1, or critical, labor market classification. The extended work week was ordered for Chicago firms by Spencer on Friday and will go into effect Jan. 16.

Spencer asked that those who have attacked his order as unnecessary consider the action as a preventive measure to keep Chicago from being placed in the No. 1 class by the WMC in Washington, D. C. He declared Chicago is "on the edge of a critical labor shortage" and therefore the extended week was necessary to relieve the situation.

Would Bar New Contracts.

Chicago will remain in its No. 2 classification unless future conditions require a change, Spencer said. This category is considered desirable because when an area is classified No. 1 war contracts are not let or renewed if they can be placed in other areas.

Spencer also replied to critics of the 48 hour week order who have called attention to the fact that the WMC and railroads are sending workers from this area to the west coast. He explained that a comparatively few skilled and unskilled workmen have been sent to two confidential war projects on the west coast which have a priority on man power thruout the nation.

In addition, he continued, most of the workers recruited from this area for these projects are construction men, of whom there is an adequate supply. He explained that a few highly skilled men have been sent outside this area on other jobs, but only after the WMC has determined they are not needed here.

Some Need WLB Approval.

Spencer admitted the railroads were shipping out some workers, but said the WMC has no control over this type of labor.

Meanwhile, the regional war labor board was reported preparing to handle a rush of applications from employers who are not empowered to pay time and a half for the extra hours worked under the extended week without WLB permission.

All employes coming under the wages and hours act, engaged in production for interstate commerce, and those whose union contracts call for overtime pay must be paid time and a half for all hours worked over 40 in a seven day period. Many office workers, executives, supervisors, and some local industries such as laundries and service firms are not covered by this provision and, therefore, could receive or pay out only "straight" wages for the extra hours.

A WLB representative said there would be a conference this week to discuss the procedure for adjusting such wages since it is expected that most employers in this group would want to pay time and a half.

Must Wait for Forms.

Spencer asked Chicago employers not to begin compliance with the new order until they have received instructions and forms to be filled out. These are expected to be mailed to employers beginning Wednesday. Employers who are not exempted and will extend their work weeks must submit a schedule of the workers they are to release, but no worker may be released pending review and approval of this schedule by the WMC.

Because of the necessity for much of their work being completed during specified hours, larger Chicago banks may be forced to request exemption for certain departments from the 48 hour work week, an official of one of the larger loop banks said. He explained that it would be difficult, for instance, for a bank to give adequate service during present banking hours with fewer tellers.

MERCHANT MARINE.

Do cadet-midshipmen in the United States merchant marine receive special income tax exemptions such as those given to army and navy men? Must the cadet report as income the value of room and board received, as well as his monthly pay? Are his uniforms, which he must purchase, allowable deductions?—H. B.

Answer: Members of the merchant marine, not being part of the military or naval services, are not accorded the income tax advantages of army and navy personnel. The room and board received by the cadet is not taxable income, however, since it is considered to be provided for the convenience of the employer. The cost of uniforms purchased by the merchant marine officer is not deductible, altho he may be entitled to deduct the cost of special insignia and equipment.

Merchant marine midshipmen are members of the United States naval reserve, and when they complete their training are given the choice of serving either with the merchant marine or the navy. If they choose the navy, and go on active service, they are entitled to all the tax advantages allowed men in service. The original uniform allowance given by the army or navy to a newly commissioned officer is not subject to tax.

Ceiling Boost Fills Army's Turkey Needs

How the army quartermaster department was forced to circumvent office of price administration regulations in order to get turkeys overseas in time for Thanksgiving was disclosed yesterday by officials of the quartermaster market center in Chicago. The explanation was made to answer statements that government agencies had "cornered" all the smaller birds by raising price ceilings, leaving only larger fowl for civilian consumption.

Approximately 37 million pounds of turkey, or about 10 per cent of the total crop, was acquired by the quartermaster department. Of this, 13 million pounds was purchased in September for shipment overseas.

Margin Failed to Cover Loss.

"The original poultry ceilings allowed only a 4 cent processing spread between live and dressed turkeys," a quartermaster official said. "This didn't take care of about a 5 cents per pound loss thru loss of about 11 per cent of weight in removal of blood and feathers.

"Only about 2 per cent of the turkey crop ordinarily moves in September and we had to get our overseas supply shipped in September. In order to meet these requirements we had to get farmers to cull out the finest birds.

Arrange Bigger Differential.

"With the limited price margin we couldn't get a single bird. We couldn't requisition the supply without causing a howl. An agreement was arranged with OPA officials to pay a differential of 8½ cents a pound between live and dressed ceilings.

"Even at that we had a terrible time getting the turkeys. Stock was immature, needed more time. Our shipping problems were terrific.

"In November the birds were more mature and the differential was reduced to 8 cents when the OPA put new ceilings on turkeys. Actually the price was never over ceilings. It was cost plus dressing cost, accounting for shrinkage.

"As to taking only smaller birds, we would have preferred the larger ones. We tried to get heavy birds, but we took any we could get that met our grades."

BUSINESS GROUP SEEKING BETTER MAN POWER USE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States opened today an industry-wide drive to achieve better utilization of labor by submitting to 1,300 trade associations a war man power commission program which the chamber called a "practical approach" to the problem.

The WMC program which Eric A. Johnston, president of the chamber, said is "strongly recommended," called for:

A report to the WMC on outstanding industrial man power problems with suggestions for correction; identification and evaluation of measures adopted within the trade or industry resulting in savings or more effective use of man power, and presentation of such information to the members.

SEC DIVISION URGES APPROVAL OF PLAN FOR ASSOCIATED GAS

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 28 (AP).—The securities and exchange commission disclosed today that its public utilities division has recommended that the commission adopt—with minor modifications and reservations of jurisdiction—a plan of reorganization filed under the holding company act by trustees for Associated Gas and Electric company and Associated Gas and Electric corporation.

Capitalization would consist of 7½ million dollars of new senior debt and 7½ million shares of $5 par value common stock. Holders of the corporation's 8 per cent bonds, due 1940, would be entitled to receive $10,256 in new debentures for each $10,000 principal amount held.

General creditors, including holders of debt securities of both firms and of preferred and preference stock of the company, would receive stock in accordance with allocations determined in the "recap compromise" adopted following lengthy proceedings on the "recap plan," an earlier reorganization plan suggested in 1933 by Howard C. Hopson of the Associated system.

Amendments, principally concerned with the management of the reorganized company, still are to be filed with the commission.

$64 Question: How Deep Are Bonus' Roots?

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—Determination of whether a Christmas bonus paid with regularity in the past should be paid again differs in individual cases and must be decided "according to the particular circumstances of each case," the war labor board said today.

One of the main factors in each case must be: "May the bonus properly be considered to be an integral part of the wage or salary structure?" the board said, adding that an employer would not necessarily be bound to pay a Christmas bonus even tho one was customary, if proper showing can be made why it should not be paid.

Reverses Detroit Ruling.

The board applied the "policy," as written in an opinion by William H. Davis, chairman, in a case involving the Nineteen Hundred corporation of St. Joseph, Mich., and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America [CIO].

The board denied the union members a Christmas bonus for the year 1942, thereby reversing a decision of the regional war labor board at Detroit which had granted the Christmas bonus.

Custom a Deciding Factor.

The board in an announcement Nov. 16 ruled that regular Christmas bonuses may be paid voluntarily by employers without board approval if they do not exceed bonuses given last year.

In the present opinion, however, Davis said a Christmas bonus may be so rooted in custom that it may so constitute part of the wage or salary structure that nonpayment would result in a decrease in wage rates requiring approval of the board.

Set Utility Merger Plan for Hearing on Dec. 10

U. S. Advises Advertising, but Less of It

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—The commerce department indorsed advertising today as a prime agency "in persuading people to do their part in the war effort," but suggested a reduction in the use of space "in order to meet the threat of the serious paper shortage."

At the same time the department reiterated its advice to continue advertising in order to maintain good will and protect trademarks.

Advises Using Less Space.

Domestic Commerce, monthly publication of the department, said both advertisers and publishers are faced with a serious threat—the paper shortage—and added:

"Viewing the problem objectively, the logical answers seems to be—use less space during the war-created emergency. Apparent benefits are:

"First, smaller sized advertisments will relieve the paper strain on already overcrowded publications, many of which are now turning away new advertisers. And in this connection, publishers offering contracts on sliding scales are reminded that they will gain a higher lineage rate thru selling less volume per advertiser.

Urges Aiding Small Publisher.

"Second, by spreading their media out into the hinterlands, national advertisers can play an important role in strengthening the economic position of less fortunate publishers.

"In offering these suggestions the department of commerce freely admits they entail sacrifices. They may not constitute the best methods of selling products. But they do represent an expedient that fits the national needs."

WPB TO SCRAP SECRECY, TELL OUTPUT FACTS

Nelson Says Totals Won't Cheer Foe.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—The war production board is about ready to take the "secret" label off many of its files, to help American industry and to confound the enemy.

"Our production position is now so strong that information concerning it will be of no aid or comfort to the enemy—quite the contrary," said Donald M. Nelson, WPB chairman, tonight in disclosing his decision that restrictions could safely be removed.

Nelson said the release would cover "a large amount of past and current data originally collected for confidential use of war agencies," and would supply industry with statistics "for planning present and future operations."

Plans Data by Industries.

The figures will cover industries and types of products, but not operations of individual firms or plants. Included will be facts on production or shipments, use of materials, employment, impending bottlenecks, inventories, and resources, plant capacity and utilization, new materials, substitutions, and "general trends."

First releases will be issued "in a few days," Nelson said, and in most cases will cover the period since war time restrictions were imposed, to the present. Frequent reports will follow until most major lines of industry have been reported.

Thereafter, monthly or quarterly announcements will be made for each industry or product.

Admits Anomaly in Policies.

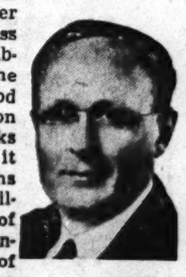
Nelson said it was an "anomaly" for a manufacturer of blankets, heating stoves, or valves not to be able to learn the total output of his industry, "yet frequently reading in the newspapers how many guns, rounds of ammunition, planes and ships were produced last month or year."

"No one should read into the change of policy," he cautioned, "any implication that the war is as good as won, and that industry can now diffuse its thinking and energy in war production.

"This is not to say that the series of reports now inaugurated will not eventually be of value in helping to restore the nation to normal pursuits."

Food Supply Situation Better, Says Grocery Manufacturer

New York, Nov. 28 [Special].—Despite the fact prices of some foods may advance as much as 5 per cent if congress rejects the subsidy program, the domestic food supply situation at present "looks far better than it did six months ago," Paul S. Willis, president of the Grocery Manufacturers of America, Inc., asserted today.



Paul S. Willis.

Willis denounced what he described as "reckless statements" in Washington to the effect defeat of the subsidy plan would mean a sharp increase in living costs.

Raps Alarming Statements.

"So-called 'official sources' have threatened that the prices of such items as butter, bacon, and eggs would be twice their present level a year from now," Willis said. "It is perhaps understandable that the proponents of food subsidies would like to present their case in a strong light, but in a time of emergency like the present it is dangerous to issue unfounded, frightening statements which will lead directly to stampede buying."

Declaring there was no foundation for fear that there would be "runaway price rises," Willis said "America has enough food to meet its needs."

Supply Situation Improved.

"We have had a record harvest and the food supply situation looks far better than it did six months ago. Further evidence that there is no cause for alarm can be seen in the fact that the army and navy have recently released millions of cases of canned food for consumer use."

Widespread subsidies, Willis said, would, by "artificially reducing the cost of food at the retail level," add to the average consumer's spending power and would "do nothing to bring the cost elements of food into balance."

They called it the "Pursuit of Happiness"

THEY TELL you it's over there, where the guard stands on watch. So you walk expectantly over the marble floor, hearing your footsteps shatter the hush and the quiet all about you. And then, suddenly, there you are—peering at it.

And there are the famous signatures—John Hancock. Charles Carroll, of Carrollton. Samuel Adams. Button Gwinnett.

The words, scrawled on parchment, are hard to read at first. But you know by heart the opening paragraphs—remember them from your history book in the sixth grade.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness."

You've heard those words, you've seen them—many times. But somehow, standing there before that wrinkled parchment, you become conscious of meanings that used to be only sounds in the music of the language.

Those men who signed that document called it "the pursuit of Happiness." The right that every man was to enjoy in this new country was the right to pursue happiness. To roll up his sleeves and go after it and struggle and win it with his own two hands and his wits.

And because the people who first heard those words understood them—because they realized their right was one of pursuit—they went out with strength and courage and faith to hew quarries out of Vermont rock, to dig mines in the West Virginia earth, to build mills along the rivers of North Carolina.

Their sons, too, understood—and sucked oil out of the sand and harnessed the power in steam and welded one end of the country to the other with rails of steel.

Because of that right—and because they understood it—the people who came to this country, and their sons, made it the richest, most powerful, most restless nation on earth.

Today, there are those who voice other words. Words not of courage or strength or faith. Words of despair. We are too wise, too old, too civilized, they say, to pursue happiness. We have inherited the right to sit back and have happiness brought to us—decked out and trussed up like a roasted turkey on a silver platter. A dead turkey.

The words they speak are not new words. They have been spoken in other nations throughout history, and people hearing them have been lulled by their golden promise into complacency and submission. And slavery.

They are words that ought to be looked at for their meaning, not just listened to for their music—as all words ought to be scrutinized, including those that have become so familiar, so much a part of our lives, that their wisdom is likely to be lost.

So long as the true meaning of those earlier words is understood, the rights that they proclaim will never be lost.

IOWA WINS 1ST LAURELS AT BIG FAT STOCK SHOW

Car Lots Judged; 4,558 Entries in Classes.

Fattened for market, and groomed for show, a choice lot of Hereford cattle shipped by Karl Hoffman and Robert Storz of Ida Grove, Ia., yesterday won the first grand championship ribbon of Chicago's second annual livestock competition held under war restrictions. Hoffman and Storz also had the grand champion car lot last year.

Sleek steers, swine, and flocks of sheep with snowy white wool and their faces washed are on exhibition in the market barns and pens of the stockyards for the show which will continue thru Thursday. Carload lots of cattle were judged yesterday as a pre-show event. The curtain will be raised officially at 8 a. m. today.

Shorthorn Award to Illinois.

Vanderveer farms of Morrisonville, Ill., won the ribbon for the best lot of fat Shorthorns, and Schmidt Brothers of Delmar, Ia., had the champion lot of fat Aberdeen-Angus stock. Homer Plate, M. S. Hughes, and H. C. Overman, Chicago buyers, were the judges.

In the competition, class champions will be selected from 4,558 animals. It is the largest live stock show held in the United States since the office of defense transportation requested that the famous International exposition be discontinued until after the war.

Free Admission for Public.

The show will be open free to the public and the judging will be held each day between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m. Entries are housed in the yards proper, as the International Amphitheater is being occupied by the army.

All animals listed for showing had been checked in at the yards last night, and exhibitors remained late in the pens brushing, combing, washing, and polishing their sleek farm stock. The weather was mild, compared with the 20 below zero temperature prevailing when the 1942 show opened.

Highlight of the competition will be the naming of the grand champion steer tomorrow afternoon. The champion will be sold Wednesday morning.

Carload Judging Today.

Karl Hoffman, winner yesterday, will select the best carload of feeder cattle today from among 20 carloads entered. Union Stockyards packer buyers will judge 40 carloads of swine and 10 carloads of sheep.

Three hundred twelve farm boys and girls from nine states will show 451 baby beeves, 71 hogs, and 42 sheep today in the junior contest. Illinois has more junior exhibitors, 189, than any other state. Lucille Rheude of Iroquois county has listed three Aberdeen-Angus cattle that won prizes in the Iroquois county fair.

Shorthorns will be exhibited and sold today, tomorrow, and Wednesday, and there will be a sale of purebred Herefords tomorrow at 7 p. m., the only evening event scheduled on the show calendar.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and by mail, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries.]

P. J. B. writes: "I am a steamfitter and pipefitter with five years' apprenticeship plus two years' journeyman experience, and seven years of shop experience. I am to be inducted in four weeks and noted the item in your column about the Navy Ship Repair Unit and would like to enlist. Is their physical examination as strict at the regular navy? If I couldn't pass it is there something else I could get into?"

ANSWER: The physical examination for the ship repair unit is not so rigid as for sea duty in the regular navy but if you should not be able to pass this physical, you could be enrolled immediately in the Naval Shore Establishment program for recruiting civilian workers. Among the tradesmen needed in the navy yards are boilermakers, machinists, pipefitters, riggers, sheetmetal workers, shipfitters, welders, general helpers and senior laborers. Naval Shore Establishment workers retain their civilian status and receive transportation to the point of employment and regular wages in accordance with their skill.

O. D. S. writes: "We have been told our boys must be in service at least six months before payments would be made on their insurance if anything happened to them? We have also been told that dependents of men killed in oversea service will not receive social security benefits unless the body is shipped back to the United States."

ANSWER: Both statements are absolutely untrue. National Service life insurance is in force and payable as soon as the premium is received by the veterans administration. If the man entering service wishes to avoid a gap between entering service and the payment of a premium on his insurance to make it immediately valid, he can accompany application by a certified check or postal money order in the amount of one or more premium payments. Our insurance article gives a table of the amounts of the premiums for various ages and we will send the article on request. Social security payments will be made as soon as death is confirmed by official notice from the government.

Post-war opportunities for achievement among the youth of the United States will be greater than ever because of the important role the nation will play in the world of tomorrow, Howard Y. McClusky of the University of Michigan, formerly of the American Youth commission, yesterday told 800 boys and girls who had proved their interest in achievement. He spoke at the opening session of the 22d National 4-H Club congress at the La Salle hotel.

The grand ballroom was crowded with boys and girls from rural America, fresh cheeked and ambitious. These delegates represented more than 1,700,000 members thruout the nation who had piled up an enviable record. Collectively, they had raised 5 million bushels of war garden produce, 9 million poultry, 90,000 head of dairy cattle, 600,000 head of live stock, 12 million pounds of peanuts, soybeans, and other legumes, and canned 15 million jars of products.

Raise 25 Millions for War.

They had purchased or sold 25 million dollars worth of war stamps and bonds, collected more than 300 million pounds of scrap for the nation's war machine.

Individually, they did all right, too. Billy Sol Estes, 17, Clyde, Tex., and Geneva G. Duhm, 18, Black Creek, Wis., were the national winners in achievement contests. Billy, after six years in 4-H work, has accumulated $28,739. He began with a ewe lamb named Old Merry, given him one year as a Christmas gift.

The girl champion has amassed $1,626, represented chiefly by products or items for home or personal use. She has made all of her own clothes since she was 11. She has made all of the family's bread since she was 13. She started to milk cows when she was 6. Now she is planning to enter nurses' training as soon as she can find a course getting under way.

Many Awards Made.

Selected as the nation's topflight 4-H leaders were Robert R. Mayer, 20, Marysville, Kas., and Emily E. McHattie, 19, Newport, Minn. Both have long service records in the organization, and have held practically every office it offers. There were safety winners, clothing winners, and stars in every one of the many activities 4-H sponsors.

A general assembly will be held today and tomorrow, followed by group discussions. One of these will be on the role that the 4-H members can play in rebuilding the rural church.

Highway Research Board to Hold General Sessions

The first general sessions of the highway research board, which opened a four day meeting Saturday in the Edgewater Beach hotel, will be held today. The preceding sessions were devoted to individual group meetings on design, soil, maintenance, traffic, and other subjects dealing with highways. The board is a part of the national research council of Washington, D. C.

PALOMINO BREEDERS FORM ASSOCIATION; CHARTER PRESENTED

To spread the breeding and development of the golden colored Palomino horse in Illinois, the Palomino Horse Breeders and Exhibitors Association of Illinois was formed yesterday at a meeting in the Morrison hotel.

This is the seventh state which has organized an affiliate of the Palomino Horse Breeders of America since that group was formed two years ago to revive the Palominos, which were nearing extinction. The horse is distinguished by a coat the color of newly minted gold, white mane and tail, black skin, and dark eyes.

Chester Upham of Pacific Palisades, Cal., president of the national organization, and Dr. H. Arthur Zappe of Mineral Wells, Tex., its secretary-treasurer, presented the charter to officers of the state group. They are O. S. Wagner of Peoria, president; Irvin Borchers, Monmouth, vice president, and Mrs. Larry Stice, Swan Creek, secretary-treasurer.

That's Carl speaking. Carl and his wife have been talking jobs . . . talking about getting set in the RIGHT JOB. They decided this was the time to look for that good opening he had always wanted.
And that's why Carl came over to Wards and talked with one of our interviewers. That's why he is working here now, and will be here permanently. Because a job at Wards has three things Carl has always wanted—

A NIGHT OWL TALKS . . .

The really nice part about this night owl shift is having the days to go shopping or get in my special activities. Many girls with husbands in the service are down here, too, also mothers who like the daytime hours free for their children.
We like it at Wards and the liberal employe discount on everything we buy really makes our dollars S-T-R-E-T-C-H.
